Green Drama Honored For Patriotic Service

"Faith of Our Fathers," Paul Green's symphonic drama, which will open again in Washington this summer, has just been awarded Freedom Foundation's Honor Medal for "achievement in creating a better understanding of the American way of life."

Among others receiving Honor Medals for patriotic service were Colliers Magazine and the General Motors Corporation, it was announced by Kenneth D. Wells, president of Freedom's Foundation.

This is a non-profit organization which presents approximately $100,000 annually in prizes and awards to patriotic organizations, institutions and individuals. Its credo is "to maintain the American way of life and pass it intact to succeeding generations," which, the Foundation says, "is the responsibility of every true American."

According to President Wells, the awards will be presented regionally or locally sometime this month. Paul Massman, general manager of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, expressed the hope that the Honor Medal to "Faith of Our Fathers" could be presented in the beautiful

Rock Creek Park amphitheatre where the pageant is performed in Washington.

Author Green said here yesterday that plans are now underway for the 1952 production of the drama and that a number of organizations, including the DAR and the American Legion, and government officials and educational leaders, have endorsed the idea of making the pageant a permanent event in Washington.
