

Soccer Squad Opens Season Against State Here Today

By Paul Cheney
Intercollegiate athletics will be resumed on the Carolina campus today after a two-week layoff, when the Tar Heel soccer squad play host to the N. C. State booters at Fetzer field at 3:30. Coach Al Moore will field an eleven largely made up of veterans from last year's squad. Heading this list of veterans will be goalie Ben Tison and left fullback Barry Kalb, cocaptains, and center forward Gerry Russell, high scorer on last season's team. Either Tison or Don Gladstone will start at goalie. Kalb will be at left fullback, with Ronnie Younts at the right fullback post. Left halfback will have either Buddy Barnes or Fletcher Greene in the starting role. Tommy Hopkins will be at the center half back position, with Dave Cole to his right.

Coach Moore's squad is in fairly good physical shape, except for the stiffness picked up during the two week layoff.

State is expected to field largely the same team which failed to win a game last season. The Wolfpack is predominantly made up of foreign students. Among these is Karagas, who was selected as all-American center half back even though he was on an all-losing team.

This is the first contest of the Tar Heel's nine game slate. There is a possibility that Coach Moore will book a few more games this year.

Coed Volleyball

Women's intramural volleyball entries are due at the Women's gym by 12 noon Friday. This year a team must consist of eight players, but may have no more than 15 members on the team.

Team managers may sign up for hour practices on the courts from 4-6 o'clock Monday through Friday, and from 9:30 to 11:30 on Saturday mornings. Tournament play begins on Tuesday, October 21.

Tar Heels Start Hard Work

By Tom Peacock

A stiff but spirited Carolina football team has settled down to the task of getting into top shape for its game Saturday with the Wake Forest Deacons here in Chapel Hill.

The squad was a little sore after Monday's workout, but a long and hard practice in the Snavelly style yesterday ironed most of the stiff muscles out.

Good Shape

The Tar Heels are expected to be in the best physical shape possible when they take the field, with only one major injury on the squad. Fullback John Gaylord is still out with a broken finger he suffered in the Texas game.

Coach Snavelly worked the squad until dark, concentrating mainly on the smooth operation of the split-T formation. Snavelly utilized all his quarterbacks during the practice, with Marshall Newman and Ernie Liberati working mainly on passing, and Charlie Motta and Lou Britt mainly on the running attack.

Newman Starter

Newman, a freshman, appears to be the starter for the game at quarterback. His passing was sharp during the week of dummy practice, and he hit his receivers yesterday in the face of a hard charging line.

Wake Forest will be the favorite going into the game, on the strength of its greater experience if nothing else. The Deacons seemed to be thinking about Carolina's 20-0 loss to Villanova last week, and they will be out to score another win.

Wake Forest is led by a group of outstanding backs, with quarterback Sonny George calling the plays from the split-T. George engineered Wake Forest's 39-7 win over Carolina last year, and is a very dangerous (See TAR HEELS, page 4)

Badminton Club Has 14 At Meet

The badminton club had its first meeting Monday night with 14 members present.

After the singles play, the members split up for a doubles tourney, won by Mac McGinty and Dave Bischoff over the clowning Bill Meade and Mike Ronman.

The club's next meeting will be Monday night and all students (including coeds) are invited. A match with Duke is being scheduled for later in the year.

Blue Devils Lead Defense; Mountaineers Pace Offense

Duke last week took over the Southern Conference lead in rushing defense and pass defense while retaining its total-defense lead as West Virginia lost two of the four departments it paced as of last week.

The Blue Devils, trouncing South Carolina 33-7 last Saturday for their fourth consecutive triumph, rose from runner-up to first place in rushing defense by lowering their average allowance to 106.8 yards per game and in pass defense by lowering their average to 67.0.

Duke retained its edge in overall defense with a 173.8 average it has permitted the opposition.

Keeps Advantage

West Virginia, despite its 35-21 loss to Penn State, kept its advantage in total and passing offense, lost the edge in rushing defense. In the rushing offense department paced by the Mountaineers last week, the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau did not list Conference leaders this time.

The Mountaineers retained their lead in total offense even though Penn State lowered their average by nearly 100 yards to 392.3 per game. Their passing record likewise suffered, but an average of 125.7 yards per game still gives the Mountaineers the edge.

Duke in taking over all three defensive departments has an overall allowance of only 173.8, a rushing allowance of 106.8 and a passing allowance of 67.0. West Virginia is second in the first two departments, Virginia Tech runner-up in pass defense.

Carolina, which has played only one game, continued to lead in punting with a 43.8-yard average per kick, mainly thanks to Bud Wallace.

Passing Honors

The Conference passing honors changed hands for the third straight time as Johnny Gramling threw six strikes in South Carolina's loss to Duke to bring his completion total to 26 as compared with 26 each for last week's leaders, Johnny Dean of Virginia Tech, Charley George of Wake Forest and Bobby Tyler of Richmond.

Gramling's assumption of the passing lead marked the only change in Conference individual statistical departments. Ed Mioduszewski retained his lead for William and Mary in total offense, Randy Broyles of Washington and Lee in rushing, Clyde Bennett of South Carolina in pass-receiving and Wallace of Carolina in punting.

Broyles' W. & L. teammate, Wes Abrams, gave the Generals the two top spots in the rushing department by gaining 87 yards Saturday night against Richmond to bring his yardage total to 296.

MURALS

The deadline for entries in the intramural volleyball tournament is 5 o'clock this afternoon. All entries along with team rosters must be filed with the mural department by that time.

At the same time tag football play in the fraternity division gets under way this afternoon with 10 games scheduled. Dormitory teams play tomorrow, with both divisions getting on a regular schedule next week.
