

Terps' Ty Creamer Ruled Ineligible

These are the men who are considered the top contenders for titles in the Southern Conference Indoor Games tomorrow. Miler Tyson Creamer of Maryland (far right) has been declared ineligible for the meet.

Loss Of Mile Champion Hurts Maryland's Hopes Of Victory

Maryland's Tyson Creamer, defending champion in the mile, has been ruled ineligible for the Southern Conference Indoor Games here tomorrow night, the conference office has announced. Creamer, who was highly favored to repeat in his specialty, has completed his four years of eligibility. The Baltimore, Md. native entered Maryland in February of 1948 and competed for the outdoor track team, but not in indoor track that year. Coach Jim Kehoe of Maryland had thought that Creamer would be eligible to compete in indoor track since he did not compete as a freshman. However, the conference office notified him that Creamer used up his eligibility in February 11.

Three weeks ago the ICA-A ruled that Creamer could not compete in its meet because the National Collegiate Athletic Commission revoked its freshman rule in 1947, a year before the Southern conference.

Creamer has developed into a 17 miler and a 1:56 half-miler. His biggest collegiate victory was an upset of Georgetown's brilliant Joe LePierre in the South Atlantic mile last month. Kehoe feels that Creamer is a definite Olympic with finals of the high jump in the freshmen and scholastic divisions. The finals in the shot put and broad jump for all divisions will begin at 1:30 p.m. and trials in the running events will continue throughout the afternoon.

Finals in the running events will be held Saturday evening. All competition except the shot put will be held in Woollen Gymnasium which has been turned into a huge indoor track arena with seating capacity of over 2,000. The Tin Can will be the site of the shot put events.

As usual, a mammoth field totaling 550 contestants has been entered in the four divisions—conference, non-conference, freshman, and scholastic. In the non-conference division thirteen strong teams will be in the competition, with Virginia sending the largest entry.

Highlights in the non-conference schedule will be Jay (Papa) Hall, Florida's top flight high jumper, and Dwight Price, a fine Kentucky distance runner, Carl Shields, a husky Alabama shot putter who is a possible Olympic representative, is another outstanding entry.

Reserve seats and special student tickets will be on sale for the night show.

There should be some red-hot competition in four finals of the SC swim met tonight. State's Sonia and Churn will oppose Carolina's Dick Levy in the 50-yard freestyle; Carolina's Warren Heeman and State's Tom Dunlap in the 200-yard backstroke; and the Tar Heel divers Joe Kelso and R. S. White will be trying for their second victory over the Wolfpack's Bob Stenburg.

Jayvees Play Duke Tonight

The North Carolina junior varsity basketball team will be trying to break into the win column tonight at 6:30 at Duke, after losing its last two games to State and Wake Forest. Carolina's last victory was against Duke on February 16.

Wake Forest edged out the Tar Heels in the final three minutes, 59-54, while N. C. State whipped them 64-48 in the Jayvee last outing.

Carolina whipped the Blue Devils 90-84 in Sanford, but Duke will be hard to stop on their own court. The first game was played in Sanford in order to raise money for the high school athletic association. Roger Kingsbury scored 21 points to lead both teams.

Buell Moser has been one of the most consistent members of the Jayvees this year, while Floyd Propts and Brantley have also carried a big load. The Tar Heels commanded a 27-25 lead at half-time in the State game, but the loss of Propts helped the Wolfpack come back strong.
