

Duke Netters Topple Carolina, 5-4

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL.
 DURHAM, April 19 — Duke's number three doubles team of Bill Schemill and Buzz Heddleman won the third and deciding set, 6-4 from Tar Heels Bill Izlar and Johnny Booker to win that match here today and break the Tar Heels' victory string at 15 straight.

The Blue Devils took a 4-2 lead in the singles matches but watched the Tar Heels tie the match up with wins in the number's one and two doubles. It was as close as a tennis match could be and all but one match went the limit of three sets.

Del Sylvia, Tar Heel co-captain and number one player, gave Carolina a lead with a victory over Duke's Kes Deimling, reserve basketball player. Sylvia was at his best form in beating the Duke ace.

Sam Handle, army veteran playing in the number four spot was the only other Tar Heel to win a singles match. Handle took Duke's Ralph Pierce in straight sets for an easy win.

Payne and Brown Lose
 Bob Payne and Herb Brown, Carolina freshman playing in the one and two spots respectively, did not have the college experience to cope with the Duke netters.

Payne took his match with Norm Schimmerling to three sets before losing, as did Brown in his match with Duke's Bill Schemill.

Carolina's Bill Izlar lost to Buzz Heddleman of Duke in the number five singles, and Tar Heel Ronnie Kerdasha dropped his match to Hall Lipton in three sets.

With the chips down, Del Sylvia and Sam Handle whipped Deimling and Lipton in the first doubles match to keep Carolina in the running. Payne and Brown, playing together like veterans, topped Schillinger and Pierce in the number two doubles to tie up at 4-all.

In all the matches, Duke won the first set and Carolina the second. The more experienced Duke squad played well under the pressure and took the match.

Going into today's match the Tar Heels had whipped 15 straight foes without too much trouble. Carolina coach John Kenfield had predicted that today's match would be one of the toughest his team would have all year.

The other team that Kenfield predicted would give his team trouble was Rollins, and the Florida school's squad plays the Tar Heels in Chapel Hill on Tuesday.

Down In Front

In this day of high-powered athletics where colleges and universities strive to outstrip each other in the major sports of football and basketball and ready-made high school stars are sought so vigorously, we have tended to get away from the basic college athletics—participation for all students.

An increased intramural program has been one answer to the problem. In fact, our mural department here has done a tremendous job in providing athletics for all who want to participate. But this still leaves something to be desired. Regardless of how good an intramural program may be, students still have a great desire to be on a team which represents the school.

That's where sports such as lacrosse come in. The stick sport is relatively a new one on this campus, having been started just four years ago. The lacrosse record for the few seasons hasn't been a great one. In fact the win side of the ledger has been beet red most of the time. But the sport is growing. The teams are getting better. And fortunately, more people are getting to play.

We don't have many lacrosse stars enter Carolina because there aren't many high schools which breed lacrosse players. The big exception to this is in Maryland where you find probably the best lacrosse in the country played. But in our case most of the boys who have taken up lacrosse here learned all they know about the game even footing and the competition for positions on the team gets pretty keen.

Coach Al Moore has been a great help in furthering the lacrosse as is practical has done a lot to boost the interest in the sport.

Now don't get the idea that the Carolina lacrosse team is just an over-emphasized intramural sport. The boys have worked on the game long hours in the afternoon and when they play a game they play to give Carolina another athletic win.

Although most of the boys who play were new to the game when they first came here, the Tar Heels have turned out some good individual players. This year's starting lineup points this out clearly. Take goalie Lew Floyd for instance. His record for saves this season has been phenomenal. Gymnast Andy Bell is another who started lacrosse when he came to Carolina. This season he is co-captain of the team.

There are others, of course, who have been playing the game for a good while and they have been a great help in teaching the game to the newcomers. Bud Kauffman, co-captain with Bell, freshman Dick Harrall, Ted Dawes and others had experience in the game before they came here and they have contributed much to the working of the team.

The stickmen have a losing record thus far this season but they've done all right considering the teams they have played. They've won two games from Georgetown and Norfolk Naval Air Station and they might have made Lehigh the third victim if a Lehigh goal with 12 seconds to go hadn't tied the score. The defeats have come by hands of such outstanding teams as Williams, Dartmouth, Yale, and Washington College.

That's not a bad record for a relatively new team and there's little doubt that the record will get better in the year's to come.

But, the record is not the most important thing. The fact that lacrosse has given a lot of athletes a chance to play on a University team and has encouraged athletic participation is its best recommendation.

The sport should continue to grow here and maybe in the near future it will be classed as a major sport. There's no doubt about it, lacrosse has done a lot for the athletic situation at Carolina. With the proper handling it can do an even better job in the years to come.

Blue, White Game Heads Sports Card

The Blue-White football game takes a big share of the limelight here this week as Carolina's spring sports teams push ahead into another heavy week's work.

Saturday's annual intra-squad affair is slated for Kenan Stadium, concluding 20 days of off-season practice under the new Split-T formation.

Baseball at home with N. C. State, tennis with powerful Rollins College, and golf with Wake Forest's fine team also share the headlines.

The schedule:

Tuesday: Baseball—N. C. State at Chapel Hill—3:30 p.m.; Track—N. C. State at Raleigh; Tennis—Rollins at Chapel Hill—3 p.m.

Friday: Baseball—Clemson at Clemson, S. C.

Saturday: Baseball—Furman at Greenville, S. C.; Tennis—Davidson at Davidson; Golf—Wake Forest at Chapel Hill—1:30 p.m.; Track—V.M.I. at Lexington and Penn Relays at Philadelphia; Lacrosse—Norfolk Naval Air Station at Chapel Hill.

Mural Track Qualifying Set Tomorrow; Finals Thursday

The annual intramural track meet gets underway tomorrow afternoon with the holding of qualifying for the fraternity division in the pole vault, high jump, broad jump, shot put, and the discus.

Qualifying will continue for the fraternity men on Tuesday with the finals for both fraternity and dormitory teams on Thursday. All dormitory entrants qualify for the finals.

There will be 13 events in both divisions, five field events, two relays, and six individual running events.

Qualifying for the pole vault, broad jump and shot put starts at 4 p.m. tomorrow with high jump and discus competition following at 5. The times will be reversed on Tuesday for those wishing to qualify then.

Finals Thursday

The finals of the meet will start at 4:00 Thursday afternoon with the 60-yard dash. The pole vault, high jump, broad jump, and shot put will also start at that time and will run simultaneously.

In addition to the field events

there will be the 60-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 300-yard run, three-quarter mile run, 70-yard high hurdles, and 70-yard low hurdles.

Trophies will be awarded to the individual winners and to the championship organization of each division.

Spike and indoor track shoes will not be allowed in the meet.

Local Boy

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL.
HICKORY, April 19—Ed Kinney, professional of the Finley Golf Course at the University of North Carolina made a good showing here at the Carolinas Open golf tournament which ended yesterday but missed getting in the money by two strokes.

Kinney finished the 72 hole tournament with a total of 304 strokes but Grant Bennett and Joe Worrell were the last pros to finish in the money at 302. Kinney, who has not been playing much this year, had rounds of 74-78-76-76—304.
