

Parents Says Barton Lied McLeod Wants To Serve

 several fraternities imposing fines ranging from one to five dollars upon members who fail to vote tomorrow was "proof positive that the University Party maintains a selfish interest as regards student government and has no interest in the dormitory life of the campus."

Charging that Barton had "completely twisted the facts," UP Chairman Roberts asserted that "no one who is active in the UP had anything to do with the movement."

This so called fact-twisting, Roberts said, was in keeping with Barton's "usual method of getting votes regardless of the means."

"The drive to get all fraternity men to vote was started by some men who were tired of the lousy job which has been done by the present student government and wanted to get everybody out to vote," Roberts said.

Roberts added that he thought "Barton is just scared none of the fraternity men will vote for him. I frankly would be glad to see the entire campus get out and vote. I'm positive the vote would show the complete disgust which the majority of students now hold for student government, a regime which Barton would carry on."

"This statement is indicative of the hogwash Barton has been throwing out all during the campaign. It is a favorite trick of the SP to try to pit fraternity men against men living in dormitories," Roberts charged. "It is the SP that has always tried to draw a difference and then blame the UP. Barton's statement is carrying it just a little too far."

Roberts continued: "Barton also failed to state that none of the fraternity men were instructed how to vote. As I understand it, the move was started just to get people out to vote. While Barton glibly blustered on about everything else he failed to bring out this point.

"The UP is interested in getting better student government and not in stirring up trouble whenever possible as the SP bigwigs have done all this past year.

"Barton ought to check his facts before he makes such rash statements. It's a shame that a person who uses such cheap tactics should be allowed to run for the President of the Student Body here at Carolina."

 ture can be brought closer to the students and in such a way a closer check is maintained.

"Along the idea of closer relationship between the students and the legislature, a special committee within the legislature functions to see that the representatives from the various districts carry back to the students as many issues as possible and to collect ideas from them on proposed legislation. The student legislature could easily become a body of which all students may be justly proud.

"Fourthly, if given the opportunity to be of service I shall be unbiased in my decisions for student government. In no way shall I show partiality to any party or group, but, to the best of my ability, I shall try to uphold the best interests of all the students.

"An issue so often misconstrued is that a party label obligates one to be the servant only of the party nominating him. However, the foremost responsibility is not to way in issue and I certainly made no statement with this in mind.

"The only basis for the statement attributed to me was a question from the audience as to whether or not I thought the inferior training received by Negroes in undergraduate schools had any bearing upon the grades they received in graduate school.

"This question was answered in the affirmative without any further elaboration or comment whatever. Aside from this question and answer, nothing was said any one group, but to all the students. Therefore, with this in mind, I sincerely pledge to all the students my very best efforts to be their servant."

that pertained to grading or discrimination in any way.

"I have consistently refused to take any position or express any opinion on this issue and I do not intend to change that policy.

"As to the statement that the Negro is largely responsible for his own plight, must plead guilty. It has always been my contention that the Negro who sits in a segregated balcony of a theater is just as responsible for the segregation as the man who decrees that he should so sit."

Attorneys for the NAACP charged at the end of last semester that certain faculty members of the Law school here were discriminating against the Negro students in their grades. The lawyers did not name the professors.

petent to act in cases involving graduate students.

The invaluable benefits of our student self-government demand that we be ever vigilant, and that we jealously guard our cherished tradition. It is a price well worth paying. No part of our student government can be allowed to deteriorate.

Instead, we must continually search for weaknesses and cancerous growths that must be removed if student government is to continue to serve the students. Your vote for this constitutional amendment will remove a serious obstruction from the path of the continued improvement of our student judiciary and the Honor System itself. —Larry F. Botto

Workshop To Meet

The Arts and Crafts workshop, sponsored by the recreation committee of the YWCA will hold its first meeting tonight in the cabinet room of the "Y" from 4 until 6 o'clock.

The purpose of the workshop is to give students the opportunity to learn the principles of textile painting, monogramming, paper decorating, crocheting, etc.

It is also an opportunity to spend some leisure time in a useful and profitable way. All who are interested in trying their skill or would like to learn are welcome.

New officers are Susan Briggs, chairman; Toni Kelly, chairman of publicity; Edith Whittington, in care of materials and supplies; and secretary Shirley Whitford.

House Speaks Today At Greensboro High

Chancellor R. B. House will speak tonight at the Greensboro high school Employer-Employee banquet.

The banquet, which is sponsored by the Distributors club, will be held in the Masonic temple.

Correction

Saturday's Daily Tar Heel in a headline incorrectly stated the time for the University parents' day, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

Parents day will be held Sunday, April 27.

Folk Dance Club Planned

A revival of square dancing will be staged here tomorrow afternoon with a meeting of the Square Dance club at 4 p. m. in the downstairs women's gymnasium (men enter through the side entrance through the swimming pool parking lot.)

All persons interested in square dancing have been invited to attend.

Primary objective of the group is to learn more about square dances and the calling of square dances as they are done throughout this country. Director Ruth Price, dancing professor here, also has a wealth of foreign dances which the group will draw upon.

Miss Price stresses the fact that experience is not important. "Beginners who sincerely want to learn and work with us are more than welcome," she said yesterday.

The group will meet regularly on Wednesday afternoons.

Vacancies Exist

Vacancies still exist for qualified graduating seniors and graduates to attend this summer's training program for Marine corps officers.

Reporting date at the Marines corps school, Quantico, Va., is July 9. Officer candidates will attend a 10-week course at Quantico, and then attend a five-month basic officers' course there.

Interested students may contact Major F. C. Caldwell at the Naval armory for further information.

Both Parties Are Now Printing Newspapers

For the first time in its history, the University Party is printing a campaign newspaper.

Scheduled to come out tonight, the paper is edited by Biff Roberts, UP chairman. It will be four pages, size 8½ by 11.

The Student Tar Heel, published for the last six years at election time by the Student Party, hit the campus yesterday.
