Fast Virginians Out-Maneuver Hopeful 'Heels

Carolina Tallies
Early But Fails
On Passing Game

By Jack Claiborne
Right in the face of Homecoming Day optimism built up by alumni, visitors and die-hard students, the University of Virginia Cavaliers rocked the North Carolina Tar Heels, 34-7, in Kenan Stadium yesterday.

While the Tar Heels were seeking their first win in five starts and an end to an 11-game losing streak over a two-year span, the Cavaliers were wanting a victory after setbacks by Duke and South Carolina on the two preceding Saturdays.

And they got it by out-running and out-passing the Tar Heels in the most workmanlike fashion. Coach Art Guepe's men were lightning and powerful on land and absolutely mystifying through the air. They gained 254 yards over the land route and passed 21 times with 10 completions for 146 more, totaling 400 yards on offense.

For the Tar Heels, who for the third straight week put in a fine first half showing only to lose grip after the intermission, the defeat was bitter, coming right in their own backyard with friends, alumni and stoutest supporters counting on them to come out of their ignominy of defeat. Hopes were high as the Tar Heels tallied an early touchdown, but they dwindle and died into despair as the dashing Cavaliers began their brand of split-T lightning, backed up by the passing arm of Quarterback Charlie Harding.

Carolina had possibly its best day on the ground with its still-faltering split-T offense, gaining 144 yards to bypass any previous productions. But the loss of the air arm, heretofore Carolina's only threat and the means by which they had scored five of six previous touchdowns, cost mightily.

Quarterback Marshall Newman's bullets were as accurate as always, but his receivers were being batted around by the Virginia defenders as so many volleyballs, resulting in costly bobbles on important passes.

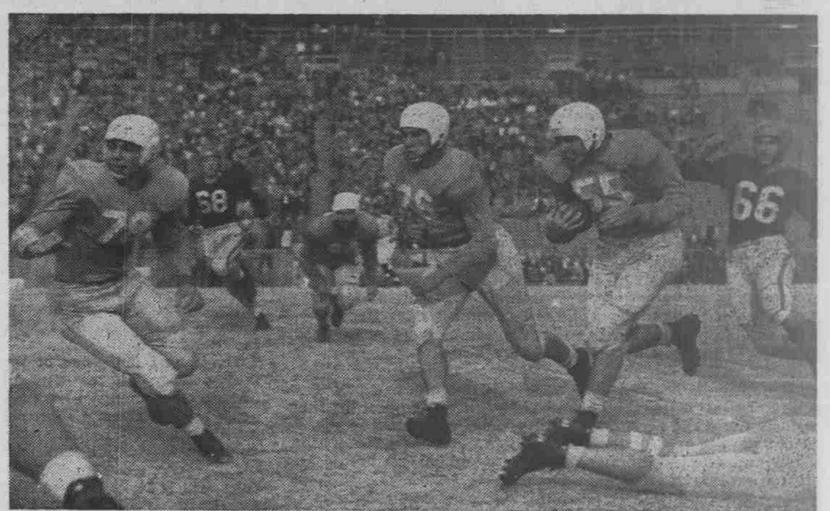

Carolina waited until late in the third period to complete their first aerial, and then for a loss of three yards, when a completion in the closing moments of the first half might have meant a tie score at intermission and some new confidence for the second portion.

With hopes riding high and alumni looking on for the promised win, Carolina kicked off to Virginia to start the first quarter. It was a good move, for it resulted in a quick Tar Heel tally.

The Virginians received, took three cracks at the then-stout Carolina line and then resorted to punting. Harold Hoak stuck his mighty foot into from the Va. 28 and Safetyman Len Bullock, a fine freshman from Ayden gathered it in on the Tar Heel 31.

Bullock neatly sidestepped the down quickly under the boot, picked up some rare blocking—one body slam by Jim McCreedy, another freshman, at the Carolina 45 which took out two Cavaliers—to go 69 yards for the touchdown.

Tom Adler kicked his seventh straight extra point (The Tar Heels have scored seven touchdowns this season) and Carolina had a handsome seven-point lead and were beginning to count on the first win.

CAROLINA'S BUD WALLACE gets good interference here as he makes one of the Tar Heels' few offensive gains during yesterday's rout by Virginia. Giving him the blocking power are John Lambert (78) and Ken Yarborough (76). The Cavaliers took their third straight game from Carolina, 34-7.

Guests View Homecoming Celebration

Perfect fall weather enhanced the appeal of a colorful Homecoming Day and the general festivity with the meeting of two such long-time traditional rivals as Carolina and Virginia on the gridiron at Chapel Hill yesterday. Thousands of returning alumni, hundreds of pretty visiting college girls, plus an enthusiastic student body and guests from the University of Virginia joined in a gala weekend, beginning with a German Club dance last night, and continuing through many "rehashes" of the football game into the late hours last night.

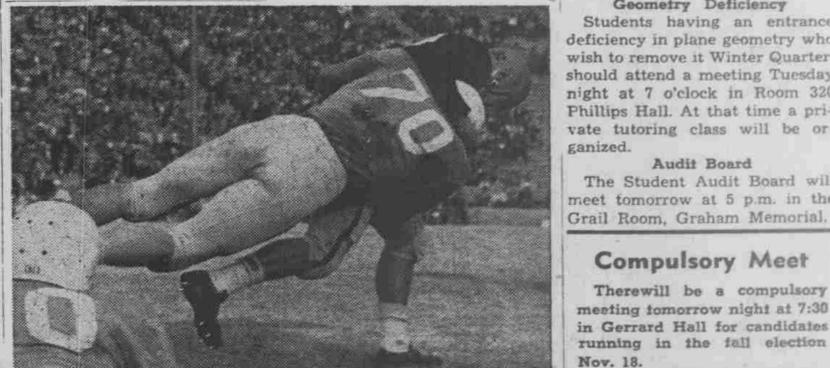

Highligh of the Homecoming program was the crowning at half-time of a Queen for the day—Miss Grace Gordon, attractive brunette Carolina senior from Spray, who was chosen to reign over the festivities by members of the University Club, sponsors of the Homecoming activities.

She was presented in mid-field ceremonies at half-time by John Seely of Winston-Salem, president of the Club. Members of the organization had sent her an orchid corsage which she wore at her shoulder.

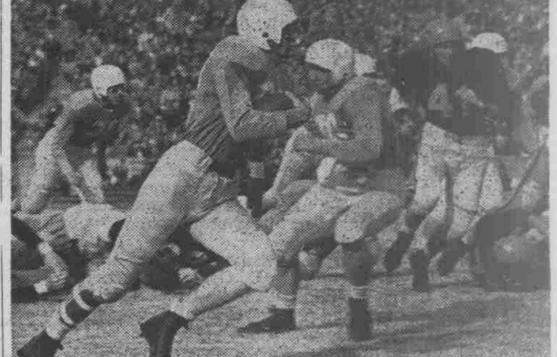

Also a feature at half-time was the mammoth display of 22 visiting high school bands which joined with the Carolina and Virginia bands in presenting a program of music and figures in which 1500 musicians participated.

Special guests at the game were some 500 Explorer Scouts attending the Occochee Council vocational conference here during the weekend and 75 outstanding high school football players who were guests of the Athletic Association.

A number of alumni groups held meetings here on the campus here today. Among them were the Medical Foundation, the General Alumni Association, and an organizational meeting of the law school alumni.

OFF HIS FEET in a diving tackle is Ed Patterson (70) as he attempts to pull down Virginia's Harold Hoak in the second quarter of yesterday's game. Hoak grabbed a pass by Charlie Harding from the Virginia 28-yard-line and scampered 18 yards for a first down before being pulled down by Patterson and Albert Long (not pictured). —Daily Tar Heel photo by Cornell Wright.

School In Folk Dance Opens Here Tomorrow

A week-long free folk dance clinic opens tomorrow, led by Gene Gowling, considered the leading authority on the traditions and history of this type of dancing.

The clinic will be held in the Women's Gymnasium. Townspeople have been invited to attend along with students. Coeds particularly are needed, officials said yesterday.

The schedule:
Monday—8 p.m., Square dance party.
Tuesday—8 p.m., Callers clinic.
Wednesday—8 p.m., Square dance party.
Thursday—4 p.m., Instructions and party.
Thursday—8 p.m., Callers clinic.

The social dance usually held Thursdays at 8 p.m. will be held instead at 6:45 p.m., Wednesday, for this week.
Gowling is operator of a folk dancing school located in the midst of New Hampshire's White Mountains. During the summer, he conducts the Folkways Foundation, which offers courses to those wishing to institute folk dancing in schools, community programs and the like. For the past 15 years he has collected and taught English folk dances and American square dancing.

Boston Prof To Lecture

Dr. Eddie Asivatham, professor of missions and Christian international relations at Boston University School of Theology, will be a guest lecturer here Nov. 14-17.

He will lecture on "Religion's Part in International Relations" as part of a conference at Camp New Hope. Dr. Asivatham and Paul Green, will moderate the conference at New Hope.

Green has just completed a world trip under sponsorship of the Rockefeller Foundation and UNESCO. He visited some 25 nations and lectured in many universities and civic groups.

Dr. Asivatham, of Madras India, was educated in this country, in India, England and Scotland. He received his Ph.D. from Edinburgh University.

Coed Dean's Office

The staff of the Dean of Women's office will be in Raleigh tomorrow and Tuesday during the entire day to attend a meeting of the Southern College Personnel Association.

Students desiring to consult with the dean's office on these days are asked not to come.

Official Of NAM Speaks Tuesday

Earl Bunting, managing director of the National Association of Manufacturers, will address the University Faculty Club at a luncheon meeting Tuesday.

He will speak on the subject of "Partners in Understanding." Bunting also will speak to a student group at 8 p.m. in the Faculty Room of the Morehead Building. His topic is "A Blue Print for Freedom."

Bunting is the former president of the O'Sullivan Rubber Company. He is an honorary member of Delta Sigma Pi. The evening meeting will be sponsored by the School of Business Administration and business administration professional fraternities Delta Sigma Pi and Alpha Kappa Psi. The public is invited to attend.

C. S. MARTIN

Canon Martin Will Talk On Worship, Life

The Rev. Canon Charles S. Martin, canon of the Washington Cathedral, will preach a mission at the Chapel of the Cross, the Episcopal Church, today through Tuesday. The topic for this mission is worship and life.

Canon Martin will preach at the 11 a.m. service today, tonight at 7:30 on "Offering and Work." On Monday at 7:30 p.m. he will preach on "Consecration and Life," and will finish the mission on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. with a topic of "Community and Communion."

Canon Martin, before becoming canon at the Washington Cathedral was rector of St. Paul's Church in Burlington, Vt.

SPEBSQSA Will Colonize This Tuesday

SPEBSQSA is coming to campus.

That's short for the society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. An organizational meeting is planned for 8:30 Tuesday night on the second floor of the Y. Bob Minter, 305 Lewis Dormitory, is leading the organizational effort and yesterday asked anyone interested to contact him at his room or at the meeting Tuesday night.

"Plenty of students and townspeople who have a bent for close harmony should be happy to hear this," Minter said. He emphasized he wanted it a community affair and to include townspeople as well as students.

Going back over SPEBSQSA's history, Minter said the group now is organized on an international scale and has more than 650 chapters in the United States and Canada. SPEBSQSA was formed in 1938 by a Tulsa, Okla. attorney, Owen C. Cash. Since that time it has grown rapidly to its present roll of 650 local groups.

Minter said further meetings will be held later. He asked those interested to attend Tuesday "to get in on the ground floor."

Book Decision

Dr. Frank W. Hanft, professor of law here, will discuss his new book, "You Can Believe," at a Bull's Head tea in the Assembly-Exhibition Room of the Library Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The public is invited. Numerous demands for his lectures on Christianity in printed form led to the writing of his book, "You Can Believe," recently off the press.
