SC Presidents To Vote By Mail On Frosh Rule

The presidents of the Southern Conference schools, in a tedious three-hour and 45-minute meeting in the Morehead Building yesterday, rehearsed and reviewed their actions of last December and decided to hold a vote by mail on the eligibility of freshmen in varsity athletics.

The meeting of the 38 representatives of 16 schools (Clemson was not represented) and Commissioner Wallace Wade produced none of the fireworks which had marked previous meetings. The closest thing to excitement was supplied by Adm. Alvin Duke Chandler, president of William and Mary, who heatedly asked that action be taken on recruiting in the conference before other motions were entertained.

"Recruiting Is Outrageous"

"Recruiting in the Southern Conference is outrageous," he exclaimed. "In the five months I have been president I have seen all sorts of under-the-table goings on. I want to go on record that until we clear-up recruiting, we cannot do anything.

The rest is only window-dressing, until we get to the real issue."

Admiral Chandler took over at William and Mary last fall after a scandal concerning falsifying high school transcripts of athletes

Fifteen nationally known experts in various photographic fields have accepted invitations to serve on the faculty of the third annual Southern Short Course in Press Photography to be held here April 3, 4, 5.

The course is planned for the benefit of press and commercial photographers and picture editors of the Southern states for the purpose of providing them "a unique opportunity to obtain expert instruction in the latest photographic processes and techniques."

Hugh Morton, Wilmington, is general chairman of the course, a non-profit educational program is sponsored by the Carolinas Press Photographers Association in cooperation with the National Press Photographers Association, the State Press Association, and the University Extension Division.

Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland agreed in part with Chandler. "The presidents ought to take the pressure off the coaches," he said. However Tatum did not feel that banning of bowl games and prohibition of spring practice would help the present situation.

Service Schools Recruit

"No one has a more highly competitive recruiting system than the Naval Academy or West Point or Notre Dame, but they have not expressed interest in going to bowls. I don't think any coach would mind putting an end to recruiting. We spend 90 percent of our time creating good will for the boys."

Just before the conclusion of the meeting Byrd rose and announced that he had a statement he would like to make. He said, "The press of North Carolina has been entirely unfair to Presidents Gray and Edens of the University of North Carolina and Duke in sports editorials concerning the suspensions of Maryland and Clemson."

"The Septembr meeting here was suggested by the President of Maryland the previous March. We didn't feel that the action of the president's in September was legal. However, there is no question of our violating the rule and disciplinary action was proper toward both institutions."

"This is the attitude of the University of Maryland: We will abide by the regulations of the conference and we have not the slightest ill will toward any institution or individual for voting for our suspension. If we were in the position of the other schools we would have done the same thing. We expect to continue conference relationships in the future."

Gray Serves Again

This speech was followed by a warm round of applause and it was not expected that Mr. Gray was asked to remain as chairman of the president's group.

Among the action taken by the group was the following:

1. Passed a motion that a vote by mail be taken no later than the last day of March on the eligibility of freshmen in varsity sports. At present, freshmen are eligible for varsity competition. (See PRESIDENTS, page 4)

Discrimination Charges Are Unresolved

Charges of discrimination against Negro law students here have received no further action, Durham attorney C. O. Pearson said yesterday.

Martin A. Martin of Richmond, Va., and Robert Carter of New York NAACP national counsels, conferred with Pearson this week but no further action was taken regarding the charge, Pearson said.

On February 29 Pearson charged that the University was "harassing" its Negro law students in an effort to prevent their graduation and to discourage other Negroes from seeking admission to the school.

Pearson, who is state counsel of the NAACP, declared then that the law students "are being discriminated against solely on account of race and color for the purpose of preventing them from graduating in June."

"Some of the Negro students at UNC made honor grades at North Carolina College," he said, "and all made creditable grades. Now these students are being 'punched' by some of these same professors."

Two of the five Negro law students here said they were making "fair" grades and have passed all courses during both semesters at UNC. The other three said they had each failed two courses and will have to make at least a "C" average to stay in school. An average of between a "C" and "D" or a numerical average of 3.5 is required of all students.

None of the five would say that the Law School faculty had directly discriminated against them in grading. However they cited several specific situations which they labeled "unusual." (1) The only "A" made by any of them had been in a course taught at the law school last summer by a visiting West Coast professor; (2) the only third-year students who have failed courses in which Negroes have been enrolled have been the Negroes themselves; and (3) in one course in which all five of them were enrolled—a class of 60 to 70 students—three of the six failures were given to Negroes.

University officials promptly denied Pearson's charges. Law School Dean Henry Brandis stated that "in all matters of grading and scholastic performance they (the Negro students) have been treated exactly like any other student." He was backed up in his statement by Chancellor R. B. House, who said of the charges, "They are not worth a comment."

The End

The Daily Tar Heel will resume publication on Tuesday, March 18, the first day of classes of the spring quarter.

Deadlines for the paper will remain the same, 3:30 Monday thru Friday and 11:00 on Saturday.

Staff members are invited to return on Monday, March 17, to help with the first issue. New members are also invited.

Campus Chest Nets Approximately $2200

Approximately $1700 in cash was donated to the Campus Chest fund during the past four days, Chest officials reported yesterday.

In addition to this amount, pledges for $500 have been reported. Officials hope for a much larger figure when all reports from the different solicitors have been turned in.

State Funds Barred For Scholarships

(Special to The Daily Tar Heel)
Raleigh—No more athletic scholarships may be given from State funds.

In a joint directive handed down yesterday by Budget Bureau Chief D. S. Coltrane and State Auditor Henry Bridges, all State-supported colleges were notified: "Scholarships shall not be granted to any student out of or involving state funds." However, they added, "this does not apply to scholarships granted out of trust funds."

The directive is a result of Bridges' findings that some of the State's smaller schools were in effect subsidizing athletes with State funds.

In some cases students were not paying any tuition or other fees while attending some of the state-supported institutions. Instead, they exchanged their so-called scholarship for work done around the school. Bridges said in many cases no records were kept of the amount of work done. In other cases, he said, the value of work done was far below the amount of financial aid rendered.

The order said all payments for student help "shall be supported by State payrolls and paid by check." It stated specifically that "there shall be no reduction made in tuition, fees, room, board, etc., collected from any particular classification of students, except as provided by law in special cases."

Students On Tour

Dean Susan Grey Akers, School of Library Science, and 23 library science students will make a week-long tour of major libraries in the East beginning Monday.

The Library of Congress, National Gallery of Art library, National Archives library and the government printing office will be visited in Washington, D. C., Monday and Tuesday. The Princeton University library will be seen on Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday the class will make a tour of the Brooklyn Public library and its branches, and portions of the class will visit such special libraries as the Union Theological Seminary library, the United Nations library, the Time, Life and Fortune magazine libraries, and the Nathan Straus (children's) Branch of the New York Public library.

On Tuesday, March 10, Dean Akers will go to Baltimore to address the Special Library Association chapter in that city.

Zeta Beta Tau fraternity received a prize of $25 for the largest contribution per capita. They turned in a total of $67.70.

Other awards have not been determined due to some of the solicitors failing to turn in complete reports and having to secure a correct list of population in different dorms and sororities to figure the per capita contributions. The announcement will probably come the first part of spring quarter.

Officials of the drive stated several special events would be scheduled during spring quarter to add to the fund. Such events as a booth at the University Club Carnival, baseball games, movies and other events.

"We appreciate the help of the students who aided in the drive and want to thank all those who contributed," Allan Tate, chairman of the drive, said yesterday.

Pledges may be paid at the YMCA office anytime before May 15.

Special events during the four-day drive included a variety show, shoe shine stand and a large jug in the lobby of the Y. Approximately $100 was collected from these three events.
