Providing Care And Training

Gals In Carr Dormitory Adopt Eight-Year-Old Chinese Orphan

by Sandy Klostermyer
Koh-Ah Kan, an eight-year-old Chinese orphan, has been adopted by the girls of Carr Dormitory who are providing care and training for her at the Salvation Army Children's Home in Hong Kong.

The girls send $10 monthly to the Christian Children's Fund in Richmond, Va. The fund cooperates with the Salvation Army in salvaging the hundreds of homeless children who have been left adrift in the colony during years of war and refuge.

Hoh-Ah-Kan remembers nothing whatever of her home and family. She was placed in an orphanage during the war and lived there until it was disbanded for lack of funds. The Salvation Army home took her in when no one claimed or adopted her.

she and the other children dress in their uniforms and go to morning devotions.

The children divide into their morning chores after de-"work sections" and go about votions. Next, they attend classes which are much the same as in our American schools. After school, there's lots of time for play—something many of the children actually have to learn to do.

Koh-Ah-Kan has been given life, hope and the opportunity to prepare herself to be a good citizen of that generation which will take over Free China's destiny in the days ahead.

Interested In Confab? See Horton

Newly-elected President Ham Horton is looking for delegates to represent Carolina at a conference on "Education For Positive and Effective Living" at Howard University May 8-10.

"I haven't appointed anyone to attend this conference," said Horton yesterday, "because I want anyone interested to have a chance to participate."

Purpose of the conference is to bring together a group of leaders to consider ways to improve understanding of and participation in a well rounded and unified program of extra class experiences for college students, Horton said.

The orphanage was opened in 1937 and had to be expanded greatly as the stream of refugees became larger and larger with the progress of war in the East. The institution continued to function after the Japanese occupied Hong Kong. Fifteen large army huts that have now become the dormitories of this Children's Home were donated by the Hong Kong government at the end of the civil war.

Hoh-Ah-Kan leads a happy, active life on the large campus where the huts are situated. She is bathed and clothed by two clinic nurses who see that she is properly attended at all times.

School, work, and play have become a daily routine for Hoh-Ah-Kan. The day begins as
