Port's Four Hitter Beats Virginia, 5-0

Fourth Win In 5 Starts By Tar Heels

By Ed Starnes

Carolina's Chal Port threw a masterful four-hit shutout at Virginia and his teammates came up with four runs in the fifth inning to gain a 5-0 triumph for the Tar Heels here yesterday.

Port struck out seven and walked but one man while handcuffing the Cavaliers. He was in trouble only in the first two innings when errors put men on second and third bases but the righthander pitched himself out of the jam with perfect control.

The game was a tight pitcher's duel until the fifth inning when the Tar Heels exploded for four runs. Up until that point Virginia pitcher Don Aichholz had held Carolina in check with one hit.

Ben Smith led off the fifth with a single to the third baseman, but Sheppard threw wild to first, allowing Smith to go to second on the error.

Wayne White walked, and Bill Reeves sacrificed the men to second and third. Dick Weiss was the bases. Port hit a ground ball to Jack Rogers at shortstop who tagged Wiess coming into second. Smith scored on the play.

Second baseman Mark Herring lashed a single over second, scoring White and moving Port to third. Port scored seconds later on Bruce Coats single into center field. Fred Dale walked.

MARK HERRING, stumpy second baseman from Seven Springs, was Carolina's leading batter with a .298 average last year. His timely hit in the fifth inning drove in one of the Carolina runs.

'Afraid We'd Give It Away'-Rabb; Herring Is Top Hitter.

by Bill Peacock

"I was afraid we were going to give it away." - commented coach Walter Rabb after the Carolina baseball team won its fourth game in five starts, stopping Virginia, 5-0.

Virginia kept Chal Port in trouble in the first two innings with men on second and third, but the stocky righthander got out of trouble both times. "Chal wasn't throwing as hard as he usually does," Rabb said, "but he didn't have to today." Port had almost perfect control, staying ahead of the batters most of the way and giving up his only walk with two out in the ninth.

game to pitch for Virginia and Tom Stevens greeted him with a sharp single through short to score Herring and load the bases. Ben Smith lifted a high popup to first base to end the inning.

Carolina's other run came in the eighth inning. Stevens opened the inning with a trip to deep rightcenter field. After Smith had popped out to left field, White drove a single through first to score Smith.

Carolina's fielding gem of the day came in the fourth inning with one man out and men on second and third. Don Strain, Virginia catcher, hit the ball back to Port who fielded it and threw to Smith at first to nab Strain. Smith then threw to Wiess at the plate who tagged out Virginia's Garland who was trying to come home on the play.

Only two men got on base for the Cavaliers in the last five innings.

Bill Lore, the knuckleballer who defeated Alabama on two hits this year, was to be the starter yesterday, but a cold he picked up on the Florida trip prevented him from playing. He watched Port from the stands.

Herring Top Hitter

Little Mark Herring, who led the Carolina batters with .298 last year, is leading again this year. He has gotten three hits in six times at bat to shade Tom Stevens, who has four in nine at bats. Incidentally, Herring's two errors yesterday were half as many as he made during the entire last season. Coach Dick Jamerson, who handled the public announcebefore.

Carolina's eight hits yesterday raised the average of six per game, but all but two of them were hit through infield positions. Tom Stevens' triple to center and Bruce Coates' single to center were the only hits to clear the infield.

Tough In Clutch

As if Port's display of clutch pitching in the first two innings weren't sufficient, he struck out both pinchhitters who went up against him. Both Wayne Green and Chet Weisinger went down swinging.

Mel Roach, the Virginia freshman who was the first string quarterback this year, played second base for the Cavaliers although he was an All-State first baseman while attending high school in Roanoke. Bob Tata, another footballer, played first and turned in several good catches on infield throws.

Jack Rogers, Virginia shortstop, made several good stops, one of which looked as though it might have stopped the Tar Heels' four run rally.
