$500 Given By Vets Club To Military

The treasury balance of the now defunct University Veterans Club was turned over to the Scabbard and Blade in ceremonies recently.

The $500, to be used for the establishment of an award fund, was given by Jack Owens, president of the Veterans Association, to Jim Strickland, captain of the local chapter of Scabbard and Blade. The University Veterans' Club went out of existence a year ago.

"Both individual and unit awards will be established from this fund," Shelton Plager, past awards chairman of Scabbard and Blade, said yesterday. One of the proposed awards will be a large cup to be awarded to one of the military units on the competitive basis.

Transaction between the two organizations was handled by Col. F. Carlyle Shepard, former adviser of the association and associate member of Scabbard and

Coed Dorms Plauged By More Raids

At least one girl had her panties stripped from her person this week after some 3,000 University of Missouri students turned into baying, brawling lingerie raiders and stormed two nearby girl's schools, Stephens and Christian Colleges.

There the girls even joined in the stripping. Police said a group of girl students trapped a boy on a fire escape and stripped him of his clothes. His pants were returned only after the nude raider begged for mercy.

Meanwhile, the panty raids, which have been blamed by psychiatrists on everything from sex to simple-mindedness, continued to spread throughout the nation at 17 schools.

At Charlottesville, Va., city, county, state and university police officers, armed with tear-gas grenades and tear-gas guns, stopped an attempted raid at the University of Virginia. Police estimated demonstrators numbered 2,000 but red-faced University officials said there couldn't have been more than 300.

"Our Virginia men were good-humored, orderly and even dignified," Dean of Women Roberta Hollingsworth said after the thwarted panty and bra raid. "There was no resemblance, real or apparent, between this affair and riots reported at other institutions," she said.

Spring fever also touched male students at the Universities of Colorado, Alabama, Vermont, Minnesota, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Delaware, Kansas, Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Iowa, Washington, and Pennsylvania.

At Northwestern University, coeds sparked a fairly good natured demonstration by serenading in front of men's dormitories. Some 1,000 males responded with a raid on the girl's residences.

Raiders at South Carolina were led by a bugle sounding a cavalry charge. They broke into one dormitory and snatched some lingerie, but went home when police arrived.

Housemothers locked University of Tennessee coeds in their dormitories as squads of Knoxville police arrested every male on campus—student or otherwise—they could lay their hands on.

However only 11 students and one former girl student, a cheerleader, were jailed on various charges of malicious mischief and disorderly conduct. All were released on bond.

University of Georgia coeds were most cooperative. They displayed "welcome" signs and threw panties to the male intruders when they stormed the women's dorms.

machines are amazing but men are more so

"Young ladies, if you will direct your attention to the complex telephone equipment on the left, I think you'll agree with most folks who tour our telephone offices that it is exceedingly impressive."

We think so too. But the minds of the men who developed it are even more impressive. Some people use "the human element" to denote weakness. In the Bell System, we believe our greatest asset is our people.

They make headlines in fires, hurricanes and floods. But much more important, they give the world's best telephone service all year round.

As the Bell System continues its growth, new and even more amazing machines are being created. And along with this growth is the need for college men with the right qualifications for work and opportunity in a variety of fields—in engineering, research, operating and administration.

Huge Grant Given UNC

Chancellor R. B. House said yesterday a grant of $30,500 has been made by the Health Information Foundation to the University.

The gift will enable the Institute for Research in Social Science to make a two-year community health study.

"This is a major move toward developing social science research in connection with our expanding programs in the health and medical fields," Chancellor House said.

Admiral W. H. P. Blandy is president of HIF, a new foundation recently established by the drug, pharmaceutical and allied industries for the purpose of gathering and distributing information about health.
