NEWS IN BRIEF

PARIS—Some 15,000 riot police were alerted yesterday as the Communists ordered five days of demonstrations against Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway. The demonstration begins tomorrow and the new Allied Commander arrives Tuesday.

WASHINGTON—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said yesterday that false Communist charges against the United Nations add to a warning that the Reds may be plotting germ and gas warfare. The U. N. army stands "proud, defiant and confident of its capability for accomplishing any mission it might be assigned," the former supreme UN commander in the Far East told a joint session of the House and Senate.

MUNSAN, Korea—Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy made his final statement as chief Allied truce delegate yesterday and rebuked the Reds for using Korean armistice talks as a "stall to repair your shattered forces." Joy's action threw the Communist delegates in a flurry, but his successor, Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr. moved into the UN chief delegate's seat and suggested a recess.

WASHINGTON—President Truman yesterday accused a lot of lawmakers of jumping when the American Medical Association cracks the whip. Truman's remarks were aimed at House rejection of a bill to increase payments under old age and survivors insurance. He spoke to approximately 1,200 volunteer Veterans Administration hospital workers.

SEOUL, Korea—U. S. Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers yesterday smashed a huge Communist supply area between the North Korean capital of Pyongyang and its port, Chinnampo. Pilots reported 117 buildings destroyed and 80 heavily damaged in an attack that began at dawn and continued throughout the day.

'Are You A Conchologist?'

An Innocent Request Nets A Box Of Shells

by Rolfe Neill

"Are you a conchologist?" he asked.

"No, I'm not," she replied. But this doesn't tell how Mrs. Dorothy Branch, secretary to Chancellor House, got her eye-peeling collection of sea shells:

UNC Trustee Herman Wiel of Goldsboro was in Mrs. Branch's office one day and remarked about a pair of small conch shells she had on her desk. That brought the "conchologist" remark (conchologist: one who deals with shells or mollusks).

Well, Mr. Wiel happens to be one who is interested in shells. So he promised Mrs. Branch he would add to her collection. A few days later, the postman plopped a package down in South Building and in it were numerous shells.

Mrs. Branch took them, arranged them on a piece of polished wood, and now has an attractive exhibit for office visitors. The collection includes conchs, olives, yellow and black stripes and red speckled scallop shells.

Mrs. Branch is now something of a conchologist.

State Goes For Russell At Convention

—by Ham Horton

Raleigh, May 22—A state Democratic convention which had been unusually quiet exploded this afternoon at 1:45 when former Governor Cam Morrison introduced a resolution to instruct North Carolina's delegation to the presidential nominating convention to vote for Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.).

And the resolution passed. Morrison intoned, "Democrats have not been very happy the last few years the greatest battle for democratic principles is being fought in the U. S. Senate." This battle he characterized as being led by Dick Russell, of "good ol' North Carolina blood" whose forebears helped write the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. His proposal was met by wild applause and jeers, and was referred to the committee on platforms.

As the committee met, Morrison went on saying, "If you want to support Dick Russell, let's do it like North Carolinians—none of this namby pamby support like the long gray line from Richmond to the Mississippi."

The committee met in the basement of the Raleigh Auditorium, where over the objections of stalwarts such as Maj. L. P. McLenon and Gregg Cherry. Senator Rivers B. Johnson of Warsaw (See RUSSELL, page 9)

Di-Phi Award Goes To Dr. Henderson

'Brief Reminiscences Of A Long Life' Is Topic Of Kenan Professor's Speech

by John Peek

Dr. Archibald Henderson, Kenan Professor of Mathematics emeritus, received the annual Di-Phi award last night at a banquet of the Dialectic Senate and the Philanthropic Assembly held at Lenoir Hall.

The annual award is for "outstanding service to the University, the state, the nation, and the world." Dr. Henderson holds an A.B., A.M., two Ph.D.'s, a D.C.L., a L.L.D., and a Litt.D. He has been George Bernard Shaw's official biographer for the past 48 years; he was one of the first men to understand Einstein's theory of relativity, and has written extensively on history, notably a two-volume history of North Carolina.

Senator Willis Smith made the presentation.

Dr. Henderson in his address spoke on "Brief Reminiscences of a Long Life." He said that he belonged to the Dialectic Senate while attending the University.

"Oratory is needed more now than ever before in history," he said. "Now through the vast magnifications of communications, a person may speak to audiences numbering into the millions." He pointed out that the need for orators is the same today as in early Greek and Roman history. Orators are needed in the law courts, to lead the people in defense and preservation of the world and to lead causes, he said.

Dr. Henderson stated that he believes the University to be one of the "greatest schools in the world." He emphasized that the University teaches equality in all things from the time one enters school until he leaves. He said that there is no other school in the country that is superior in this phase.

In the field of mathematics he studied at the University of Chicago, Cambridge, the University of Berlin, Sarbonne and the Institute de France. He told how he became interested in Einstein's relativity in 1916 and went on in two years to master it. He became an exponent of the theory and published papers on it and made many lectures about it. He said he made three new contributions to the theory.
