Phi Debates Taking Over By President

Following the faculty-student buffet dinner Tuesday night the Phi Assembly debated a resolution aimed at censuring the action of the President in seizing the steel industry.

Wade Matthews, leader of the proponents of the bill, told the group, "There is a trend toward a totalitarian government in the United States as is evidenced in the Congress by McCarthyism and in the Executive by continued encroachments upon the rights of the people such as illegal seizure of the steel industry." "We must do something to stop this trend," he added.

Bob Pace, defending the action of the President said, "The President was bound in duty to act as he did to preserve the rights of the American people. If necessary the President may act above the constitution to preserve it and the nation. However he has not done so in this."

Dr. Romanell Talks Tonight On 'Character Of 2 Americas'

He will speak again tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Morehead Building's faculty lounge on "The Influence of Ortega in Mexico."

lator and panel member for the first and second Inter-American Congresses of Philosophy (1942 and 1947, and the Inter-American Congress of Education, 1942.

His address here tonight is under the sponsorship of the Institute of Latin-American Studies and the Philosophy Department.

Uncle Sam Biggest Employer

Graduating This June? Jobs Will Be Plentiful

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL.
NEW YORK—April 30—The manpower shortage has made even the most discriminating employers less fussy this year and the college graduate who can't find a job in June will be mighty scarce.

Big employers throughout the country have been flocking to college job-placement offices at the rate of five to six a day and are putting in bids for nearly every senior the schools can furnish.

First in demand everywhere is the engineering student. Most schools agree that he can virtually write his own ticket. One firm hired every one of the 17 mechanical engineers at Rutgers, New Jersey state university.

Others in demand this spring are scientists, accountants, chemists, business administration majors, sales and merchandising personnel, students trained in insurance work and teachers.

Biggest employer of all is Uncle Sam. In some cases more than half the senior classes will enter the armed forces after receiving their diplomas. Even though most seniors are certain to be drafted many companies hire them anyhow, hoping they will return to work after discharge.

Nearly all the companies offer liberal benefits, including group insurance, vacations, hospitalization and pension plans. Some companies, hoping to get the jump on their competitors, even provide summer work for college juniors.

AUTOMATIC DIMMER

One day soon glaring headlights from approaching cars may not be the nuisance they are to drivers now. One company is reported working on an electric eye which will dim lights automatically.

STOCKPILING PASTRIES

Stockpiling is catching on. Now bakers are using the plan to make their work easier. By freezing their products, bakers can store cakes and breads for seasons when demand is highest.

'OUT DAMNED SPOT?'

New synthetic fibers and new material finishes are causing trouble for dry cleaners. Some of them can't be cleaned and some are easy to mistake for older varieties. Cleaners are now asking that garment labels include include information on the amount of new or synthetic fibers in the clothing, the type of chemical finish and directions for cleaning.
