

Prof To Leave Sunny South For Artic Trek

by Angelos Russos

R. MacCarthy, University geology prof, leaves the sunny south this summer for an arctic trek to do research on permafrost—ground that never thaws completely.

It will be the seventh consecutive year that the professor has spent the summer in the far north. Last year it was mainland Alaska and the Aleutian islands. This year he will probably spend all his time on the mainland, he said.

Dr. MacCarthy's research is for the U. S. Geological survey, but has been primarily financed and sponsored by the Office of Naval Research.

His work will benefit military and civilian alike, for the results of Dr. MacCarthy's tests on permafrost will show how man can master the ground which proves so tricky during construction of all types.

Foundations must be built on solid supports, the professor pointed out, yet the ice may be 1,000 feet deep. In some areas it may thaw only six inches, but elsewhere it may thaw as deep as six feet, leaving a surface of slush.

Study To Be Made Of Policy For Student Draft Deferment

Five hundred undergraduate students will fill out questionnaires today in conjunction with a study by the Carnegie Corporation concerning the effect of draft and deferment policies upon college students.

The questionnaire which will be administered to a representative sample of the student body deals with the student's adjustment to college life, his present educational problems, his future vocational plans and the impact of the present national emergency upon students.

The sessions for filling out the questionnaire will be held in the Venable hall auditorium at 10 and 11 a. m. and 3:30 and 7:30 p. m. today.

Ten other schools are taking part in the Carnegie survey: Dartmouth, Fisk, Harvard, Princeton, Michigan, UCLA, Wayne University, University of Texas, Wesleyan University, Cornell and UNC.

This survey is not to be confused with the study which Dean Fred Weaver will initiate in the three units of the Consolidated University next fall, although the present inquiry should provide much helpful information for the broader study, according to Chancellor House.

Adams Talks In Aycock Dorm Tonite

Dr. E. M. Adams, professor of philosophy, will lead the eighth in a series of Aycock dorm discussions tonight. His topic will be, "For Those Questioning—The Skeptics Viewpoint."

The discussion, sponsored by the YMCA, is scheduled for the Aycock social room, for 7:30 p. m. tonight.

Dorm discussions are resumed this week after a delay of two consecutive weeks, last week's discussion being called off after a decision of the IFC not to discuss the topic, "Hazing."

Dr. Adams has had much experience at this type of discussion and should prove valuable on this topic.
