

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, where it is published daily, except Monday, examination and vacation periods, and during the official summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C. under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates mailed $4 per year, $1.50 per quarter, delivered, $5 and $2.25 per quarter.

Bundles Of Thanks

During the scramble of examinations and their resulting lengthy hours, the Inter-Faith Council last year sponsored a clothing drive. The results were good, though the students approached were not to the point where intensive study would drive them to give away half of what they owned.

Branson concluded his report to Chairman Johnson with "Again, our very grateful appreciation to you and all the (UNC) contributors of this clothing."

Tom Neal

Express Yourself

Editor: If our anonymous complainer, would use his (her) time in asking rather than writing, he (she) would be told the facts of life. We in the Yack office have been very happy to explain the $2.00 fee assessed Graduate Students for their Yack pictures to all who dropped by and will again present the reasons for all the others who harbor homicidal thoughts.

Russ Cowell

1-22 crossword puzzle grid with numbers 1 through 54.

ANSWER TO SATURDAY'S PUZZLE. HORIZONTAL: 45. of a main channel, 47. fruit, 50. extend, 51. South American Indian, 52. presage, 53. denary, 54. first Garden road, 1. beard of grain, 2. nose of golf club, 3. offer, 4. middle, 5. rent, 6. simian, 7. of shepherds, 8. foreign, 9. molding, 10. source, 11. destiny, 17. attracted, 19. a shell fish, 21. diplomacy, 22. smell, 23. bobwhite, 28. tropical tree, 27. South American pikelike fish, 28. a cement, 29. annealing oven, 32. mature, 35. sidle, 37. sheep-fat, 39. unearthly, 41. brewing material, 42. first Canal in U. S., 43. solar disk, 44. devise, 46. jot, 48. chess pieces, 49. outcome.

Ben Toledano Citizens For Eisenhower

If McCarthy and Jenner are the only objectionable senators that the Socialists can complain about, then we might assume that the great majority of Republican or Democratic representatives are very high principled. I use the terms Republican and Democrat interchangeably because both of these terms stand for freedom loving, self-respecting Americans.

Since the foundation of the Socialist party is made of concrete ignorance, it is not difficult to understand how their lies and vilifications can solidify. All that is necessary is for them to print that Senator Robert A. Taft is an isolationist who is "dangerous and reactionary" and thousands of the exploited masses immediately condemn him as such.

Being a native Louisianian, I, as all interested Southerners, am very concerned with the platform planks which directly affect us. First and foremost, the Republican Democratic party "believes that it is a primary responsibility of each state to order and control its own domestic institutions."

I can hardly conceive the idea that a small centralized group of administrators in Washington is better able to cope with State problems than are the administrators of the concerned section, who are undoubtedly familiar with the pending local situations.

It is not necessary to give an account of the Truman-Stevenson farm program for we are only too familiar with their policy. The Republican platform states: "We favor a farm program aimed at full parity prices for all farm products in the market place . . . commodity loans on non-perishable products, 'on the farm' storage, sufficient farm credit, and voluntary self-sufficient farm credit and voluntary self-supporting crop insurance. We favor a bipartisan . . . commission to review the policies and administration of our farm program. We support the principle of bona fide farmer-owned, farmer-operated cooperatives and . . . further development of rural electrification. We support a constructive and expanded soil conservation program."

After reading and understanding these proposals, it is impossible to honestly maintain that the Republicans are the "enemies of the farmer."

Don't be blinded by fancy pseudo-intellectual terms and a stuffed Brooks Brothers shirt. Vote for the one American who can pull us out of this dangerous movement toward socialism, Communism, and complete devastation. The world owes us nothing, and we owe everything to God. A vote for Eisenhower is a vote for common decency, fair play, and a peaceful and prosperous United States.

Since most of these assigned positions are in isolated parts of East Russia, the majority of students like to stall the proceedings as long as possible. However, if students don't accept the assigned work or if they leave the position early, they must accept heavy penalties.

"He's taking an awful beating, folks."

Drew Pearson

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON—Here is a rough idea as to how the cabinets of the two presidential candidates will stack up if elected:

THE EISENHOWER CABINET: Secretary of State—Thomas E. Dewey. The Governor of New York went around the world to get up to date on foreign affairs, has been conferring with Acheson on foreign policy and has his heart set on this post. Since he was the best brain in putting across the General's nomination, he will probably get his reward.

Secretary of the Treasury—Winthrop Aldrich of the Chase National Bank. Brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller and a power in GOP politics, Aldrich has been one of the key men behind Ike.

Secretary of Defense—Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge. The original Eisenhower campaign manager, Lodge faces likely defeat in his Massachusetts race for reelection. He served in the Army and on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Attorney General—Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Secretary of Agriculture—Sen. Frank Carlson of Kansas, now one of Eisenhower's closest advisers.

Secretary of the Interior—Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado; helped lead the fight at Chicago for Eisenhower's nomination.

Secretary of Commerce—Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania, one of the earliest Eisenhower supporters.

Secretary of Labor—Ex-Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota; wrote Eisenhower's Labor day speech.

Postmaster General—Arthur Summerfield, now Chairman of the Republican National Committee. THE STEVENSON CABINET: Secretary of State—Averell Harriman, former Ambassador to Great Britain and Mutual Security Administrator. Harriman's withdrawal from the race at Chicago insured Stevenson's nomination, and he could probably have the important State Department post if he wanted it. If not, William Fulbright of Arkansas, one of the Senate's best brains on foreign affairs, would have second call.

Secretary of the Treasury—Dwight Palmer, head of the General Cable Co., one of the big businessmen vigorously behind Stevenson.

Secretary of Defense—Tom Finletter, a Wall Street attorney now Secretary for Air.

Attorney General—Senator Kefauver of Tennessee.

Secretary of Agriculture—Some Stevenson advisers have suggested Milton Eisenhower, brother of the General, who served with Stevenson in the Agriculture Department under Henry Wallace. Milton also served under Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson. A more likely possibility is Roy Turner, former Governor of Oklahoma.

Secretary of the Interior—Oscar Chapman of Colorado or Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

Secretary of Commerce—Phil Wrigley, the Chewing-Gum King of Chicago, a Republican who has been a personal friend of Stevenson's.

Secretary of Labor—Wayne Morse, GOP Senator from Oregon.

Postmaster General—Stephen Mitchell, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

The Ford Motor Company campaign to collect from every dealer for the Republican campaign fund is continuing throughout the nation but is having rough sledding with at least a few Democrats.

Most Democratic Ford dealers have kicked in for fear of incurring disfavor with Detroit. But in Cedar Falls and Hudson, Iowa, Henry Stoka and David Keith were exceptions.

Several days ago Emil Wheeler of the Wheeler Motor Company in Waterloo, one of the top Ford dealers in Iowa telephoned David Keith of Hudson, together with other dealers, to inform them that a meeting had been held at Des Moines where it was decided the larger Ford dealers should pony up $1,000 each to the Republican National Committee and the smaller dealers $200.

Wheeler made it clear that this campaign contribution was related to the future allotments of Ford cars. In brief, a dealer who did not contribute might not get sufficient allotments in the future.

In Cedar Falls, however, the firm of Weisbord and Stoko split. Frank Weisbord is a Republican and paid $200, but Henry Stoko, a Democrat, refused. He said that Ford could go jump in the Mississippi River as far as he was concerned. Also, David Keith of Hudson replied: "You're not getting any money from me."

Note—In 1948, 18 Ford and General Motors dealers were convicted in Michigan for violation of the Corrupt Practices Act when Arthur Summerfield, now Chairman of the Republican National Committee, put across political assessments with auto dealers.

Ken Barton

UNESCO

An attempt at presenting the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization in all of its endeavors in this column is an impossible task. However, I would like to introduce the Organization to you and explain the important role that it plays in the world today because too few people understand its work and too many people are quick to criticize its efforts. The anti-UNESCO forces are making headway because the people who are falling prey to their propaganda are actually ignorant of its work.

To begin with, UNESCO is composed of over 62 member nations whose main purpose is to work within the frame work of the United Nations toward the maintenance of peace. Most of the member nations have commissions that operate within each nation to further the work of UNESCO. Specifically in the United States we have a National Commission composed of 100 members, 40 of whom are outstanding individuals in related fields, and 60 of whom are nominated by national non-governmental organizations. This group takes responsibility for UNESCO programs and advises the Department of State.

So much for the framework. Let us look briefly at the broad aims of the commission work in the member countries. In Educational areas, programs are centered around the theme of teaching the illiterate part of the world to read and write and in general take steps toward a raising of their standards of living. Another aim is the elimination of prejudices. Through the use of press, films, radio, universities, and schools throughout the world, programs of this type have been furthered. Also a promotion of a better use of the world's natural resources and the control of disease is tackled. Finally an attempt at an exchange of ideas based upon the heritage of the individual countries is promoted in a hope for a better understanding among the peoples of the world. That in its briefest and most general form are some of the ideas of UNESCO. There is not the space to go into the actual work that has been done.

Unfortunately those people who look with suspicion upon the work of international organization jump at every opportunity to discredit the work of this sincere and hard-working group. I would not attempt to evaluate without complete study the good or evil in the programs so far attempted, and I would certainly not feel right in standing in the way of progress that has been shown. I also feel that the students of the United States should take a particular interest in the programs of UNESCO as it will be our task to work with these programs in the years to come.

At the moment the students of the United States are represented through the National Students Association on the National Commission which meets once a year. Richard Murphey, former Carolina student, is serving a three year term as NSA representative on this board. UNESCO realizes the need of bringing in the opinions of the younger generation.

Comic strip panels with dialogue. Panel 1: Uncle Baldwin is the only way to visit my Uncle Baldwin is to do it. He's allus countin' his hair an' gittin' bald, so it's better check up. Panel 2: Well, there's the loyal pal of the loyal runaway candidate. Are you running out too you loyal citizen? Panel 3: Ha! We ex-cowbirds don't give our loyalty easily. Panel 4: Right! In fact, for sometime now we ain't give it at all! Panel 5: Uncle Baldwin will gotta wait. Think I'll look up Pogo. Panel 6: Keep out, whoever you is. Nobody's allowed to see mah-sob face. Panel 7: 'Cept me, yore lovin' husband! Put on a fresh bag, dear—we got company! Panel 8: What's comin' out, doctor? Panel 9: In this trunk. Panel 10: It's no use, yokunit—I refuse to operate! Panel 11: Thass mah wife. Her nose is busted. This is th' way she used t' look—ah is awful s-sorry yo' won't operate! Panel 12: 'Tis face! That figure! Panel 13: 'What a gorgeous widow yo' shed make it—and—will? Dogpatch would be an ideal spot for me to settle down—under an assumed name! I'll do it! Panel 14: Yo' heart's in there!