

Tar Heel Booters Will Meet State This Afternoon

Track Trouble

CAROLINA HEAD TRACK Coach Dale Ransom's cross country team was beaten before the season ever started according to the training and conditioning experts.

The team had just about reached its physical peak in late September when two cases of polio forced the cancellation of three weeks of practice and sidelined two outstanding team members. Bob Barden, who led the team last year, and Dick Bostian were lost for the year.

The Tar Heel track men could do nothing but sit around and fret for those three weeks, while Carolina's first four cross-country runs were cancelled. The infirmary finally gave Ransom the green light to start practice again when the season was exactly half over, and other teams were in top shape.

Ransom virtually left the decision up to the team. He told the boys they could cancel the remainder of the schedule, or just the run with Maryland coming up in the next few days. The team decided to fulfill the rest of the schedule, including powerful Maryland, runner up in the Conference Championships the year before.

Shut Out By Terps

CAROLINA OPENED with the Terps, and Maryland shut out the cross country team in a 15-55 rout. Mo Osborne was the first Tar Heel to finish, and he was behind the last Terp.

The team worked feverishly at getting back in shape, but a week later, Tennessee, the perennial Southeastern Conference champions, handed Carolina another resounding defeat. No one on the Carolina team was sorry he decided to run in those meets, though, and Ransom put the boys to work preparing for Virginia the following week.

Hard work paid off at last when the Tar Heels met Virginia, and Osborne and Bob Webb paced Carolina to its first win of the delayed season.

Team Beats Duke, Davidson

ON MONDAY THE team went to Raleigh to participate in the North Carolina State Championship with N. C. State, Davidson, and Duke, Osborne and Webb tied for fifth place, leading Carolina's second place finish behind State, the defending champs. Other Tar Heel runners turned in fine performances at Raleigh, surprising even the ever-hopeful Ransom. Besides senior co-captains Webb and Osborne, sophomore Al Marx, junior Bill Higgins, and sophomores Ed Vogel and Don Wright all turned in creditable performances.

Carolina finishes its season next Monday in Richmond at the Southern Conference Championships. While Ransom isn't expecting the team to seriously threaten State or Maryland, he feels that it may decide who wins the meet by taking a number of places down the line.

"We're finally in shape," said Ransom. "We are reaching the physical condition now that other teams have been in since early October."

"I'm proud of my boys. They are an inexperienced bunch, but they gave all they had, and did better than anyone suspected. Osborne and Webb are only in their second year of competition, and besides Higgins, the rest of the team is sophomores or freshmen."

Globetrotters Will Appear In Coliseum This Month

RALEIGH — Abe Saperstein's Harlem Globetrotters, the all-time wonder team of basketball, comes to the William Neal Reynolds Coliseum on Saturday night, Nov. 22, to headline a doubleheader against the Boston Whirlwinds. The program will start at 8:30 p.m. and also includes the Philadelphia Warriors vs the Baltimore Bullets of the N.B.A. in the opening game.

In their 26th season of cage heroics, the fabulous magicians of the court are out to surpass their silver anniversary exploits which took them almost to the start of the current 1952-53 campaign.

Always one to strive for bigger and better things, owner-coach Saperstein has assembled what he regards as his finest aggregation of players and showmen for the year-long schedule arranged to keep his cagers busy until next October.

Last season, their 25th in succession, saw them make the first around-the-world tour ever undertaken by a basketball team. As America's ambassadors of good will, they took their show to Mexico, all through South America, England, France, Belgium, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, North Africa, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Lebanon, Egypt, Thailand, Japan, China, the Philippines, and Hawaii. In Italy they were granted an audience by the Pope and made newspaper headlines throughout the world by acquiescing to His Holiness' request that they perform for him.

Scabbard And Blade Will Tap Today

Five NROTC students will be tapped by Scabbard and Blade in ceremonies on Fetzer Field this afternoon.

The new initiates to the national military fraternity will be honored with a ceremonial review at 3:15 p.m. Names of those chosen will not be released until the tapping.

Local Squad Looking For Revenge Win

By Paul Cheney

Carolina's revenge-minded soccer eleven travels to Raleigh this afternoon to meet the North Carolina State booters in a Southern Conference contest. The Wolfpack took a 1-0 decision from the locals in the season's opener here.

Going by the record the two teams are very evenly matched. Both have beaten Washington and Lee and both have lost to Duke. The Blue Devils' margin of victory was greater over State than over the Tar Heels.

This is Carolina's seventh game of the season. The Tar Heels have three wins and three losses to show for six previous contests. Carolina has defeated Virginia, Roanoke, and Washington and Lee, while losing to Penn State, N. C. State, and Duke.

Goalie Tison and fullback Kalb have been outstanding defensive performers for Carolina this year, while the offense has been sparked by Russell, Randolph, and Pawlik.

Georgia Tech Second, Maryland Third In Poll

NEW YORK—Michigan State, Georgia Tech, and Maryland, regarded as the "class" of college football after Oklahoma's resounding crash last Saturday, came about as near as possible to landing in a three-way tie for first place in this week's Associated Press football poll.

Michigan State still held the lead today after 138 ballots from sportswriters and broadcasters had been counted, but for the second straight week the Spartans' point total dropped. Georgia Tech's impressive 45-6 victory over Army boosted the Engineers into second place, a shade ahead of Maryland, which took third.

Doug Bruton To Miss South Carolina Game

The Carolina football squad returned to the practice field yesterday afternoon after a one-day layoff to prepare for their game against South Carolina Friday.

Of the several injuries that cropped up in the Virginia game only that of Doug Bruton seems to be very serious. Bruton has a dislocated shoulder and will definitely miss the game Saturday.

That may leave Carolina without either of its first string line-backers as Junior Seawell is on the doubtful list for the South Carolina game. Seawell was originally injured against Tennessee and was hurt again in the Virginia game.

Halfbacks Ken Keller and Bob White are still out and they are doubtful starters Saturday. Filling in for them is Connie Gravitt, a letterman last year who has not seen much action this year. Offensive practice was led by Marshall Newman and Charlie Motta and some of the backs reeled off some long runs. Special emphasis was placed on the blocking of the guards and center.

Coach Jim Gill ran the defensive team through a practice against the South Carolina version of the "T."
