

Tar Heels, More Familiar With T, Await Texans

'Horns Favored After Win; Quarterback Still Doubtful

By Tom Peacock
The North Carolina Tar Heels open their season here Saturday against heavily favored Texas, with the Tar Heels needing a win to even the series between the schools at 2-2. Carolina will be using the split T formation Saturday for the first time in history, and a new assistant coach, George Barclay, will be helping to direct it.

Texas opened its season last week, routing Louisiana State 35-14 on a wet field and giving every indication that the Longhorns will be the team to beat in the Southwest Conference.

Switch To T
The Tar Heels switch to the T has been complete, and they took to it fairly well in spring practice, but Barclay and head coach Carl Snavely are still in the dark about a quarterback.

Three returnees, Charlie Motta, Dick Lackey, and Carmen Annilo all have seen a lot of action at the quarterback slot, but a freshman, Marshall Newman, may get the starting berth this Saturday. Newman was an All-Stater from Clinton last year.

Backs Look Good
The Tar Heels look good in the other backfield positions, with a host of hard runners returning plus an occasional new face. Larry Parker and Connie Gravitte, last year's brightest freshmen plus John Gaylord, a fullback with a 3.5 rushing average last year are among the candidates for right half. Co-captain Bud Wallace is returning at fullback, but Harold "Bull" Davidson may end up in that slot. Bob White and Billy Williams are the top candidates for left half.

Carolina's line should be greatly improved over last year's, with most of the men returning and another year of experience under their belts. Tackle was hit the hardest by graduation, and is still a problem to the coaches. Co-Captain George Norris, Carolina's pre-season candidate for All-America, is the leading left end, but he was used principally on defense last year. Lou Darnell and Jeff Newton are also outstanding at left end.

Others Vie
Francis Frederic and Don McCormick are vying for the left tackle post, and two conversions seem to be leading at left guard. Chuck Ellenwood, a freshman end, and George Foti, outstanding freshman blockingback, are the converted guards. Center is another question mark, with the graduation of Andy Miketa leaving that spot wide open. Bill Kirkman and Doug Bruton are the top contenders.

Soccer Team Pointing For Heavy Slate

With Captains Ben Tison and Barry Kalb leading the way, the Carolina soccer team is planning a successful season. Coach Alan Moore has a ten game schedule, with Penn State highlighting it.

Coach Moore has ten returning lettermen. Besides Tison and Kalb, the returning lettermen are: Renny Randolph, Gerry Russell, Burnie Burnston, Hoppy Hopkins, Dave Cole, Don Gladstone, Harry Pawlick, and Jim Bunting. However, according to Coach Moore, all positions are open.

Eddie Foy, last year's All-American, and Bud Sawyer will be hard to replace. Buddy Myer, Bob Issiacs, Al Norburg, and Tenny Elting, who were moved up from last year's physical education class, are looking very good in practice.

With high spirits prevailing, the team is preparing for a rough ten game schedule, opening with Roanoke College at Salem, Va. The big game of the season will be with Penn State, which will be played at 9 o'clock Nov. 8, before the football game with Virginia.

The schedule is as follows:
Oct. 8—Roanoke College at Salem, Virginia.

Oct. 14—N. C. State at Chapel Hill.

Oct. 17—Roanoke College at Chapel Hill.

Oct. 22—Virginia at Chapel Hill.

Oct. 28—Washington & Lee at Lexington, Virginia.

Nov. 1—Duke at Durham.

Nov. 8—Penn State at Chapel Hill.

Nov. 12—N. C. State at Raleigh.

Nov. 15—Maryland at College Park, Maryland.

Nov. 19—Duke at Chapel Hill.

Wake Forest will be represented by another heavy and experienced line on both offense and defense this fall. The defensive unit will average around 212, the offense 206.

THE FROWNING GIANT pictured above is Texas guard Harley Sewell, a 220-pound behemoth. As a double-duty lineman last year he played more minutes than any player on the Longhorn squad, 372 to be exact. He has played two seasons as a regular and was virtually a unanimous selection for the all-Southwestern team last season.

Longhorns' Scoring Punch Sinks LSU, 35-14, In Rain

The University of Texas football team, annually a high-scoring outfit, gave fair warning to this year's opponents that the 1952 squad would be no exception as it plowed to a 35-14 victory over Louisiana State last Saturday night.

A steady rain failed to stop Quarterback James T. Jones and his Longhorn mates as they kept the ball in LSU territory most of the night. Jones passed to end Tom Stohlhandske for the first Texas score and added two more personally before letting the other Texans show their ability with a pigskin.

Grabs Fumble
Defensive halfback Pod Price grabbed an LSU fumble in mid air and raced 15 yards to post the Texans to a 28-0 lead before the Bayou Tigers could find a scoring punch.

Two quick LSU touchdowns, engineered by the breakaway running of Russ Gautreaux, narrowed the Texas lead to fourteen points, but linebacker Jim Barton stopped a third drive by intercepting a wayward Tiger pass and dashing 35 yards for the final score of the game.

Two Texas backs whom Carolina players will well remember, Gib Dawson and Richard Ochoa, failed to score in the victory but their brilliant running kept the Longhorn attack moving. Dawson and Ochoa gained 144 and 128 yards rushing, respectively, in the stinging 45-20 defeat the Tar Heels suffered at John Gaylord, Carolina right halfback, was one of the Tar Heels' most effective fullbacks last season.

Carolina Caravan

Texas, With Three Captains, Rated "Fastest Team" By Scouts Gill, Camp

By Jake Wade
Texas, fabulous land of giants, is Carolina's first date for the 1952 football season, in case you hadn't heard. And it definitely is a super-duper, deluxe opener, in case you hadn't put your mind to it. That's Saturday, right here at home. Fans, with sound taste, will be here from far and wide. We've been getting ready. Monday morning I dropped by the daily conclave of coaches. Entering the room, a typical gridiron laboratory, flanked with the usual blackboards showing the usual hieroglyphics, a mass of o's and x's, I was a little startled at what I saw.

There, standing in a row across the room, leaning with hands on knees, as though any minute they might charge right through the window into the middle of highway 54, were assistant coaches George Barclay, Jim Gill, Jim Camp, George Radman, Ted Hazelwood, Walt Pupa and Art Weiner.

Three Captains
Head Coach Carl Snavely faced his old warriors in familiar stances and stroked his chin, apparently in deep concentration. Then he calmly took a ruler from his pocket, got on his knees, and measured the distance between these assorted packages of brawn and brain. He restored the ruler to his pocket, walked 10 paces to the rear and doodled again on one of the blackboards. The company was dismissed. I withdrew quietly.

Texas has three captains, no kidding, which probably is not so surprising at that, Texas being Texas. . . . And orders were received here to install not the customary one, but two telephone loops to the Texas bench from the guest box cubicle observatory in which visiting coaches operate their scout telephones. . . .

Seems that one communication system will be used for relaying advices to the offensive platoon, the other to the defensive forces. . . . You can't get ahead of Texans, for whom it's always double, triple or nothing. . . . Texas is the largest university in the South, and its main building, located in the center of the campus, is 27 stories high. . . . Naturally.

Friends are Foes
Dana X. Bible, Texas athletic director and former head coach for many years, is an old friend of "Coach Bob" Fetzer, Carolina's retired athletic director. . . . This friendship led to the current football series between these two universities. . . . While Texas has played the Tar Heels three times, the Longhorns have never seen them operate from the Split-T. . . . Last year the Tar Heels teased them a little by lining up in the T before shifting to the single wing. . . . In the three games played a total of 140 points have been scored, 86 by Texas and 54 by North Carolina.

Cleveland Loses To Move New York Nearer Pennant

The Cleveland Indians were virtually eliminated from the American League pennant race yesterday afternoon when they were defeated by the Chicago White Sox, 10-1.

Big Mike Garcia, the Indian's most effective pitcher to date, was knocked out in the first inning as the White Sox scored five runs.

Cleveland now has three games left to play and trail the New York Yankees by 1½ games. The Yankees, who were rained out yesterday, have six games left to play. Should the Indians win their three remaining games New York would be assured of at least a tie by winning three of their last six games. They can now win the pennant by winning four of their last six regardless of what Cleveland does.

In another American League game yesterday, Philadelphia beat Washington, 4-3.

In the National League the New York Giants, six games behind the Brooklyn Dodgers with six games left to play, were rained out in an afternoon double-header with the Boston Braves. Brooklyn went into a twilight-night double-header

Marshall Newman, Carolina freshman quarterback from Clinton, was reared on a dairy farm.
