

Terrell Gets Fiction Award

by Joe Raff

The Carolina Quarterly's second annual fiction award went this year to UNC's Joseph Terrell. The winning short story was entitled "A Race of Men."

Winning first prize in the fiction contest brought Terrell $50 and featurization of his story in the May 14 issue of the Quarterly. Terrell is a special student in English and commutes from Raleigh.

Other top ranking stories will be carried in the forth-coming publication. Among these are, "Look For A Buzzard" by Wesley Ford Davis, "Jonathan Heard the Cries of Cain" by Wyatt Helsabeck, also a Carolina student, and "A Few Hours" by Varley Lang.

Air Force Plans Interviews Here May 13-14 In Y

Major Ralph J. Ferree, USAF, will be on campus May 13-14 to interview applicants for pilot, navigation, bombardment and radar operation training.

Basic training under this program lasts 27 weeks and is taken by all students. All successful candidates will be commissioned after approximately 52 weeks of training. Graduates of the program may be assigned as crew members of bombardment, transport, reconnaissance or interceptor type aircraft.

Applicants must be 20 to 26 years old and must have completed two years of college.

DR. ARNOLD S. NASH, chairman of the religion department, who will be moderator of the roundtable discussion on "The End of the Capitalist-Protestant Era" tomorrow night.

The forum will be held at 8 p.m. in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

Also participating will be Rupert B. Vance of the sociology department and Clarence Philbrook of the economics department.

Nash, who recently edited a text on the end of the Protestant Era, will introduce the main thesis.

After the panel discussion a question and answer period of approximately 45 minutes will be held. Refreshments will then be served.

Tempest Rehearsals Enter Final Week; Ducats On Sale

by Chuck Kellogg

The Playmakers are now entering the final week of rehearsals on Shakespeare's "The Tempest," scheduled for three outdoor performances in the Forest Theatre on May 16th-18th. Tickets for all showings go on sale today at the Playmakers business offices in Swain Hall and at Ledbetter-Pickard's.

"The Tempest" is often regarded as Shakespeare's highest achievement in poetic romance. Set on an imaginary island, the play relates the loves and trials of Ferdinand and Miranda amidst the strange enchantments of Miranda's father, Prospero. Prospero had been the Duke of Milan, but neglected his government for the practice of magic. He was overthrown and cast adrift on the seas with his only daughter.

At last they drift into the haven of Shakespeare's luxuriant island. Many years elapse until a shipwreck casts ashore all those who has plotted against him in Milan. With the powerful spells of his magic and the assistance of such woodland sprites as Ariel, Prospero accomplishes his own justice. Meanwhile, Miranda has grown into a beautiful young woman who has never before seen a mature man, and she falls in love with the handsome and noble Ferdinand.

The entire lavish production will be under the hands of Foster Fitz-Simons, nationally recognized for his writing and theatre talents. He is now a staff member of the Playmakers, and has recruited an experienced cast and production group to work with him.

This is the last major production of the Playmakers this winter season, and promises to be one of their finest of all time. The combination of Shakespeare's magnificent poetry, expert direction which emphasizes the eye-appeal of movement, costume, and lighting, and the graceful woodland setting of the Forest Theatre makes for the best in dramatic entertainment.

Gray, House Attend

President Gordon Gray and Chancellor Robert B. House leave this morning to attend the meeting of Southern Conference presidents in Richmond today. They will return tomorrow.

Herberg To Speak On Politics, Religion

Will Herberg, New York, who is well known for his work in labor, social research and theology, will make several addresses here next Tuesday and Wednesday.

He will address both student and faculty groups and will give one public lecture.

The University's Inter-Faith Council is sponsoring his appearance here.

Wednesday night at 8 o'clock Herberg will give a public lecture in Gerard Hall on "Communism-Democracy-Religion."

He will discuss activities of the Ladies International Garment Union, AFL, for which he is director of research, before several University economics classes, will talk on "Marxism and Biblical Eschatology" before a philosophy class, and will tell journalism students about publicity and public relations with labor.

Tuesday night Herberg will address faculty and students in Graham Memorial on "Faith and Secular Learning" and he will speak at the Hillel Foundation Wednesday afternoon on "Religion and the Jews: Can They be Separated?"

Herberg, who did both his graduate and undergraduate work at Columbia University has lectured at leading academic institutions, including Cornell, Princeton, Harvard, Wellesley, Mount Holyoke, Stanford, and the Jewish Theological Seminary.

He has written widely on social, political and religious subjects. Among his publications are "The Ethics of Power," "Bureaucracy and Democracy in Labor Unions," "The Jewish Labor Movement in the United States," "The Political Theory of American Socialism," "Theological Issues of the Hour," "The Theology of Reinhold Niebuhr," "Franz Rosenaweigs 'Judaism of Personal Existence.'"

His recent book, "Judaism and Modern Man: An Interpretation of Jewish Religion," has been hailed by Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr as "a milestone in American religious thought."

Next Week

Yackety Yacks will be distributed next Wednesday and Thursday, May 14 and 15, from 2 p. m. to 4 o'clock in Horace Williams Lounge, Graham Memorial.

Circulation Manager Hal Ward yesterday reminded students they must present their ID cards to receive a yearbook.
