String Quartet To Play Concert Tomorrow Eve

A group often described as "today's foremost string quartet" will present a program of chamber music here tomorrow night.

Organized by Marianne Kneisel, the music group will perform in the main lounge of Graham Memorial at 8 p.m. tomorrow. The public is invited.

A native of Boston, Miss Kneisel received her musical education from her father, the famous Franz Kneisel, pioneer of chamber music in this country. Later she was awarded the artists diploma of the Institute of Musical Art of the Julliard School of Music in New York.

The quartet has made several transcontinental tours, accompanied by enthusiastic receptions and numerous re-engagements. During the past few seasons they have devoted much of their time to performances at Army, Navy and Air Force posts.

Ray McKinley And Orchestra To Play For Annual Interdorm Dance-Concert Here April 5

Ray McKinley and "the most versatile band in the land" will play for the annual Interdormitory Council dance-concert, Saturday, April 5, Bill Acker, dance chairman, announced yesterday.

Free dance bids will be presented to all dormitory residents, while 75 cent concert tickets will be sold by dormitory representatives soon.

The McKinley band, rated one of the 10 best in the country, has played for over 100 college dances in the last two years. Look and Down Beat magazines have called McKinley and his orchestra the best all-around dance band in America.

McKinley worked with Glenn Miller during World War II, taking over the Air Force overseas radio orchestra after Miller's disappearance. He led the musicians for its command performance in Washington for President Truman and the National Press Club. In his final service appearance, McKinley played a drum solo which had been requested by General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

McKinley sings, humorizes, and drums as well as leads the band. He features novelty vocals and several individual solos.

Last year, Les Brown played to a large audience.

Civil Service

An urgent need still exists for Civil Service Investigators and in a further effort to obtain qualified persons for the trainee positions, applications will be accepted from college students who are otherwise qualified and who expect to complete all the courses required for graduation by June 30, 1952.

This examination offers senior college students an opportunity to enter the government service in an interesting, well paying position with definite opportunity for advancement, especially for those who like to travel and for those who do not care for routine work.

Application forms and complete information may be obtained from the secretary at the local post office.

ory testimony when I won't even trust my memory for 48 hours."

He was referring to Latta's testimony as to what Lee had told him last September in Durham.

He took every bit of the evidence presented by the state and attempted to point out the missing links in what he termed as solely circumstantial.

In closing his argument Sawyer likened the trial to the one which Jesus faced before Pilate. Moving over to where Lee, his wife and mother were sitting, Sawyer said softly:

"I want to say this to you, Hobart Lee, and to your wife and mother."

"If you are convicted of this crime, whether anyone else in this world understands or not, I want you to know that Jesus understands. Just as sure as you're living, God will straighten this out."

Military Ball

The annual Air Force-Navy ROTC military ball will be held in Woollen gymnasium tonight at 8:30 climaxing a series of weekend festivities, including the pledging of new members of the Scabbard and Blade and Arnold Air Society chapters.

This afternoon, members of Scabbard and Blade will give a party at the Carolina Inn, followed by a banquet with Mayor Edwin S. Lanier as principal speaker.

their heads and burst into tears at this point, while Lee bowed his head slightly. Then walking back to the jury box, Sawyer said to the jury, "I don't think God is going to have to straighten this out, you are going to do it now."

He reminded the jurors they would have to live with what ever verdict they returned.

"There is coming a day, he continued, when you'll have to account for your verdict and I hope when that day comes you'll be in a position to hear that voice say 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'"

Murdock had indicated in his argument that Miss Crook had been raped or attempted to have been raped.

If the trench as Murdock had indicated was caused by the defendant in attempting to rape or raping the murdered woman, the toes of the shoes offered as evidence would have been scuffed and scarred due to the rocky content of the soil contended Sawyer.

There is "nothing on the toes of those shoes" that indicated they "made the trench" at the feet of the murdered woman, Sawyer said. These are the "toes of the shoes of a working man, not a rapist," he added.

Solicitor Murdock referred, to the large number of Durham Police, Highway Patrolmen, newspapermen and others who gathered at the Durham jail to prevent Lee from being taken out, in his argument.

Sawyer said in reference to this, "any law abiding citizen would want to give him his freedom on any such testimony as has been given here."

"The state instead of proving his guilt has proven his innocence," the defense attorney said.

During his hour and a half argument the defense attorney quoted several passages from the Bible and closed his argument with the remark that it is better for several guilty men to go free than to convict an innocent man.
