

Queen Gives Ways To End One's Conflict

by Deenie Schoeppe

"The way to solve conflict and tension is through methods of love and reconciliation rather than force."

The lady who is doing her share in solving the conflict has been on the campus for the past three days. She is Miss Anne Queen, college secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, who has been discussing service projects with students and faculty members here.

In each project, students from various countries are taught cooperative living, Miss Queen explained. They are able to understand each others' problems, to study, and work on a cooperative basis, she said. Central theme in all undertakings of the committee is silent meditation which allows each student to have communion with God in his own way, the secretary pointed out.

The committee has organized summer work camps in this country, Mexico and Europe, and for the first time in Haiti and Algeria. These camps bring students into firsthand contact with problems in conflict areas and help them to meet specific needs in their communities. A summer at one of these campus will cost a student $135, and scholarship aid is available. Further information may be obtained at the YMCA.

Miss Queen is a native of Canton. She has her office in Greensboro.

Three Appointed To New Hospital

Three important appointments to the staff of the new N. C. teaching hospital, which is to open this summer in conjunction with the four-year medical school, were announced yesterday by Chancellor Robert B. House and Dr. Robert R. Cadmus, hospital administrator.

Miss Margaret Moore, educational consultant with the American Physical Therapy Association, New York, has been appointed chief physiotherapist for the new hospital.

Mrs. Mary Bell Jones, assistant to the director of nursing service at Orange Memorial Hospital, Orange, N. J., will be night nursing supervisor in the nursing service department.

William West Taylor, Durham, who is to receive his doctorate here soon, received a joint appointment as chief pharmacist in the hospital and an instructor on the staff of the School of Pharmacy.

Miss Moore attended public schools in Richmond, Va., received a B.S. degree at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va., a certificate in physical therapy at Walter Reed Army hospital, Washington, D. C., and won her Master's degree in physical therapy at the Medical College of Virginia.

From January of 1949 to August of 1950 she was assistant technical director of physical therapy at the University of Colorado medical center, Denver, Colo., when she became educational consultant with the American Physical Therapy Association.

She holds an active reserve status as a captain with the Women's Medical Service Corps in the U. S. Army.

Mrs. Jones, a native of Kentucky, attended Randolph Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Va., and the University of Michigan School of Nursing at Ann Arbor, Mich.

She joined the staff of Orange Memorial hospital in Orange, N. J., in 1935, was on the nursing staff as a head nurse until June 1938, when she became assistant to the director of nursing service at Orange Memorial.

Mr. Taylor attended public schools in Durham and in 1947 received a degree in pharmacy from UNC here. He served in the Navy from January 1944 to August 1946.

From March 1948 until September 1948 he was chief pharmacist at Strong Memorial hospital in Rochester, N. Y. Except for brief intervals, from 1946 to 1949 he was employed as pharmacy interne and pharmacist at Duke hospital, Durham.

Reading Conference Is Set Here, Says Phillips

A conference on reading devoted to problems of developmental and remedial reading in both elementary and high schools will be held here in Peabody hall on May 2-3, Dean Guy B. Phillips of the School of Education announced yesterday.

"This conference is the result of widespread interest and demand and is the first of annual conferences on these subjects to be sponsored by the School of Education," Dean Phillips said.

A general session on Friday night, May 2, will open the conference. Saturday's program will consist of a short general session followed by several sectional meetings according to special interests, such as reading readiness, film readers, materials, high school reading, and others.

The conference will close with an informal luncheon. Complete program will be available soon.

The conference is being directed by Carl Brown and J. T. Hunt, faculty members of the School of Education. Reading specialists from North Carolina colleges and public schools will participate. The meetings are open to interested teachers, administrators and parents. There is no registration fee.

Dean Phillips called special attention to offerings during the Summer Session in which courses in both elementary and high school reading will be featured.

"Reading ability is recognized as being basic to successful achievement in all of the learning areas," he said. "The School of Education is committed to a program for the improvement of reading ability in North Carolina."

This program involves three types of emphasis. Dean Phillips said specialized courses are offered on the campus to help teachers, in both the pre-service and the in-service phases of their training, to teach reading effectively.

Further emphasis, he said, is given by making available staff personnel in reading for special services to the public schools of the state.

A third emphasis will be "the development of clinical facilities on the University campus to aid teachers in diagnosing reading difficulties and in projecting a corrective program for pupils who need help in reading."

NROTC Unit Now Has New T-Sergeant

T-Sgt. John A. Quinn, III, USMC, has reported for duty at the NROTC unit here. He relieved M-Sgt. Buford E. Wheeler who was assigned to the Marine Corps school, Quantico, Va.

The new sergeant last had duty aboard the USS Valley Forge where he served for 26 months. While aboard the Valley Forge, Quinn saw duty in the Philippine islands and at Hong Kong. He was in this area when the Korean war started. While in the Korean area Sgt. Quinn received a letter of recommendation and three battle stars.

The new NROTC staffer has put in eight years with the Marine corps. During this time he saw duty with the Sixth Marine division and action during World War II with this unit on Okinawa. Later he took part in the occupation of north China.

The sergeant's duties at UNC will be in keeping with his past responsibilities as an instructor and a specialist in infantry. Sgt. Quinn will be in charge of the pistol and rifle team, head the NROTC drill team, and assist Major F. C. Caldwell in infantry drills and instruction.

Sgt. Quinn is a native of Texas and attended school at North Dallas high school. He is married to the former Miss Rose Chenault, Phoenix, Ariz. They reside at 901 Dawes street.

Applications Due

Applications for the Marine Platoon Leaders course and the Officers Candidate course programs must be submitted prior to May 1. Maj. F. C. Caldwell, USMC, reminded students yesterday.

Major Caldwell said PLC candidates accepted this year will attend a six-week course at the Marine Recruit depot, Parris Island, S. C. There will be two sessions, June 12-25 and July 26-Sept. 8, he pointed out. Candidates may choose between the two.

Students interested in becoming Marine second lieutenants should contact Major Caldwell at the Naval armory or the Marine sergeant there, T-Sgt. J. A. Quinn.

Jayne Winfield, 17-year-old Washington pianist, and Marguerite Gillet of the orchestra's first violin section.

By the time the Symphony winds up its tour, it will have traveled approximately 4,000 miles, given 20 children's concerts and 20 adult programs.
