

Second Bloodmobile Unit Due Today

Many Donors Turned Away By Swamped Blood Officials

A second bloodmobile unit was scheduled to arrive here this morning as the Red Cross blood drive entered its second day.

Approximately 325 pints of the 1,000 quota were collected yesterday.

Swamped at 4:15 p.m., the blood officials were forced to turn many prospective donors away, however. They were urged to return today when the facilities have been enlarged.

Others wishing to give blood may report to the main lounge of Graham Memorial anytime today, student chairman Joel Fleishman said yesterday.

He urged donors to come tomorrow morning if possible, since this seems to be a slack period.

Fleishman also requested all organizations to turn in their membership lists immediately. The committee will calculate percentages and announce prizes going to the organization with the highest percent of contributions as soon as the drive is completed.

Ft. Benning Station Hospital

"I was wounded in Korea on the 27th of November in combat with the enemy 18 miles south of the Manchuria border. A bullet entered my right thigh, shattering the bone, and passed completely through the limb.

"I received six transfusions of blood and plasma collected by the Red Cross for the armed forces and given me in the field hospital and in hospitals in Japan. The first transfusion, given right in the combat area, was plasma. This plasma was the only thing that could carry you through—keep you from going to pieces entirely.

"In the hours and days that followed as I was evacuated to a field hospital and then to hospitals in Japan I received five whole blood transfusions, and whenever I got that blood I started feeling just about as good as new. The last transfusion I received, in a military hospital in Japan, was in preparation for my trip back to the States.

"These blood transfusions sure did me some good, and I can speak for a lot of other guys. I know transfusions did them good, too. Something like that can't never miss. Blood is really needed and we're all thankful for it. It is the only way of saving a lot of lives that otherwise would be lost.

Amendments Up For Vote

Two constitutional amendments will be before the student body in the election next Wednesday.

The amendments were voted on in last fall's balloting but the results were declared invalid after it was discovered that a poll went untended for about an hour.

To become law, the amendments must be ratified by two thirds of those voting.

The first amendment would reduce representation in the Student Legislature from 50 to 35. It was defeated in the voting last fall.

The second amendment provides for changes in the judicial system. It passed before by seven votes.

The judiciary amendment provides that original jurisdiction in all cases involving Honor and Campus code offenses shall be reserved to the Men's and Women's Councils, and the Law, Medical, and Dental school courts if established. Any student convicted would have the right to have his case reviewed by the Student Council. If the council finds that any of the defendant's constitutional rights were violated, it would have the power to remand the case to the lower court for retrial or dismiss the charges.

The official student newspaper of the Publications of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where it is published daily at the Colonial Press, Inc., except Monday, examination and vacation periods and during the official summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the Post Office of Chapel Hill, N. C., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed $4.00 per year, $1.50 per quarter; delivered $6.00 per year and $2.25 per quarter.

Johnson Wins
Bob Johnson beat T. Mac Long in the Order of the Golden Bear member blood donating contest yesterday.
Despite Daily Tar Heel columnist Barry Farber's prediction of a Long victory, Johnson filled his pint—his 13th—in four minutes and 25 seconds. Long oozed along, taking five minutes and 27 seconds.
