

Roe, Dodgers Whip Yankees, 5-3, To Take 2-1 Lead

Down In Front

Kissin' Kin

NOW THAT OUR Consolidated cousins from Raleigh have agreed to take over our cancelled roles in Athens, Ga. this weekend, perhaps it would be best to take a look over toward Durham and see what the local football program has to offer. If both Duke and Tennessee live up to advance notices then their game today ought to be doozie.

It will be the only appearance of Tennessee this side of Gatlinburg this year and you can count on Duke Stadium being packed. Yesterday Duke publicists were figuring the crowd to run around 35,000 people, but I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see a few more than that packed in by 2:30 game time today.

One of the greatest drawing cards to the game is that it matches the two formations that have caused such controversial discussions in recent years—the single wing which Coach Bob Neyland has finagled so successfully and the T which has brought Duke's Bill Murray such early-season success this year. Both have undefeated records thus far—Duke in two games and the Vols in one.

Traveling Rabbits

THE MEN WHO are getting paid for it are picking the Volunteers but that's carrying little weight in Durham. Even money bets on the Devils seems to be floating all over the Chesterfield town with more than cigarette money to back the wagers. It looks to me, thought, that the even-money Duke bettors are going to be poorer than traveling rabbits come sundown today.

Tennessee had a rough opener last weekend in downing Mississippi State, 14-7, scoring in the final quarter to pull the game out. But the Vols always have trouble with the Staters and you can write that one off as a warmup. General Neyland has his boys well schooled in the rudiments of the game and his Tennessee teams have won a lot of games in the past just by knowing that much—to wit their 28-0 methodical victory over Carolina last year.

But even more than knowing the basic principles of the game, the Vols have some who know a darn sight more. Pat Shires, who sat out last season while Hank Lauricella and Herky Payne were running things, is reputed to be just as good as either one. Now that remains to be seen, but there's no doubt that he is good. Then there's Andy Kozar, Neyland's fullback. The contrast between him and the Blue Devils' Jack Kistler today should be interesting to see. Both are outstanding in their position with Kistler now ranking first in the Southern Conference and fourth in the nation in rushing offense.

Cats and Canaries

THE VOLS HAVE been famous for their ability in past years to pounce upon their opponents mistakes and convert them into touchdowns. With the line Neyland has this year, it looks as though they will play the same kind of football today. Doug Atkins, a pre-season All-America leads the Tennessee defensive unit which brought about the Volunteers' second and winning touchdown against Mississippi State last weekend by recovering a fumble deep in the State territory.

The offensive line is headed by another All-America hopeful, John Michels, a man Neyland calls the best blocking guard he's ever coached—and the General has had some good ones.

The Blue Devils are a little better known to the local fans and, judging from the performances Duke has shown in its first two games, the Vols certainly won't have an easy time from them today.

two teams take the field at 2:30 tomorrow.

Looked Ragged
Duke looked ragged in its opener two weeks ago against an outclassed Washington and Lee team, and the Blue Devils romped, 34-0. Last week against Southern Methodist, Duke proved it had what it takes in the clutches by scoring a touchdown in the last few seconds of both halves to win, 14-7.

Tennessee was pressed to the limit last week in its opener, scoring in the last quarter to defeat Mississippi State, 14-7. The Volunteers should be just about hitting its stride against Duke, while the Blue Devils are just about at their peak.

Leading Duke from the quarterback spot is sophomore sensation Worth Lutz, who has completed eight of 10 passes for 90 yards and three touchdowns. Lutz passed for both of the Duke scores against SMU, and end Howard Pitt was his receiver. Pitt has caught one other touchdown pass.

Andy Kozar will lead the Tennessee attack from his fullback post. Kozar is in his third year as a starter, and is a pre-season All-America. On the line, the Vols have John Michels, practically a unanimous choice for All-America this year, and a member of quite a few last year.

Smith and Kistler
Duke will depend on halfbacks Charlie and Red Smith, and fullback Jack Kistler for its running game. Kistler is the leading runner, with 225 yards in two games. The Duke forward wall is led by tackle Ray Green and center Lou Tepe, the captain. The Duke defensive line is marked by two of the best tacklers in the Conference, Ed Meadows and Tank Lawrence.

The Tennessee tailback is experienced Pat Shires, who was held out last year since the Vols had All-America Hank Lauricella. Other Vol standouts are Captain and right tackle Jim Haslam, and guards Andy Myers and Francis Holohan.

Chase Lopat With 10 Hits For Victory

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL. NEW YORK, Oct. 3—The Brooklyn Dodgers beat the New York Yankees, 5-3, today behind the effective, six-hit pitching of their lefthanded ace, Preacher Roe, to take a 2-1 game lead in the World Series.

Playing before a packed Yankee Stadium house of over 66,000 paid customers, the National League Champions banged out 11 hits off the combined pitches of Eddie Lopat and Tom Gorman to advance a game closer to their first World Championship. This is the Dodgers' sixth appearance in the fall classic, but they have yet to win.

Lopat Loses

A predominantly righthanded Dodger batting lineup played havoc with the deliveries of starting and losing hurler Lopat. The Yankee lefty gave up ten safeties over eight and one-third innings.

The Bums went into the eighth frame with a 3-1 advantage. Yogi Berra then added a little spark to the Yankee's hopes by pounding one of the Preacher's tosses into the rightfield stands for a roundtripper. Hank Bauer placed a lump in the Dodgers' throats as he followed by sending the ball into the leftfield stands, foul. Roe managed to escape further damage.

With Lopat still on the mound in the top of the ninth, Pee Wee Reese and Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's leading offensive weapons in the Series, put singles back to back after one out. A double steal put both runners in scoring position, but Roy Campanella's short fly to Yank shortstop Phil Rizzuto caused the two-out sign to be flashed on the scoreboard, and it looked as if the Bronx Bombers were out of trouble.

Uncorks Pitch

Gorman, who had replaced Lopat after Robinson's bingle, then uncorked a pitch that got by Berra, and both Dodger fleetmen raced across the plate with the clinching runs.

Johnny Mize added more excitement to the game by blasting a pinch-hit homerun in the bottom of the ninth. It was his first roundtripper in a Series and only the second pinch fourbagger in World Series history. Berra got the other against this same

N.C. State Takes Carolina's Place In Game With Georgia

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL. RALEIGH, Oct. 3—The North Carolina State College Athletic Council announced today that the State football team will go to Athens, Ga. tomorrow to take the place of Carolina in the Georgia-Carolina game.

Carolina canceled the game Wednesday after a member of the football team contracted polio, the fourth student to do so in three weeks.

State has postponed its scheduled game with Davidson tomorrow night until next Saturday. Davidson had an open date, and Carolina canceled Saturday's game with State, thus opening the date for the Wolfpack.

In Chapel Hill Carolina Athletic director Chuck Erickson was highly pleased that the arrangements had been made. "The game will be a good thing for both teams," said Erickson. "Georgia has only three home games, and the cancellation has messed up their season ticket plans. They, of course, had made all arrangements for a football game down there.

"State has remained about the same," Erickson continued. "I had two games scheduled, and is still playing two games, with Georgia taking Carolina's place. Carolina and Georgia have built up an excellent series, but I'm sure State will make a good showing."

"Right now we're looking into the possibility of re-scheduling State, but it depends on a lot of things, mostly the situation here."

Deacs, Eagles Play Tonight At Winston

Special to THE DAILY TAR HEEL. WINSTON-SALEM, Oct. 3—Offense is expected to predominate over defense here in Bowman Gray Memorial Stadium tomorrow night when Wake Forest and Boston College meet in a top-ranking intersectional attraction at 8:15 o'clock.

The two husky squads took their final workouts this afternoon and were pronounced in fine physical condition for the ninth battle between these two institutions. Leading four to three in victories with one game ending in a tie, the Eagles will be trying to move up another notch in the win column. On the other hand, the spirited Wake Forest squad will be doing its utmost to even the series.

Exceptional Passer

Two high-powered offenses will be pitted against each other in what has all the earmarks of a fast, wide-open, and exciting contest. The starting Eagle backfield of Jimmy Kane, Joe Johnson, Dan Brosnahan and John McCauley is one of the fastest quartets in the East. Kane is also an exceptional passer and last fall as a freshman completed 51 of 118 aeriels for 764 yards and seven touchdowns. He should give the Wake Forest secondary one of its toughest assignments of the fall.

Giants Sell Ex-Tar Heel

It was announced in New York yesterday that Vinnie DeLorenzo, former UNC pitching great, has been sold outright to Jacksonville of the Sally League by the New York Giants.

★ Carl Erskine, losing Dodger pitcher in Thursday's Series game with the Yankees, suffered slight head injuries and an aggravation of an old leg injury when he fell from a ladder before the game. However, Erskine insisted that the fall had nothing to do with his ineptness on the mound Thursday.

★ An estimated crowd of between 60 and 100,000 greeted the newly crowned heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano, today in his home town of Brockton, Mass. He was presented with the key to the city by the mayor and a new Cadillac automobile by some of his friends.

★ Kid Gavilan fought Billy Graham last night in a grudge bout which decided the welterweight champion of the world. Graham was the challenger and he was still carrying a grudge over the decision in the last match between these two which he thought should have been in his favor. This was the fourth fight between the two and was held in Gavilan's native Havana, Cuba.

★ Casey Stengel isn't talking. When asked about his plans for 1953, the 63-year old manager, who has guided the New York Yankees to three consecutive World Championships, said, "If you don't win, maybe you don't rate your job." He was referring to the current World Series.
