Down In Front

We Win A Few

The 1951-52 athletic season came to close last Saturday with competition in three Southern Conference meets. Fortunately we ended our sports year on a little better note than we started.

The golf and tennis teams, which have been tough in dual matches all year long, took care of both the individual and team titles in their meets and although the track team had to settle for third behind Maryland and Duke, there were some good individual performances. With a little more effort we might have done better there.

It's great to finish on top but what bothers me is the question of whether this winning form is peculiar to tennis, golf and swimming. (If you've forgotten, the swimming team gave us our first SC winner for the year way back in March.) It's fine for these three teams to come out at the head of the class but it would be a finer thing if we could spread a little of what they've got around to a few other teams. They say you can't win them all, but it's sure worth trying and with a little more of what those three teams possessed maybe we could start heading toward that goal.

Where Has It Been

Unfortunately, the three sports of swimming, tennis, and golf are ones which don't attract too many spectators. And it's a dirty shame, too. We could all learn something by watching them.

We've been preached to about spirit before until now its running out of our ears, nose, and mouth but even if you are sick of hearing about it, let's face it—it's something we ain't had none of this year (to put it into the vernacular we Tar Heels supposedly use). We haven't seen it all year except when the swimming, tennis, and golf teams played.

Even the local tennis fans missed the most outstanding exhibition of spirit that the team made this year because it came on the trip north. On that tour, which pitted the Tar Heels against seven other schools, we didn't lose one match, although according to the form sheet, we should have taken the short end a couple of times.

On that trip we took two 5-4 victories which we could have dropped—probably more easily than we won. Against Harvard the team won all three doubles events to come from behind a 4-2 eight ball to win, 5-4. Two days previous to that they had stopped Williams by the same to-the-limit score.

Golfers Delight

Then in the final match of the season, the team pulled one of its best of the year by winning another of those 5-4 matches from the Wahoos of Virginia, a team which had defeated them last fall in a practice match.

The golf team, too, had its share of aptly defined story-book finishes. Against Ohio, Purdue, and Kentucky the Tar Heel sextet closed like a sweet-toothed thoroughbred after a lump of sugar to keep its record clean.

But their finest hour came at Hope Valley where they finally dropped Duke on its home course. In that match points were decided on the final hole of every foursome that came in, including the final and most important one. For in that last group came the three-foot putt which un-clutchable Jim Ferree dropped to send the Blue Devils boo-hoing to their first defeat at Hope Valley by us'uns since 1937—quite a few years back.

The swimming team had its days, too. Although it was vastly superior to most of its competition, the boys had rough times in some events and the meet against N. C. State was the one which decided the Conference championship.

A Good Hangover

Both teams were undefeated up until that time and the State team, with its senior-performing freshmen, could have taken the meet if the tides of Bowman Gray pool had gone their way. But, through a little extra effort, which is such a dominant trait in any kind of champion, we won going away. The boys had the victory cooked up as soon as they hit the water. It was just for the spectators, and the tight little pool was full of them that night, to simmer awhile before the score board proved it.

What all this comes down to is this. We've had a pretty bad athletic year except for the feats of these three teams. The main reason for their successes has been a little extra drive and a strong desire to win. Next year, if we can spread a little of it around, we can have more than three smiling faces down at Woollen Gym. We started late but maybe now we can carry it over until next fall. It would be the first three month hangover I ever enjoyed.

Nichol, Brown Get Trophies For Efforts

The Annual Intramural Championship Cups were awarded to Zeta Psi, the fraternity division champs, and to Winston Dorm, winners in the dormitory division, at the annual Intramural Banquet held Tuesday night.

The intramural managers of the winning organizations were also presented with trophies at the affair. Winners of these awards were Bill Evans, who directed the Zetes to their successful season, and Don Davis, manager of the dorm champs.

Other Trophies

The banquet was also featured by the presentation of trophies to the individuals amassing the most points through intramural participation during the school year. The All-campus Individual Intramural Point Champion for this year was Red Nichol of Ruffin Dormitory while the winner of the fraternity division individual award was Ed Brown of Zeta Psi. Points counting toward this trophy are awarded on the basis of participation, with two points for participation in a winning contest, and one point for taking part in a losing game.

Other trophy winners were Wayman Richardson of Connor Dorm, Jim Dillon of Phi Gamma Delta, and Frank Hood of Delta Kappa Epsilon. These were adjudged the outstanding intramural managers for the year.

Basketball Coach Tom Scott was the main speaker at the banquet, which was held in the North Room of Lenoir Hall.

Co-Captains

Goalie Lew Floyd and attackman Walt Ernst were chosen co-captains for next year's lacrosse team at the banquet held Tuesday night. Both are rising seniors.

Floyd, who now lays claim to the national record for saves by a goalie in one season with a total of 218, comes from University Park, Md. Ernst is from Baltimore.

Ernst led the team in assists with 17 and was second in scoring with 16 goals.

Seixas, Kenfield Feted By Fans At Banquet

by Vardy Buckalew

An audience of about 130 was treated to some of the experiences of Vic Seixas' colorful career at the "Vic Seixas Day" banquet Tuesday night.

After dining Seixas opened the floor to questions from the guests and entertained the audience for about 45 minutes with some of his exploits.

Controller William D. Carmichael, Jr., was master of ceremonies and he presented gifts to Seixas and his wife. Mrs. Seixas was presented with a Southern cookbook in order that Vic will not get off his feed when he goes to England next month for the Wimbledon tournament. She was also given a Confederate flag and instructed to use it where it will do the most good in England.

Seixas was presented a white monogram sweater by Coach Kenfield and a set of cuff links and a tie clasp by Mr. Carmichael who said, "We hope that these will always serve as a link between you and Chapel Hill."

Coach Kenfield, loved and respected by all, was presented with a television set by the old tennis players of years past and given a standing ovation.

Seixas began his talk by describing the things which he thought contributed most to his rise to the top of the heap in amateur tennis. He attributed it most to a change in mental attitude and not in any great improvement in his game.

He said, "Last year I had decided that I needed to work more and play tennis less and I was going to taper off and not play so seriously." However, when he began to play last spring, the relief of the mental pressure seemed to make a great change and he went through several tournaments without a defeat. He stated that from then on one thing led to another until he wound up on the Davis Cup team.

Seixas told the audience that that "center court jitters" at Wimbledon are not a figment of the imagination, they really exist. He said that when you first walk out there and feel all those eyes on you, that there are no words to express that feeling. He said, however, "After that first few minutes out there and you get used to it, there is no place in the world like it for playing tennis. If you don't play your best tennis there, you won't be able to anywhere."

Whose Aching Back, Did You Say?

Once there was a Sophomore who was planning a Week in New York. Being a Man of Some Foresight, he carefully packed his copy of "New York Confidential," his compilation of Terrific Manhattan Numbers, and his list of Solvent Alumni in the Big City. Likewise 1 clean shirt, 1 toothbrush, 1 razor and 1 package of Sen-Sen. He was Ready.

Just then his roommate came up with a Tip for the Traveler. "Hey!" he said, "have you wired ahead for your Hotel Reservation?"

Our Hero guffawed. "Don't be dull," he answered. "I'll make up my mind where I want to stay when I get there. New York is full of hotels."

He was right. New York is full of hotels. On this particular weekend, however, it was also full of people. Political convention.

Oh, he's all right again now. Two nights on a bench in Central Park never killed anyone. Only thing that bothered him was the squirrels. He thought they were looking at him Oddly.
