PAGE FOUR

SUNDAY, APRIL 6, 1952

Tar Heel Nine Defeats Quakers, 6-2

UNC Makes 10 Hits As Pazdan Wins

by Frank Allston, Jr. Carolina broke out of a prolonged hitting slump yesterday afternoon to chalk up a 6-2 baseball win over the University of Pennsylvania before a sparse and chilled crowd in Emerson Stadium.

Joe Pazdan went all the way on the mound for the Tar Heels, giving up eight hits, but scattering them effectively. The win, Carolina's eighth, was Pazdan's fifth. The stock Newark, N. J., righthander now leads the Big Four pitchers with a 5-0 record.

Wayne White, Tom Stevens and Bruce Holt each collected two hits for the Tar Heels in two trips to the plate, to lead the 10-hit Carolina attack. Prior to today Carolina has been averaging slightly better than five hits per game.

Break Open Game

The Tar Heels broke the game open in the third inning with four big runs. Dick Wiess started off the inning with a single, stole second, and rode home on Skeet Hesmer's grounder which 'Penn shortstop Gene Sattler booted.

Successive singles by White, Stevens and Holt accounted for the other three Carolina runs in the third.

Pazdan was only in trouble in the seventh when the Quakers bunched four hits for their two tallies. Carolina came back, however, with a pair in the last half of the seventh. Successive hits by White, Stevens and Ben Smith loaded the bases.

Otto Graham Teaching T-Formation Golfers Open Offense On Same Field He Learned It

by Ed Starnes

Otto Graham, quarterback of the Cleveland Browns and considered by many to be the top quarterback in the pro game, returned to Chapel Hill this week with a mission to help the Carolina coaches make the switch from the single wing to the T-formation.

It was on Navy Field, where Graham is now working with the Tar Heel backs, that he first learned the intricacies of quarterbacking the T. A college graduate, fresh out of Northwestern where he was an All-American tailback in the single wing, Graham learned the quarterbacking job from books and work while a member of the Carolina Pre-Flight School in 1945.

Glen Killinger, then coach of the pre-flight team, had never had any experience with the T. Graham had to learn what he could on his own and his success was great as the Cloudbusters became one of the top service teams of the nation.

Discussing Carolina's switch to the T Graham said, "I think the move will come off very well. The team looks pretty good and the quarterbacks are all doing well handling the ball. Of course some of the boys are better passers than, others, and the taller boys are better suited than the short ones."

"Height is important to a quarterback; six feet should be sufficient for a boy."

Two Sport All-American

The very personable and handsome Graham was an outstanding athlete at Northwestern. He won All-America honors in both football and basketball and played two years of baseball, alternating at third base and the outfield. Actually Graham didn't enter the Evanston, Ill., school to play football. He received a basketball scholarship and didn't even go out for football his freshman year.

After graduation he came directly to the Navy Cadet school here at Carolina. He left here in February, 1945, and after moving about the country he ended up at Glenview, Ill., where the Cleveland Browns signed him to a contract. It was one of the wisest moves the Browns made, for Graham has been the spark that carried the team to four championships in four years of the now defunct All-American Conference, and one championship in two tries in the National Football League. The Browns reached the championship game this year only to lose to the Los Angeles Rams.

Asked what he thought about Bob Waterfield, the quarterback of the Rams, he answered > laughingly, "I think more of his wife (Jane Russell). Seriously Bob is a great quarterback; they're all good, you have to be good to be in the pros."

The question of college football as compared to the pro brand was brought up. "College ball is rougher than the professional type," Graham said. "Up there (in the pros) you play for a living and you know most of the opponents personally. Also you play the same team more than once a season while college teams meet only once and the college boys can afford to play mean."

Confronted with Army coach Earl Blaik's statement that 'a good college team could beat a good pro team' Graham said simply, "It's full of mud. Anyone with common sense will tell you that the pro team would win the majority of the time."

Browns Highly Spirited

Another aspect of the college-pro question was spirit and Graham had definite ideas on the question. "The spirit of the Brown's is greater than college teams. We've had boys come up from Notre Dame and other big schools and tell us that the Brown's spirit is greater. Contrary to popular belief the fellows play for the love of the game. Of ccurse they do it for a living, but I've seen many pro players who have made a costly mistake sit on a bench in the locker room and cry their eyes out for 10 minutes."

Tough Week With Virginia

by Biff Roberts

Four matches in a week's time with some of the toughest teams in the country is a poisonous diet but that's exactly what Carolina's golf team will have to digest this coming week if it expects to keep an undefeated flavor to its present string of four victories.

Virginia starts the invasion on the University's Finley Golf Course tomorrow at 1:30 and in rapid fire order follow Michigan on Wednesday, Ohio University on Friday, and Purdue on Saturday.

Langley has been the par buster thus far and it is conceivable that Coach Erickson might shove him up to the top position. Unfortunately this would envolve breaking up the twosomes which, in playing together, have done so well this far.

Langley is averaging one point below 70 for the first four matches which is a little better than two strokes under par for each 18.

HAD OUR FORMAL

-and-

OPENING

White, Wiess Score White scored on a wild pitch and Reeves walked to load the bases once again. A walk to Wiess forced the final run of the afternoon across.

Tar Heel coaches Bunn Hearn and Walt Rabb played the second infield with Harry Lloyd making his first home appearance at shortstop. He led off the Tar several good plays afield.

Ben Smith was the only Tar Heel substitute in yesterday's game.

ab po Carolina Lloyd, ss Hesmer, 2b White, lf Stevens, 3b Henning, 1b Smith. 1b 0 Reeves, cf Wiess, c 0 Pazdan, p 14 10 27 TOTALS 32 6 ab h po Pennsylvania Summerbell, 2b 4 Dauber, lf ..... Hay, rf Colgrove, c Anderson, c .. Farris, 1b Sattler, ss Alexander, cf Baumlar, 3b Comof, p Mecham, p . 0 *Brennon 0 0 0 yMaek 8 24 TOTALS x Struck out for Cornog in seventh.

y Struck out for Meacham in ninth.

Pennsylvania ...... 000 000 200-2 8 3 004 000 20x-6 10 0 Carolina

Summary: E-Sattler 2, Dueber; RBI -White, Stevens, Holt, Summerbell, Dueber, Wiess; SB - Wiess, Hesmer; DP-Summerbell to Sattler to Ferris; Pazda 1 to Hesmer to Henning; Lloyd to Hesmer to Smith; BB-Off Pazdan, 5; off Cornog. 4; off Mecham, 4; SO-By Pazdan, 5; by Cornog. 4 by Mecham, 1; Cornog, 7 in 6; off Meecham, 2 in 2;-LOB-Carolina, 8; Pennsylvania, 10; WP-Meecham; PB-Colgrove; HBP -Summerbell (Pazdan); WP-Pazdan; LP-Cornog

"A good quarterback should be able to play basketball," Graham said. "The pivoting spinning, and fast handwork helped me a lot when I went out for the team."

