STUDENTS WILL MEET TODAY ON SATURDAY CLASS MOVE

Dear Pledges To Fight Extra Class; Roberts Says Reasons 'Not Political'

BIFF ROBERTS

Phi Rebukes Trustee Unit For Action

The Trustee Executive Committee was censured for its Saturday class proposal by a campus group almost as old as the Board of Trustees itself, when the Phi Assembly met Tuesday night.

By an overwhelming vote, the 159-year old debating society adopted a resolution "favoring any honorable action leading to the rejection" of the committee's proposal.

Chief argument in support of the Phi bill was that the action represented another in a series of trespasses by the Trustees upon functions that should properly be left up to the faculty and students.

The bill termed the move "obnoxious to the liberal, progressive principles of education which the University has fostered since its inception."

"No reason has been given for this action," the bill continued, "except to prevent the students and faculty from receiving much needed rest and relaxation."

Marine Band Will Be Here Tuesday Nite

The 154-year-old United States Marine Band will give a concert in Memorial Hall Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

On its annual fall tour, the Marine Band will appear here under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Committee.

The Marine Band was the first band in the United States military service and the first to receive congressional recognition. John Philip Sousa became leader of the Band in 1890 and it was under Sousa that the Band made its first trans-continental tour in 1891.

The Band now makes an annual nine-week tour. It also plays three weekly radio broadcasts, makes frequent television appearances, and attends all White House social functions. In keeping with its century-and-a-half custom, it plays winter and summer concerts for the Washington public.

Ring Sale

There will be a Senior Class ring sale today in the Y Lobby from 2 p.m. until 4:30.

The orders will be taken by a Grant representative. Delivery dates and prices will be available from the representative.

"My reasons for entering the race for editor of THE DAILY TAR HEEL are taken purely from a newspaperman's standpoint and are not political," Biff Roberts, UP candidate said yesterday.

Roberts praised former editor Barry Farber for "taking the paper out of near-chaos, organizing a staff, and returning a full-size daily to the students."

"We had one of the best editors the paper has ever had in Barry Farber and it is unfortunate that we lost him to a higher power," Roberts said. Farber was drafted and enters the armed services today.

He promised to carry on where Farber left off. "The only campaign promise that I can make is that, if elected, I will try to carry on where he left off," Roberts stated. "Right now the paper is sound, the staff is a good one, and I can see no need for any drastic changes."

"Of course, we had circulation problems at the beginning of the year, but most of these have been solved now and I can see no reason to base a campaign on an error that is being corrected," the Sports Editor said.

Roberts said he was basing his hopes for election on what newspaper experience he has had. He listed four years on THE DAILY TAR HEEL, two years desk work on the Louisville Courier-Journal, three years correspondence for the same paper and a year as Sports Editor of the Yackety Yack.

"I can only promise to answer the problems confronting the paper as each one arises and to handle the paper's business in a conservative manner," he concluded.

"I can guarantee a stand such that the paper won't groom well with Gromwell — and that we don't go to Saturday classes."

DR. A. POWELL DAVIES, minister of All Souls Unitarian Church in Washington, will speak at Hill Hall tonight at 8:30. The public is invited to hear one of the nation's outstanding liberal preachers. His subject will be "The Danger of Preaching from the Bible."

Extra Day To Register

The registration deadline for the international relations conference at Camp New Hope this weekend has been extended until 3:30 p.m. today. The fee is $2.50 and includes lodging and meals.

"Religion's Part in International Relations" will be the theme of the conference. Dr. Eddy Asirvatham, professor of missions and Christian international religions at Boston University, will lead conference sessions. Dr. Asirvatham is past vice-president of the Indian Political Science Association and is visiting the campus under the auspices of the YMCA and the Inter-faith Council. He will visit political science classes and will speak at a social science luncheon Monday.

Paul Green, author and lecturer, will assist Dr. Asirvatham in the leadership of the conference.

Walt Dear, independent candidate for THE DAILY TAR HEEL editor's post, yesterday pledged all out editorial support in the move to stop Saturday classes.

Dear has been endorsed and is being backed by the Student Party, but said the day before his endorsement that he would run for the post as an independent.

"I am opposed to the idea of Saturday classes," he said. "I feel that administration, faculty and student opinion have been disregarded, and I will make every effort possible now and later to see that the weekend classes are not instituted."

Dear appealed to all students for expression of their ideas and complaints through THE DAILY TAR HEEL, through petitions, and through letters to parents, trustees and to Gov. Scott.

In an effort to make a campus-wide survey to find out what students like and dislike about the newspaper, Dear plans to attend dormitory meetings.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON — Testimony piled up yesterday that the U. S. has exploded the world's first hydrogen bomb at Eniwetok—but the Atomic Energy Commission still has "no comment." Evidence is mostly from eyewitness letters written by members of the task force at the Eniwetok test operations.

WASHINGTON — President Truman may ask President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower for a public endorsement of the Allied stand against forced repatriation of Red prisoners in Korea, administration officials said yesterday. Diplomatic authorities feel Ike must end possible Russian hopes for a U. S. retreat on the POW issue and prevent the UN Korean debate from collapsing in uncertainty.

NEW YORK—The United Nations should either help purge itself of "spies and saboteurs" or get out of the United States, members of the Senate Internal Security Committee said Tuesday. Committee Chairman Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) told newsmen he believed his committee's inquiry had brought about the resignation of UN Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

YANCEYVILLE—A "leer" cost Mack Ingram a six-months suspended sentence and put him on good behavior for five years. Charged with assaulting Mrs. Willie Jean Webster, the 44-year-old Negro farmer was convicted yesterday by an all-white male jury. The girl testified that Ingram "leered" at her from about 75 feet and the jury upheld the states' contention that by "leering" at her, Ingram frightened the girl and thus committed assault.

WASHINGTON — President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower's advance financial scout, Joseph M. Dodge, arrived yesterday to "look, listen and find out what I can" about President Truman's plans for the fiscal 1954 budget. Umstead Explains; Special Rally At 3

Wire Recording, Printed Material To Spark Battle

By Louis Kraar
Students will voice their opinions against Saturday classes this afternoon at a special rally in Memorial Hall at 3 o'clock.

Tape recordings, petitions, hand bills and other mediums will be the sounding board for student opinion at this mass meeting. President Ham Horton urged all students to be present in order that the meeting "will fully represent student opinion. Let's keep this on a sane, mature basis so that we can win this battle," he said.

"A good turnout is one of the most important weapons we have in combating this thing," said Horton in stressing the importance of the meeting.

Meanwhile Attorney-General Phil Horton was busy at work in the Vice-President's office in Graham Memorial, clearing house for all plans in the campus-wide campaign.

Every fraternity, sorority, and campus organization was contacted and asked to pass resolutions protesting Saturday classes.

Tape recordings of this afternoon's meeting will be made by a technician from Swain Hall. Following the meeting those who have definite reasons against Saturday classes and want to air their views may make individual recordings.

Thirty yards of petitions containing close to 3,000 names were measured yesterday evening with still more expected from various organizations. Those students who haven't signed may do so in the student government of THE DAILY TAR HEEL office. All petitions and resolutions are to be given to Phil Horton at the campaign headquarters in the vice-president's office before the meeting.

"What You Can Do To Fight Saturday Classes," a special printed sheet stating the case against the dreaded sixth day of class, will be distributed at the meeting. It is to be mailed to parents and trustees.

Copies of the Trustee's report from a previous meeting at which they opposed Saturday classes are also to be distributed.

Victor Bryant, chairman of the Visiting Committee, is one of the leading proponents of Saturday classes on the Executive Committee. The long rolls of student petitions, wire recordings, and other things representing campus sentiment over this controversy will be presented to Bryant and his committee tomorrow.

The agenda for today's rally is a presentation of the facts by President Horton; open forum discussion; reading of resolutions (See RECORDING, page 4)

Trustee's Switch Came As Result Of Opinion Study

By John Jamison
University Trustee John W. Umstead Jr., yesterday explained he switched from a position favoring Saturday classes to his present position against them after discovering "there were facts pertaining to the question that I had not considered."

Simultaneously Chancellor Robert B. House observed that the Executive Committee has "returned to the position expressed in the action of the Board of Trustees on June 2, 1948," ordering a plan looking toward the resumption of Saturday classes as early as practicable.

In a letter to THE DAILY TAR HEEL explaining his reversal Umstead said, "In 1948 when the matter of Saturday classes came before the Board of Trustees I seconded the motion that was passed calling for the resumption of Saturday classes as soon as practicable."

He continued, "Several members of the faculty and several students talked with me about the matter and I found that there were facts pertaining to the question that I had not considered. Wishing to strengthen my position favoring the motion that had been passed I decided to go into the matter thoroughly and with each group that were interested. "Over a period of two years I talked with administrative officers of the University, faculty members, students and both fathers and mothers of students. I tried get all the facts to the end that after thorough consideration I might make up my mind as to what would be best for the University."

"As a result of this investigation I came to the conclusion that I was wrong in favoring the original motion. When the matter was again brought up on Monday I opposed and shall continue to offer all the opposition that I can. The arguments against Saturday classes too many to carry them in this statement but I will be delighted to defend my position before any group and at any time."

Chancellor House issued the following statement (abridged):

"Subsequent to this action of the Board (ordering the study of a plan for Saturday classes), a faculty committee and the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees studied the five-day class week matter thoroughly. The Visiting Committee in its report to the Board on February 28, 1949, gave a complete analysis of the problem. The committee concluded that the advantages of the five-day class week out-weighed the disadvantages.

"The report of the Visiting Committee was approved by the Board of Trustees, and the University Administration considered this to mean that no change in the five-day class week was desired by the Board.

"From time to time since 1949, the question has been raised again.

"On Monday, November 10, 1952, the Executive Committee returned to the position expressed (See SWITCH, page 4)
