Radio Station To Be Built Here Soon

Plans for a commercial AM radio station in Chapel Hill are now almost complete, owner Roland McClamroch, Jr., said yesterday.

"We are all ready to go as soon as the Federal Communications Commission gives us the OK," he said. "We are now about fifth on the list of permit applications."

The tower and studio of the new station will be constructed on property already selected on the Durham Road. The station will employ seven or eight persons, McClamroch said.

Trustee Visiting Group Agrees New Student Union Needed

by Bob Slough

The Trustee Visiting Committee of the Consolidated University yesterday heard a plea from graduate student James Wallace for a new student union building. The committee agreed unanimously a new building is needed.

Wallace, activities director for the present student union, proposed that the new structure be placed in the area of Emerson Field.

Using such phrases as "living room of the campus" and "home away from home," Wallace proposed a building that would provide a rich variety of recreational and social activities, and a campus center around which student activities can focus.

Wallace told the committee that counters placed at Graham Memorial revealed that 4,351 students passed by the Emerson Field side of Lenoir Hall while only 491 passed by Graham Memorial during the same hours on the same day.

Stressing the point, Wallace said the "campus has gradually grown away" from the present student union building. He asked that the new building be constructed nearer to the lower quadrangle.

Only three members of the 12 man committee made the trip here yesterday. Wallace told them, "We are partial to the area at Emerson Field . . . because by placing the proposed building in this area most of the students could be reached."

Wallace told the group the present union building had been projected when the student enrollment here was slightly over 2,000 and the "needs of 6,000 or more students cannot be adequately met."

A student union as proposed by Wallace would include a small theater with movie and slide projection facilities, banquet hall with floor usable for dances, bowling alleys, billiard rooms, grill and soda fountain, conference rooms, and overnight guest rooms.

One committee member told Wallace, "There is no question to the argument that you need a student union building, but we must look to the future in planning it because as you have indicated your campus center has in the past years moved away from Graham Memorial."

It was at this point that Wallace indicated the preference for the area around Emerson Field.

Before any action can be taken the three man committee must refer the matter to the Board of Trustees for further consideration.

Operation Of Inn Clarified By Letter

A letter from the state auditor to John Sprunt Hill, Durham, donor of the Carolina Inn, clarified yesterday information regarding the Inn's operations.

A story in Thursday's Daily Tar Heel and Raleigh News and Observer told about bookkeeping changes made at UNC after a report by the state auditor. One of the items listed said the Carolina Inn served free meals at Morehead Planetarium.

Although Henry L. Bridges, state auditor, said no free meals were served at the Planetarium, the fund set up from profit on meals served there was closed at Bridges' suggestion.

Bridges said in part to Hill: "... The truth is that the Carolina Inn has never paid a cent for any entertainment or anything else at the Planetarium. Actually, the situation is just the reverse. The Inn caters the luncheons, dinners, or teas at the Planetarium and makes a reasonable profit on each of them . . ."

The auditor pointed out a statement in the June 30, 1951, audit report: "A portion of the Carolina Inn surplus has been set aside into an account called 'Reserve for UNC Public Occasions, and that account was increased during the year by $1,789.33 to the balance shown of $2,705.27."

"There were no charges against the account. The management of the Inn instituted the account to accumulate the excess of receipts over the expenses for the catering which was done in the Morehead dining room . . ."

Bridges suggested that the "public occasion" account should be closed into the regular surplus. The University has replied with the request, Controller W. D. Carmichael, Jr., said yesterday.

The Inn was given the University by Hill with the stipulation that the income be used, "First, for the maintenance and upkeep of the property; and second, for the maintenance and support of the University Library."

Bridges assured Hill that the "University Administration is complying with the terms of the deed of gift."

Are Under Investigation

UNC Saturday Classes?

by Jody Levey

The desirability of six-day-a-week classes here to combat the "weekend exodus" is being studied by the Board of Trustees, it was revealed yesterday.

The question of Saturday classes was raised by the board's Executive Committee at a meeting this winter. The committee, in turn, directed UNC Chancellor Robert B. House to conduct a study on the advisability of Saturday school work.

Chancellor House said yesterday that all deans here are working with the administrative boards in preparing reports to be submitted to the Chancellor's office. The report will be made at the Executive Committee's meeting in Raleigh May 12.

The resolution passed by the committee did not stipulate whether the study here was to be made on the basis of Saturday classes in a quarter or semester system. State College has Saturday classes on the quarter system while Woman's College has Saturday classes and uses the semester.

Annillo, Britt To Be Starting Quarterbacks

Intersquad Game To Raise Curtain On T-Formation

by Ed Starnes

Coach Carl Snavelly will yank up the curtain today to give Carolina students, alumni, and well-wishers a look at the 1952 football team as the Tar Heels go through their T-formation paces in Kenan Stadium at 2 p.m. in the annual Blue-White intersquad game.

Actually the Tar Heels' head coach will not take an active part in the coaching duties but will delegate the sideline jobs to members of his staff.

George Radman and Ted Hazelwood will handle the Blue squad, and Jim Camp and Ernie Williamson will work with the Whites, while Snavelly watches the game from the stands.

The boys to draw most of the attention from the stands will be the quarterbacks. The success of the Tar Heels' switch from the single-wing to the T will depend a great deal on the quarterbacks.

Carmen Annillo, back in school after missing last season, will quarterback the Blue team. Larry Parker, the Charlotte freshman will be running from one of the halfback spots for the Blues. Parker was the boy that scored twice in last week's intersquad scrimmage for the high school day crowd.

Louis Britt will be the starting quarterback for the Whites. Britt played tailback and safety man on last year's Jayvee team, and has been mentioned as possibly the best man for the quarterback job. Billy Williams, last year's tailback, and Bud Wallace, wingback on the single wing team of 1951, will be running from the White backfield.

There will be great interest in today's game since the Tar Heels have been strictly a single wing team since Snavelly's arrival here in 1945.

Pictures Lost

Toru Iimori, a Japanese graduate student majoring in English here, has troubles.

Toru last Saturday lost a folder of pictures of his wife and children which were taken back in Himeji, hometown Japan. Toru said he lost the snapshots between the Presbyterian Church and Graham Memorial between 12:30 p.m. and 4 o'clock.

Anyone having information on the pictures is asked to contact Toru at room 328 Connor dormitory or the managing editor of The Daily Tar Heel.
