Concerning Student Union

'Encouragement'

Members of a delegation which talked to Chancellor Robert B. House concerning a new student union here reported yesterday "encouragement" towards early realization of the project. Bill Roth, Graham Memorial director and one of three who talked to the Chancellor, said of the Friday meeting: "Support is coming from all sides, and we are hoping that we will soon be in a position to form a large committee representing all the various friends of the University who are interested in seeing a new student union built here."

"As a result of the enthusiasm shown thus far, plans are being formulated for preparing a detailed brief on local student union needs for presentation to the state Advisory Budget Commission within the near future."

The other members of the student union group talking to the Chancellor were Ken Penegar, recently re-elected chairman of the GM board of directors, and Jimmy Wallace, GM activities director.

However, Kelly said an investigation group discovered the crime and criminal and the buttons are now on their way. Distribution probably will be made Tuesday.

Grad Student Is Winner Of Script Prize

Elizabeth Lindsay Neill, a graduate student here in drama and literature, yesterday received notification that she won $300 for a script she entered in the Dr. Christian radio contest.

Miss Neill's "A Case of Morbidus Fixus" will be presented sometime during the 1952-53 program series over the Columbia Broadcasting System network.

The winner has had extensive drama experience. She produced "Blue Jean Gal" at Carolina last summer on a Playmaker experimental bill and did the same work for "The Overture" this winter for the 153rd student production lineup. Her plans are for professional and college theater.

Miss Neill attended Hollins College from 1944 to 1948 where she did acting and play producing. In the summers of 1945 to 1948 she did continuous acting and technical work with the Patchwork Players. She holds an advance certificate in acting from this group.

Seniors Get Two Movies Monday Nite

Seniors and their dates are in for a surprise tomorrow night at the annual senior late show. "It is a new movie which has not been shown anywhere around here," E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina Theater said yesterday. It is in technicolor.

In addition to the feature, plans are underway to show "In the Name of Freedom," a movie about Carolina.

"Because many students have not seen this movie," Archie Myatt, senior class president said, "we feel this would be an excellent opportunity to show it."

Senior girls may sign out for late permission to attend the show.

500 At Duke Invade Coed Dormitories

(Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL)
DURHAM, May 17—An estimated 500 male students invaded East Campus of Duke University this morning following a current fad on college campuses of storming coed dormitories.

Screens were ripped off several windows of women's dormitories, panels in doors in Southgate Dormitory were reported to have been broken, and explosions were set off during the hour and a half-long demonstration of students.

Police reported no injuries and that the explosions were believed to have been dynamite caps. Meanwhile, Duke's president, Dr. Hollis Edens, warned the student body yesterday that he has asked Durham police to make arrests in any further action such as the Saturday morning demonstration.

A report by police Lieutenant N. H. McCullers said "We did not attempt to arrest anyone, or in any way get involved other than that we stayed with the crowd." There was no violence other than several window screens were torn off, and the paneling in two or three doors broken, he added.

He also said that all extra officers were sent home at 3:30 a.m. and there was no further trouble during the night.
