

has been ruled ineligible for the Southern Conference Indoor games here tomorrow night, the conference office has announced. Creamer, who was highly favored to repeat in his specialty, has completed his four years of eligibility. The Baltimore, Md. native entered Maryland in February of 1948 and competed for the outdoor track team, but not in indoor track that year. Coach Jim Kehoe of Maryland had thought that Creamer would be eligible to compete in indoor track since he did not compete as a freshman. However, the conference office notified him that Creamer used up his eligibility in February 11.

IC4A Ruling
Three weeks ago the IC4A ruled that Creamer could not compete in its meet because the National Collegiate Athletic Commission revoked its freshmen rule in 1947, a year before the Southern conference.

Creamer has developed into a 17 miler and a 1:56 half-miler. His biggest collegiate victory was an upset of Georgetown's brilliant Joe LePierre in the South Atlantic mile last month. Kehoe feels that Creamer is a definite Olympic great and says, "Tyson is just coming into his own and I'm sure he can hold his own with the best in the East."

With Creamer missing, the favored Maryland team will be hard pressed to dethrone the defending champion Carolina team. The mile, previously expected to be all Creamer's will now definitely be a toss-up. Bill Mossie of Virginia Tech, who placed third in 1951 and last year's fourth place winner, Bob Marshall of Duke are among the favored runners in the mile. Clyde Garrison, state's star distance man, may be entered in this event also. The Indoor Games will begin tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock sions. The finals in the shot put and broad jump for all divisions will begin at 1:30 p.m. and trials in the running events will continue throughout the afternoon.

Finals in the running events will be held Saturday evening. All competition except the shot put will be held in Woollen Gymnasium which has been turned into a huge indoor track arena with seating capacity of over 2,000. The Tin Can will be the site of the shot put events.

As usual, a mammoth field totalling 550 contestants has been entered in the four divisions—conference, non-conference, freshman, and scholastic. In the non-conference division thirteen strong teams will be in the competition, with Virginia sending the largest entry.

Highlights in the non-conference jumper, and Dwight Price, a fine Kentucky distance runner, Carl Shields, a husky Alabama shot putter who is a possible Olympic representative, is another outstanding entry.

Reserve seats and special student tickets will be on sale for the night show.

There should be some red-hot competition in four finals of the SC swim met tonight. State's Sonia and Churn will oppose Carolina's Dick Levy in the 50-yard freestyle; Carolina's Warren Heenan and State's Tom Dunlap in the 200-yard backstroke; and the Tar Heel divers Joe Kelso and R. S. White will be trying for their second victory over the Wolfpack's Bob Stenburg.
