of the All-England Tennis Cham- attend college until he worked for a year. And the thought of a military career hadn't occurred to him.

Hazlett convinced his friend that Annapolis would be the best choice. Ike wrote both senators in July asking for an appointment. One suggested that he take a competitive exam in November at Topeka. For four months the two studied together, taking advantage of some of the short cuts that Hazlett had learned at his military prep school. The hard study work was worth it, for Eisenhower was first out of 30 who took the exam. The senator wrote him, advising him to go to West Point, because he was better qualified. He would be overage, also, if he went to Annapolis.

"Of course, I tried to talk him out of it, but he said he wasn't going to look a gift horse in the mouth," recalled Captain Hazlett.

After the two were in school, they saw each other at Army-Navy games, but their vacations seldom came at the same time. In 1922, Hazlett, now a young Navy man on submarine duty docked at Panama for repairs. He saw Eisenhower who was stationed there. It was there, Captain Hazlett feels, that his friend first became conscious of his potentialities. He was studying the campaigns of Napoleon—down to the troop movements — building up a good backlog of information.

"I think I realized his ability from the start. I knew that if he got a chance, he'd go places."

While Hazlett hasn't seen too much of the General lately, he has kept up an active correspondence with him. The General thinks out loud, philosophizing, and discussing present pressing problems with his old friend.

Though Hazlett is no political expert, he thinks that many of the people in the State will vote for Eisenhower — if they get a chance. "I urged him to run a year ago, saying he was needed and that it was his duty if called," says the captain. "Of course, I was probably one of thousands," he added.

"People don't like the Republican label, but they like him, and will vote for him," he noted.

Earlier in the week Seixas lost a quarter-finals singles match to Herb Flam, who eliminated Sedgman in the quarter-finals of the same championships last year.

The talented Sedgman captured the big three this year at Wimbledon by joining Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla. to take the mixed doubles title. The 24-year-old ace from Down Under won the men's singles last Friday in four sets over Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt. Sedgman's victory along with the U. S. singles crown makes him the undisputed no. 1 player in the world.

Thomas, making a bid for a berth on the Olympic team, finished sixth in the 100-meter backstroke finals held in the Flushing Meadows Pool. His time was 1:09.3.

Yoshi Oyakawa, the NCAA 200-yard champion from Hawaii finished first in 1:05.7, two-tenths of a second faster than the 1936 Olympic record. Ensign Jack Taylor of Akron was second in 1:07.1 followed by Ensign Allen Stack, 1948 Olympic backstroke champion, in 1:07.7. The top three finalist will make up the Olympic team.

Bob Brawner, Princeton's breaststroke star qualified for the finals in his event with a time of 2:42.6.
