went on record at its January 26 meeting as being in opposition to the amendment.

Said party chairman Biff Roberts in a statement after the meeting, "The move is not a healthy one for a student government which is in poor health right now. For the past few years student government has been drifting away from the students on the campus into the hands of a select few from both political parties.

It is impossible to increase student participation in campus government by decreasing the number of positions open for students in that government. The Student Legislature is the foundation of all student government and it should have a sufficient number of places (for those) who wish to participate in student government."

Independent Coed Dance Set Feb. 15

The Pine Room will cease being a snack bar long enough to be used as a ballroom for the Independent Coed Board's dance on Friday, February 15 from 9 to 12.

Housemothers from sororities and fraternities have received blanket invitations and University officials will be invited as well as coeds, their dates, and two stags each, according to Rosa Lee Brake, president. Each girl has three bids.

The Ed Gaston combo will provide music amidst appropriate decorations. Refreshments will be served and special entertainment is planned for intermission.

The Independent Coed Board is a group of independent coeds elected from the women dormitories. Informal dances were held last quarter as part of the board's social program.

Coed's desiring bids should contact board members or call Miss Brake at 2-7051.

Cosmopolitan's Annual Show Set Sunday

The Cosmopolitan Club will present its annual show in the Playmakers Theatre Sunday at 7 p.m., Bill Huntley, president announced yesterday.

Included in the show will be skits, songs and dances of several countries. Barry Farber will be master of ceremonies while Jean Souweine (pronounced Suv-en) will star as a typical foreign student in a skit depicting some phases of life of foreign students in the United States.

The Cosmopolitan Clubs of State, Woman's College, and Duke have been invited to send one act each for the show. Among the countries to be represented are India, Japan, China, Estonia, Belgium and Germany.

In the past two years the Cosmopolitan show has performed before packed audiences. One professional playwright called last year's "the best amateur performances on campus in a long time."

House, Others Will Appear On Fun Show

Chancellor House will "tote" his famed harmonica down to Woollen gymnasium one night next week.

When he gets there, he'll play his stirring composition - the "Chapel Hill Harmony" and probably some more of the ballads and folk songs for which he is famed.

The House recital will be the featured portion of the third annual PTA benefit variety show, scheduled for the gym next February 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Included in the other acts are gymnastics and tumbling directed by Bill Meade, a drill by the crack NROTC group, music, singing and dancing.

Last year more than a thousand dollars was cleared by the show for art and recreation projects of the local schools. Student attendance was high and is expected to increase this year.

Serving as master of ceremonies for the performance is Norman Cordon, former Metropolitan Opera basso now living in Chapel Hill.

Tickets will sell for 50 cents to adults, 25 cents for children.

A slight deficiency of boron causes many plants to develop odd diseases.

Total U.S. production of feed grains in 1951 was estimated in December at 114 million tons, 7 per cent smaller than in 1950 and the smallest since 1947.
