

Call Out 300 Police

Paint, Bombs, Wasps Beleaguer Professor

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL
ROME, Italy, April 23—Professor Umberto Calosso, a Social Democrat deputy in the Italian Parliament was given protection by 300 armed police here this week as he concluded a lecture tour.

The action came after university students in Rome threw a pot of red paint over him, broke up his lecture with 12 "stink bombs," and released a swarm of wasps just as the lecture was scheduled to begin.

The whole university was cordoned off this week and only bona-fide students were allowed inside. Fifty plainclothes men scattered in the buildings, and eight more attended the actual lectures.

After the lecture, five plainclothes men escorted Professor Calosso to his car, and a Jeep-load of policemen followed. Immediately after the professor left, the 300 armed men then marched out of the university.

Duke Selects Durham Boy As President

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL
DURHAM, April 23—Dante L. Germino, of Durham was elected president of the Men's Student Government Association yesterday in runoff elections at Duke University.

Germino was elected by a margin of only 21 votes as he defeated Narvel Crawford of Asheville. Election returns gave Germino 610 votes, and Crawford 589.

In another runoff election yesterday, Jack Johnston of Asheville defeated Clayton McCracken of Asheville for the presidency of the Junior class.

Robert Pierry of Teaneck, N. J., won the only other post in yesterday's runoff by defeating Lyle Connor of Bryantville, Mass., for the post of president of the senior class in the College of Engineering.

Pedals Backwards, Practices Juggling

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL
CAMBRIDGE, Eng. April 23—Sgt. Ives, organizer of the Cambridge Accident Prevention Council, said today, "In late years there has been a distinct improvement in the behavior of cyclists and in the standard of maintenance of undergraduate bicycles."

Ives, criticizing the obstruction caused by undergraduate bicycles in the Senate House Passage, and around The Whim, said comparatively few undergraduates were involved in the 481 accidents which took place last year. Four people were killed and nine seriously injured.

A second-year Queens' engineer demonstrated one method of easing the traffic congestion. Sitting astride a uni-cycle, the student said, "My repertoire is still rather limited, but I can go backwards for short distances, and I'm practising juggling for Poppy Day."

Dr. Baumann Here Sunday

Dr. Henry Baumann of Davidson College will present the third University sermon, sponsored by the YWCA, Sunday night at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall. Topic of Dr. Baumann's sermon will be "How Can God Be Known."

The University Glee Clubs, under the direction of Professor Joel Carter and William Whitesides will assist in the service as will Miss Anna Beason, Miss Carol Kelly and Mrs. John Riebel of the YWCA.

Phi Hears Adams On Totalitarianism

Dr. E. M. Adams of the Philosophy Department, spoke this week to the Phi assembly on the development of totalitarianism in Russia and the factors present which contribute to it.

Next week's lecture to the Phi will be followed by a buffet supper. Each member will invite a faculty member as his guest. Following the supper, faculty and Phi members will debate a bill declaring that "The United States is in grave danger of succumbing to totalitarianism from within."

ers graduating from the squad. Buddy has been in the center position and has shown up well in midfield play throughout the season. Fields has seen plenty of action in his defensive position.

Andy Bell, the other co-captain will return for another year on the midfield group and sophomore Tommy Stokes will be back for two more seasons.

This experience should add up to a fine team next year and move the Tar Heel lacrosse rating up in the nation.
