State Report Absolves Huggins In Home Case

by Rolfe Neill

A state auditor's report made public yesterday in effect said C. B. Huggins, maintenance superintendent of Woollen gym, did not illegally use University materials in the construction of his home.

At the same time, the report made four strong recommendations.

The grand jury of Orange county Superior court in its December term found that evidence presented did not warrant bringing criminal charges against Huggins. However, the jury referred the case to the University "for any further investigation necessary."

Vice-President W. D. Carmichael Jr. had an investigation made by the state auditor who turned in his report to Carmichael yesterday. Carmichael passed it on to Solicitor William Murdock who said the report closed the case as far as he was concerned. Carmichael's letter to Murdock accompanying the report said in closing:

"In the future the operation and maintenance of the gymnasium and Athletic association which hitherto have been conducted somewhat autonomously, will be integrated into the overall maintenance and operation of the University and controlled in the same manner as is every other department of the University."

State Auditor H. L. Bridges' report recommended: "1. That when employees are required to work overtime and are allowed to take leave to compensate for this overtime, that the department should keep a complete record of the overtime and a corresponding record of the compensatory (See HUGGINGS, page 8)

Newspaperman Father Tells Of His New Son

(Roland Giduz, a graduate of 1946 and Managing editor of The Daily Tar Heel in 1946-47, heads the Chapel Hill bureau of the Durham Herald. Foo as he was known in his collegiate days—came bursting into the office yesterday afternoon with the following. We liked it and we hope you will.—Ed)

By A Happy Father

A 10-pound, 11-ounce baby boy—William Roland—was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roland Giduz at 12:39 a.m. yesterday.

The healthy red-faced, bawling youngster was the largest baby to be delivered this year in the Watts hospital of nearby Durham, according to authorities there. Both mother and prodigy were reported in excellent condition by attending physicians.

Dr. F. Norman Bowles of Durham, who delivered the infant, announced the event to a sleepy-eyed throng in the obstetrical ward of the hospital shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. His announcement climaxed a wait of approximately 10 hours on the part of the mother—pretty, brunette, 25-year-old Helen Jeter Giduz, a native of Union, S. C., and the present clerk of the Town of Chapel Hill.

Within a few minutes of the delivery nurses wheeled the vociferous infant into his mother's room where he held a two-minute press conference and posed reluctantly for a photographer (f. 16 400th, bounce light). The tired little tyke, obviously fatigued by his long journey, declined to answer directly a number of questions from a reporter, and appeared considerably less (See DADDY, page 8)

Kappa Delta, ZBT Lead Averages

Kappa Delta, the campus' sixth and newest sorority, is making a habit of winning big events.

Thursday it was the Sigma Chi derby. Yesterday when the all-sorority averages for winter quarter were released, the KD's led.

In the fraternity division the Greek organizations shifted around. Usually the ZBT's, the TEP's, and the Pi Lambda Phi's are in the first four or five. Instead, a wholesale rearrangement took place with only the ZBT's in the first five—and they were first. Filling out the rest of the top five were Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Delta Psi, and Kappa Alpha.

The all-fraternity average was but 3 of a point off from the sampling average of that for men's dormitories. The all-sorority average

Kay E. Lewis Dies; Burial Is Tomorrow

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL
BEAVER, Penn., April 12—Kay E. Lewis, a University of North Carolina senior who left school this week due to illness, died here at 5:30 p. m. Friday. He was 22.

Mr. Lewis had been stricken for some time with Hodgkins disease. Only recently had he told his close friends that he had the fatal disease. Mr. Lewis left UNC Tuesday for his home here.

While attending the University he was an outstanding athlete and intramural manager for his fraternity, Sigma Chi. Last year he was given trophies for being the outstanding athlete and manager in the entire University intramural program.

Mr. Lewis was a platoon leader in the NROTC his junior year, and was a member of the 13 club, a social organization.

Funeral will be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday in Beaver. Among those attending will be several of his fraternity brothers from the University. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. Eugene Lewis, and a brother.

Argentina Is Topic For Monday Supper

Continuing their Monday night series of supper discussions of different countries and their relationship with others, the YMCA and Cosmopolitan club will discuss "Argentina and the World today" tomorrow night.

Leading the discussion will be Enrique de Ezcurra,

'Ethics In Government' Will Be Topic; Forum Follows Talk; GM Reception Set

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, described by a Chapel Hill friend as a "virile, informed realist," will speak here tonight in Hill hall at 8:30 on "Ethics in Government."

He will arrive at Raleigh-Durham airport at 6:49 p.m. and be met by President Gordon Gray; Bill Friday, his assistant; Bob Thomason, chairman of the sponsoring Carolina Political Union, and Leta Muller, CPU member.

SEN. PAUL DOUGLAS

After tonight's talk, Senator Douglas will answer questions during a forum. Following the forum the audience will adjourn to Graham Memorial for a reception.

The Illinois Democrat will spend tonight here and breakfast tomorrow with Miss Mary B. Gilson, a long-time friend. In an article for The Daily Tar Heel last week, Miss Gilson recounted her friendship with the Senator and his family.

Senator Douglas leaves for Washington tomorrow on a 10:45 a.m. flight from Raleigh-Durham airport.

A Senator since 1948, Douglas has a long record of service as an economist and industrial relations expert.

He was born in Salem, Mass., and reared on a farm in Maine. He worked his way through Bowdoin College, receiving a Master's and a Ph.D. degree from Columbia university. He taught economics several years before accepting an appointment as assistant professor of industrial relations at the University of Chicago in 1920.

Douglas is the author of "Wages and the Family," which brought him national renown among social scientists. He also wrote "Real Wages in the United State (1890-1926)," which led to his appointment to consultant positions with New York State and Pennsylvania agencies concerned with unemployment, and to the directorship of the Swathmore Unemployment Study.

His leading publication, "The Theory of Wages," brought him a $5,000 international prize.

Douglas became an active participant in public affairs when he undertook to investigate and expose the activities of Samuel Insull in the sale of "watered" public utility stocks, which were controlled by the massive Insull holding company. Douglas helped organize the Illinois Consumers league to combat the Insull group.

Douglas served with the Marines in World War II and was wounded twice.

Fraternities and their members are running true to form.

The Greek outfit whose candidate lost in the presidential race Wednesday is at the bottom of the all-fraternity averages released yesterday.

The fraternity whose candidate just squeaked in, got just squeezed out of first since.

Faculty Club Set For Talk

The Men's Faculty club will hear about "A Mission to Mecca" at its Tuesday luncheon meeting at the Carolina Inn at 1 p. m.

Capt. J. S. Keating, professor of Naval science here, will tell of his experiences with Ibn Saud of Saudia Arabia.

While commander of a destroyer squadron, Capt. Keating was ordered by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in February, 1945, to transport the Arabian monarch from his native land to Great Bitter Lake, Suez canal. Capt. Keating had Ibn Saud aboard his flagship, the USS Murphy.

proved the girls far superior to the boys. The sorority coeds averaged 2.2943 while the fraternity men had 2.78995. However, there were 280 coed grades to be averaged while the males had 1,075.

The men's dorm sampled average was 2.7508.

The averages as released by Ray Jefferies, assistant to the Dean of Students follow. The numbers in parentheses indicate the fraternity's position at the end of the fall quarter.
