

WEATHER

Some cloudiness and mild with high today of 75. Yesterday's high, 77; low, 58.

The Daily Tar Heel

CHURCH

The church of your choice and its services. See page 2.

VOLUME LXI NUMBER 4

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1952

FOUR PAGES TODAY

TAR HEELS OPEN WITH RUGGED TEXAS TODAY

NEWS IN BRIEF

SEOUL, Korea—American Sabre jets shot down four Communist MIG-15 jets and damaged three others yesterday. It set a new record in claims against enemy jet fighters for a single month by claiming 55 destroyed, six probably destroyed and 51 damaged.

ABOARD EISENHOWER SPECIAL—General Dwight D. Eisenhower was met with a thunderous chant of "We like Ike" as he swept a political path across the Old North State yesterday aboard his special train. This whirlwind tour marked the general's second crack at the traditionally Democratic South. Still evading a detailed discussion of the touchy civil rights issue, he promised, however, that if elected he would "bring into government the finest women and men of whatever color, race or creed this country has."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson yesterday announced that he would make public today the list of contributors and beneficiaries to his controversial fund to augment salaries of top state officials. He said there were "eight or nine" officials who received money from the fund and that he had contacted all of them Thursday night to discuss making the fund public.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Acheson said yesterday that Gen. Eisenhower was guilty of misquoting him and misrepresenting his views. He also said that the general "tortures the facts." Along with the accusations, Acheson related an account of how Eisenhower had supported a Far East defense line that did not include Korea, and yet blamed him for the start of the war.

Fad Facts For New Gals

Coeds Hep To New Styles

HERE'S A GAL whose whole appearance spells style. Her green tweed suit with boxed jacket is straight from the pages of Harper's Bazaar. Her accessories point up the editor's report that "leather is big fashion news." The zippered bag and cordseamed gloves are made of tan pigskin—a perfect leather in color and texture to go with rugged tweeds.

By Deenie Schoeppe, Society Editor. You've heard what the fashion magazines say are "musts" for the college girl: the "debutante slouch," the "midday effect," the fitted coat. Now the question most new coeds are asking is, "What does the Carolina Coed wear?"

As the main event of the day is the game, 'spose we begin there.

Football games generally call for suits or wool dresses (weather permitting), hose and flats or heels, as you like. However, it's a long hike over hill and dale to the stadium which makes the going not so good in heels, car or no car.

For the Grail dance after the game, some people like to change into something dressier, though many will keep on the clothes they've worn to the game.

Next on the agenda is Rush Week. The Pan-Hel handbook tells you all you need to know, but here are a few last minute reminders; the first parties on Monday and Tuesday nights are dressy—heels, hose, dressy dresses and gloves. At the rest of the parties you'll be fine in sweaters and skirts.

On all occasions the Carolina coed is in step with the latest fashion, with informality the order of the day. For week-night dates you'll see mostly sweaters and skirts when the date includes movies, the Goody Shop or the Rathskeller. For dancing, dinner dates and most weekend dates, dressier suits and dresses, as the occasion demands.

As for accessories, the wide leather belt is a great favorite. The new heavy medallions and other large jewelry are quite popular also. Loafers and saddle shoes are still holding their own, though different colored flats in kid or suede are worn quite a bit.

For that extra dash of color, bright scarfs are often added to suits or sweaters.

But whatever you wear, wherever you go, that Carolina spirit will always be in style.

T. JONES, Longhorn Quarterback

Ex-Columnist Bill Buchan Dies At 27

Bill Buchan, long-time Daily Tar Heel columnist, news writer and friend of all, died unexpectedly of a heart attack Thursday in Jacksonville. He was 27. A native of Aberdeen, Bill had worked in Jacksonville for The News and Views since June, 1950. He served in World War II and returned to Chapel Hill where he enrolled in the University.

Bill wrote a column for The Daily Tar Heel called This 'n That, a collection he gathered in his nocturnal ramblings. He carried on in his column with an imaginary character named Wilbur Amberson who was as much a personality as Bill himself.

Rolfe Neill, managing editor of The Daily Tar Heel, only yesterday received a letter from Bill written about three hours before his unexpected death. As usual he was doing something for somebody else, asking that we give a freshman a tryout for the staff.

Bill was planning to come to today's game and "see everybody before the weekend is over."

He is survived by his father, H. C. Buchan Sr., Charlotte, and four brothers, Lee of Aberdeen, John of Fayetteville, and Ralph and Carl of North Wilkesboro.

Funeral was held yesterday at Bethesda Presbyterian Church at Aberdeen. Burial was in Old Bethesda Cemetery.—RN.

BILL BUCHAN

Charlie Bernard III With Jaundice

Charlie Bernard is at it again—or still.

The young assistant director of admissions has spent more time in hospitals the last three months than Dr. Kildare. Now he has a colorful case of yellow jaundice.

Charlie was floored June 4 by coronary thrombosis and spent four weeks telling pretty nurses about Chapel Hill. After a couple of months he began feeling pretty good again and got in a fight with some foreigner named Influenza and his friend Virus.

Graham Memorial Offers Facilities

Graham Memorial, student union, offers Carolina students many opportunities and facilities to make their stay in Chapel Hill pleasant and profitable.

Graham Memorial is probably best known for its main lounge on the first floor where the students may gather to chat or read the latest magazines. The basement of the building houses, is the popular Rendezvous Room where couples may dance and have refreshments. There is also a woodshop in the basement where anyone may come to work and a barber shop where haircuts cost only seventy five cents.

Other facilities include a darkroom for those interested in photography and a travel agency which is open from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock daily. The travel agency will make train, bus, or plane reservations for any student and also will make arrangements for special groups who would like to charter a private bus.

Manager Bill Roth urges all students to feel free to drop in any time and take advantage of these opportunities.

Roth also called attention to the special exhibit now on display in Morehead Planetarium. The display is composed of pictures of the student unions and their furnishings at other schools.

The University is asking for a new student union in the permanent improvements which go before the Advisory Budget Committee this Monday in Raleigh.

Students may gather to chat or read the latest magazines. The basement of the building houses, is the popular Rendezvous Room where couples may dance and have refreshments. There is also a woodshop in the basement where anyone may come to work and a barber shop where haircuts cost only seventy five cents.

Other facilities include a darkroom for those interested in photography and a travel agency which is open from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock daily. The travel agency will make train, bus, or plane reservations for any student and also will make arrangements for special groups who would like to charter a private bus.

Manager Bill Roth urges all students to feel free to drop in any time and take advantage of these opportunities.

Roth also called attention to the special exhibit now on display in Morehead Planetarium. The display is composed of pictures of the student unions and their furnishings at other schools.

The University is asking for a new student union in the permanent improvements which go before the Advisory Budget Committee this Monday in Raleigh.

'We Major In Minors'

Youth Center Replaces Popular Hangout For Carolina Students

By Sam Holmes

"It's just a case of switching from beer bottles to baby bottles." Ben Schreiber, operator of Harry's Delicatessen for nine years and who, with his wife now is operating a children's wear shop at the same location, was talking.

The words were for old time Tar Heels who returned this fall to find one of the town's popular spots for food and jazz piano converted to The Youth Center.

Schreiber said he gave up the operation of Harry's because he was tired of working a 15-hour day and because it didn't afford the kind of family and social life he wanted.

He denied the rumor he was forced to close because police found beer on the table at Harry's after the curfew hour of midnight last spring. He said that when the police found the beer on the table it was just two minutes past midnight, and that it was there only because of an oversight.

The place was being cleaned up and he was working on his books at the time, he said, and he stated that the ABC Board in Raleigh quashed the case when he explained the full facts.

When he decided to close Harry's, Schreiber said, he still wanted to live in Chapel Hill, and after a survey of the town's business possibilities decided on the children's wear shop. The store, modernistic in design, opened September 2, and business has been good.

The Schreibers' new motto is, "We Major in Minors."

Split-T Party Will Feature Name Talent

Tar Heels Test New Formation For First Time

By Tom Peacock. Head Football Coach Carl Snavely will unveil the brand new North Carolina split-T formation this afternoon at 2:30 when the Tar Heels open their season against the Texas Longhorns before an expected crowd of 35,000 in Kenan Stadium.

The Texans are highly favored to win today, with a smashing 35-14 victory over Louisiana State already to their credit.

Table with columns: TEXAS, Pos., North Carolina. Lists players like Massey, Lansford, Sewell, McDonald, Branch, Gentner, Stolhandske, Jones, Dawson, Pace, Ochoa and their positions.

Longhorn head coach Ed Price's charges shot to the top of the list of teams in the Southwest this week, while Carolina is rated no better than third in the Southern Conference.

The Tar Heels will be using the split-T for the first time in history today, Snavely previously being one of biggest advocates of the single wing. Texas also uses the split-T, so the two teams will be using the same formation for the first time in this game, the fourth of the series.

Quarterbacking Carolina in its bid to even the series at two games apiece will be junior Carmen Annillo of Union City, N. J. Annillo, who earned the starting position after the injury of Charlie Motta, is considered more than capable in the difficult key spot of the split-T.

Texas is loaded this year with both speed and power, and three Longhorns have been picked on many of the pre-season All-Americans. Left halfback Gib Dawson, was All-Southwest Conference last year, led the Conference in scoring, and is practically a unanimous choice on pre-season All-Americans.

Fullback Dick Ochoa, 200 pounds and a dash man, is also touted as the best in the country, and the third Texas pre-season All-American, 210 pound and Tom Stolhandske, has been rated the best in the southwest for two years.

Handling the team from the quarterback spot in the Texas split-T is T. Jones, who scored two touchdowns and passed to teammate Stolhandske for another last week against LSU.

There is no lack of power in the North Carolina backfield, but the Tar Heels have much less speed than Texas. Snavely foresaw the slowness as far back as last spring when Carolina switched to the T. The fastest man in Carolina's backfield is right half Chal Port, a senior from Millington, Pa., and he isn't slated to start this afternoon.

In addition to Annillo, Carolina will have three hard running, experienced backs in the lineup, Annillo being the only non-letterman. At left half is 21-year-old junior Bob White of Lynchburg, N. J., a letterman who saw a lot of action last year. Co-captain Bud Wallace, senior from Kinston, starts at fullback, and will do the Tar Heel's punting for the second straight year. Wallace had a 39.9 yard average last year.

Rounding out the Carolina backfield at right half is sophomore Larry Parker, a defensive

HUGH REEDER, Longhorn Center

Cowgirl Tells Of Texas U. Life, Campus

By Anne Chambers, Daily Texan Editor. AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 26—No matter what the football score, Texas wins from North Carolina. Next semester the third University of Texas president to come from Tar Heel territory will assume office—Dr. Logan Wilson—indicating, as a compliment, that Texas accepts only the best, naturally.

Our best and loudest cheers won't be at the game Saturday, though. Few of us wranglers will be able to trade our "hosses" or Cadillacs in for an Airplane in time to reach that North Carolina frontier for the opening kick-off. Seriously, however, the University of Texas is neither a country club, nor a dude ranch.

Our 12,000 students, coming from even the remotest parts of the vast Texas empire, are hard-working (not specifying at what), typical American youth.

We study only when absolutely necessary until seniors or even graduates. Our playtime is spent at Barton's Springs, the coldest swimming water south of the North Pole, or at coffee time in the Chuckwagon, student cafeteria.

On warm, sunny days (which means year-round) we head for Lake Austin to fish, swim, and learn how to disengage ourselves gracefully from water skis. Parties run from the very formal to the nightly beer-busts. We promenade and spend our few paltry pennies on the Drag, otherwise known as Guadalupe Street. If we are still bored, there are some 250 clubs or organizations we could join. And then there are other things...

The University of Texas once was confined to Forty Acres, but the Main University has since doubled its size and expanded into eight branches located in other parts of the state.

The most famous and favored building at the campus in Austin however, is the Tower, a 27-story structure which has hidden rooms that the architect probably doesn't even know about. When Texas comes out on top of game scores, the Tower lights are orange, and the building is a tall, colorful symbol of victory.

We hope it will be so Saturday night.

Damage Slight

An early Wednesday morning blaze caused approximately $1,500 damage to the Carolina Club on the Greensboro highway just outside of Chapel Hill, operator Charlie Stencil said yesterday.

The fire was discovered by a neighbor at about 7 a.m. and was brought under complete control by the local fire department about 9 o'clock. The fire was believed to have been started by a short circuit on a wire leading to a refrigerator compressor.

The club will be reopened for customers by Monday.

DUKE AMBASSADORS

Miss Durham At Grail Shag

The Order of the Holy Grail will hold its first dance of the fall quarter tonight at the Naval Armory from 9 until 12 o'clock.

Tickets for the dance, which will be informal, will be on sale at the Armory tonight. The prices are 75 cents per couple and $1 each for stags.

Music will be furnished by the Duke Ambassadors. Featured with the band will be Miss Jean Tew, who won the Miss Durham title this year, and has been heard on recordings from WPTF's "Our Best To You."

DTH Meeting

A meeting for all students interested in working for The Daily Tar Heel will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Roland Parker Lounges, second floor of Graham Memorial.

Students interested in any phase of journalism are urged to attend this meeting.

International Students Set Meet Today

International students are invited to attend this morning's activities of the International Students Program. Here is the complete schedule.

9:45—Report in YMCA Lobby for name tag.

10—Movie and explanation of the game of football—Gerrard Hall.

10:45—Brief introductions by Parsu Amersey, president of Cosmopolitan Club.

11—Coffee in the YMCA Lobby. Meet companion for the afternoon.

1—Everyone meet at YMCA and go to game together.

Sponsors of the program were afraid the information has not reached many of the students due to the rush of registration. Students who will not be able to attend the morning's activities due to class conflict are urged to meet with the rest of the group at 1 p.m. in front of the YMCA and attend the game.