

Track Team Meets Strong Maryland Today

Tar Heels Try For 1st Win Of Season Against Champs

By Tom Peacock

The University of North Carolina outdoor track team, beaten 11-50 by Princeton in its only showing this year, will try to get its first win here today on Fetzer Field against Maryland University, the Southern Conference champions.

The Terrapins are heavy favorites to take the meet from Carolina. Coach Dale Ranson charges, but Ranson and his team still have a chance to upset Maryland and walk off with a victory.

Field Events Best

Carolina will be banking heavily on the second and third spots in the sashes, pole vault, and field events. Tar Heel shot putter George Morris will have to do better than he has ever done before to beat Maryland's Champion, Jack Untermyer, but Morris has a better than-even chance to take the title.

Frank Scott, defending titleholder in the 100-yard dash, should give the Tar Heels a win in his department, but Maryland's ace, Marty Cohen, cannot be discounted. Jeff Newton of Carolina is also strong in the dashes.

Cohen Leads Terps

Cohen is one of the best hurdlers in the Conference, and he is expected to take one or two hurdle events or the broad jump, depending upon how the Terp coach uses him. Sam Jordan of Carolina tied for first in the pole vault at the SC Indoor Games here at Chapel Hill, and he is a slight favorite, but his teammate, Romas White beat him against Princeton and will be out to win.

It appears that Maryland will be heavy favorites in all the distance races, and is at least a tossup in the middle sprints, with indoor champions Al Buehler and John Tibbitts its best contestants. Buehler handily won the 880 at the Indoor Games, and another Terrapin, Bob Browning is the half mile defending champion from last year's dual meet, so the best race there will be between two Maryland men.

Walker, Beall, Tossups

Tar Heel Bill Walker is a tossup to take the javelin, an event that he won against Princeton, and Sonny Beall, another Princeton winner, is strong in the 120-yard high hurdles.

Tar Heel Golfers Play At Davidson

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL

CHARLOTTE, April 17—North Carolina's golf team arrived here late this afternoon and immediately started practice on the Myers Park Country Club course for tomorrow's Southern Conference match with Davidson.

A squad of 12 men made the trip with Coach Chuck Erickson, six varsity players and six members of the junior varsity team. The jay-vees have a match with Charlotte Central High School tomorrow at the Charlotte Country Club.

Scheduled to play for the all-winning Tar Heels are the same six that routed Holy Cross 22½-4½, on Wednesday. Unless Coach Erickson makes another change in his lineup that would put Bob Black and Lew Brown in the first foursome, Tommy Langley and Jim Ferree following them, and Bill Williamson and Pete Parker in the fifth and sixth positions.

Beat Davidson Earlier

Parker made his first entrance into the Carolina lineup against the Crusaders Wednesday afternoon and he came through with a creditable 74, third low for the day. He and Williamson are both from Charlotte and know the Myers Park course well.

Davidson was the second team to fall to the Tar Heels this season in a match played earlier at Carolina's Finley Golf Course. That match went 19½-7½ but the Wildcats had just returned from a trip to Florida that day and probably were tired from the journey.

UNC Lacrosse Team Meets Washington

Coach Alan Moore sends his young lacrosse team against Washington College of Maryland this afternoon on Navy Field with hopes of improving the Tar Heel's 2-3-1 won-loss record.

Carolina has beaten Georgetown and Norfolk Naval Air Station, tied Lehigh, and lost to Yale, Williams, and Dartmouth. The last two games, the victory over Norfolk NAS and the tie with Lehigh, proved coach Moore's point in scheduling the rough northern teams early in the season. Although Carolina didn't win those games, the Tar Heels picked up valuable experience and it is beginning to pay off.

Washington College is from the lacrosse center of the nation, that area including Maryland, and Pennsylvania. The Cardinals won 10 and lost two last year, and one of the victories coming at the expense of Carolina. They are expected to be very strong this year and will be favored in today's game.

Carolina's starting lineup will probably have Floyd at the goal; Stokes, Fields, and Davis on defense; Kaufman at center; Dawes Pillsbury, and Ernst on attack; and Bell and Cole in the midfield positions.

The first team is pretty strong but coach Moore has been having trouble with his reserve strength. The Tar Heels lack the strong bench reserves that are necessary for a winning team.

Walt Ernst is the top attack man for the Tar Heels. Ernst was high scorer against Norfolk with five goals. He scored two goals in one minute early in the third quarter.

Co-captains of the lacrosse team are Andy Bell and Buddy Kaufman. Bell, a senior from Greensboro, is a gymnastics ace and was co-captain of that sport last year.

Kaufman is from Baltimore, Md., and has a year of experience in lacrosse. He played one year

Netters Play Kalamazoo Today; Tar Heels Try For 15th Straight

By Vardy Buckalew

The Carolina tennis team, which is currently leading the spring sports parade will go into action tomorrow in quest of its fifteenth straight win of the season, when they meet the team from Kalamazoo College of Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Kalamazoo is perennially a strong team and is led this year by number one man, Dick Cain, who gave Del Sylvia, Carolina's number one man, a sound beating last year. However, coach Kenfield expects to take this one, and will be depending on his strength in the singles lineup to provide the margin. This lineup will probably be Del Sylvia, Herb Browne, Bob Payne, Sam Handel, Bill Izlar, and Ronny Kerdasha.

In the doubles, Coach Kenfield will probably change the lineup which he has used throughout the first half of the season. In order to strengthen a weak spot in the third doubles, he has shifted Bill Izlar from the number one doubles and teamed him with Ronny Kerdasha. Sam Handel has traded places with Izlar and is now playing in the number one doubles with Del Sylvia. The number two doubles is composed of Payne and Browne.

The first three men in the singles lineup have lost only three matches among them so far this year. Sylvia has lost one, Browne has lost two, and Payne is undefeated. Browne and Payne are freshmen and captain Sylvia is a junior.

On Saturday afternoon the team will travel to Durham to take on the Blue Devils from Duke, and will probably be put to their severest test of the season. According to comparative scores the Devils are stronger than Carolina and Coach Ken-field has been working hard all week in preparation for the match.

The match with Presbyterian, which Carolina won 8-1, was scheduled for Tuesday but was pushed up to Monday in order to give coach Kenfield three days to work with his boys in preparation for the matches Friday and Saturday. Coach Kenfield explained, "We are over-matched right now. We have been playing so many matches lately that I haven't had time to correct the boys' mistakes when I see them."

The team has two more matches scheduled for Chapel Hill before leaving on an extended northern trip on May 3. The trip opens with a match against William & Mary.
