Tar Heels Taste Victory

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 15—Mid fumbles and offside penalties Carolina finally got its offense rolling here this afternoon and found out that there's nothing like winning a football game. The Tar Heels, 14-point underdogs at game time, minced the South Carolina line, ranked fourth in the nation before today on rushing defense, for four touchdowns, by far the most productive effort of the season.

This first victory of the year was especially sweet in that it disclosed better things to come. The brunt of the Carolina offense fell on the shoulders of freshmen and sophomores. In fact, the big show of the day was freshman Flo Worrell, a former junior varsity star, who made his first offensive effort for the varsity in this game today.

Worrell scored two touchdowns, one of them on a double reverse which carried 50 yards. In addition to that he made some of the most exciting field running a Carolina back has shown since the days of you know who. He led both teams in the individual statistics with a personal mark of 120 yards, well over the Carolina team running average for the year.

Newman Runs And Passes

Marshall Newman, the freshman quarterback who heretofore had stuck to passing and sending his backs through the center of the line, found out that he himself could run the ball. He looked much better on the option play today and showed a good bit of speed in running—something which he had successfully kept concealed until today's jubilee. He set up our first touchdown when with the ball on the 50-yard-line he faded to pass, saw daylight between a host of Gamecock rushers, and dashed 40 yards to the SC 10-yard-line. He then had Larry Parker hit for five. Worrell tried the center again but failed to gain—one of his few misses of the day. The end of the quarter caused the ball to be moved to the other end of the field, but on the first play of the second period Parker took a hand-off and skirted the right end and slid into the end zone, safely inside the red flag.

There were others of coach Carl Snavelly's band of young'uns who contributed to this rebirth of football freedom. George Wallin, another Jayvee convert, played a good game on offense and defense. His powerful running looked most impressive to press box observers. Larry Parker made his best showing of the season, too, running with the same form that carried him to great high school honors two years ago. His slippery fingers held his gaining down, but outside of his fumbling, his performance was more than creditable.

Pass Defense Still Weak

But all in all it was a team performance that brought this first victory in 12 straight games. Not since October last year, when we beat these same Gamecocks, had we won a game. Our pass defense still looked weak—pitifully weak at times—and South Carolina quarterbacks Johnny Gramling and Dick Balka capitalized to spark the Gamecock offense.

The first SC score was set up on a long pass from Gramling to end Clyde Bennett, and their second came on a pass from Gramling to Bennett again. But despite this weakness, the Carolina defenders seemed to come up with the ball when they had to. When the South Carolina passers started frantically filling the air in the closing minutes the defensive backs did their finest job. Safetyman Albert Long grabbed one on the two-yard line in that final flurry and ran it back 25 yards to end the South Carolina threat.

It looked for a while that we were going through another game just like the other ones. We fumbled on our second play from scrimmage, one of our seven bobbles of the day, and they reman alternated the running of back Larry Parker and John Gaylord with short jump passes to drive to the 11-yard line of South Carolina in nine plays after the kickoff.

With fourth down and three yards to go for a first, Newman handed off to Parker who was thrown back to the 20 to stop the threat.

Both teams were bothered by fumbles, the ball changing hands three more times through bad ball handling in the first quarter.

Carolina went into the lead shortly after the start of the second period. South Carolina back Bobby Drawdy fumbled on the Tar Heel 35-yard-line after making a first down, and safety Al Long recovered for North Carolina.

The Gamecock defense stopped the Tar Heels after they made a first down on the 50. Newman faded to pass on third down, couldn't find a receiver, and decided to run, dodging two men while racing to the South Carolina 10-yard line.

Parker bucked to the five, and then one play later took a hand-off and raced around right end to tie the score at 6-6. Adler converted to give the Tar Heels covered. On their first play Gramling hit Bennett on the right. One off-tackle play gave them six points with only 1:35 gone by. But we tightened after that and came back to do our own scoring.

That we did control the ball most of the day is pointed out by the fact that Buddy Wallace punted only two times, for a 41-yard average. In our other games he had been forced to kick as many as 12 times. Coach Snavelly pulled some tricks out that he had been concealing all year, the most effective of which was a short jump pass with only receiver out. Newman hit on it three times and it worked all three times—giving us yardage at crucial moments. Another thing of beauty came when Newman pitched out to Connie Gravitte, who ran to his right and then hit Benny Walsler on the goal line for a 15-yard scoring gem. Walsler was Carolina's most effective receiver, catching two a 7-6 lead. Carolina began to move after taking a punt, but lost the ball when Parker fumbled on the Gamecock 35-yard line.

Wilson and Bud Morrell of South Carolina cracked to the Carolina 40 for first downs, and then Gramling faded and threw to Morrell on the Tar Heel 21. Morrell was sitting on the ground.

But the pass nailed him to the spot on the next play. Gramling threw to Clyde Bennett in the end zone for the score, giving South Carolina a 12-7 lead. Jim Jarrett converted and South Carolina led 13-7 with 5:30 left in the second period.

The Gamecocks threatened to score again with one minute left in the half. Mike Coskey and Gramling alternated at running and passing to give South Carolina a first down on the 16, but Carolina safetyman Sonny Ridenhour stopped the threat by intercepting a pass on the Tar Heel 10-yard line. Newman ran the clock out, and the half ended, 13-7, South Carolina.

North Carolina grabbed its commanding lead before a minute had passed in the third period. The Tar Heel line recovered a for 39 yards.

The defensive line, which has had a tendency to fold in the second half of recent games had no intentions of folding today. With a lead to protect throughout the second half, the line gave ground around mid-field but held when South Carolina headed toward the goal. Francis Fredere looked good after being switched to defensive tackle but it was the work of all the linemen—Junior Seawell, Tom Higgins, Paul Hursh, an a swarm of others that plucked the Gamecocks.

It was a great victory — one which had to come—but more important than the fact that we won was the feeling that the players and the few Carolina rooters of the day's crowd of 20,000 felt. This victory was a throwing off of shackles. We've been imprisoned in a cage of defeat all year. This win may be the master key to the lock.

Gramling fumble on the second play on the South Carolina 28-yard line. Parker crashed to the 24 and then Worrell, running from right half in place of John Gaylord, carried three men to the 5. Worrell bucked over tackle on the next play for the score, and Adler converted to give North Carolina a 14-13 lead.

South Carolina made three quick first downs after taking the kickoff, and threatened to stage a drive, but Junior Seawell intercepted a pass for Carolina on the 45 and set up the deciding Tar Heel touchdown.

Newman completed his third jump pass, this time to right end Benny Walsler, who took the ball on the 50 and raced to the South Carolina 25-yard line. Parker was stopped a half-yard short of a first down on the 15, but Newman bucked twice on the quarter-back sneak to make it.

Worrell was thrown to the 20, and then Newman pitched out to Connie Gravitte on the right. Gravitte ran, stopped, spotted Walsler in the end zone, and fired a touchdown pass.

Adler's conversion increased the lead to 21-13.

South Carolina made its last bid just before the end of the third quarter. The Gamecocks were forced to punt after the kickoff, and Ridenhour was dropped on the Carolina 10. Two plays later, Parker fumbled, and Bill COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 15—Carolina's soccer eleven dropped a 2-1 decision to the University of Maryland team here this afternoon in a game played in a steady downpour and a sea of mud. Despite the imperfect weather conditions, both teams played with exceptional skill.

Maryland scored first in the opening quarter but Carolina tied the score in the second quarter on Gerry Russell's goal. The winning marker for Maryland came in the third quarter.

The Tar Heels close their season this coming Wednesday when they meet Duke in Chapel Hill.

Earley recovered for the Gamecocks on the 10.

North Carolina's line almost held, but Wohrman got a first down on the one-inch line, and then went over for the score on the next play. Jarrett converted, and the Tar Heels' lead was cut to 21-19 at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

After an exchange of punts,

Carolina took the ball on its 40. Charlie Motta went in to direct the Tar Heel split-T and handed off to Gravitte on the first play for a first down on the 48-yard line of South Carolina.

Motta pitched out to Worrell who dashed into the end zone. George Wallen threw the key block on the play. Adler missed his first conversion of the day.

What happened to the spirit?

IT WENT OUT WITH RACCOON COATS and rumble seats. And we say good riddance.

Today's college man doesn't die a thousand deaths when the school loses the big game. And his clothes are no longer flashy, fancy and gaudy.

For his apparel, he looks to Manhattan* to reflect his quiet, self-assured manner . . . his insistence on quality, comfort and casualness.

Like this button-down Oxford with just the proper roll to the collar. Or this fine white piqué with an eyelet tab collar with just the right degree of difference.

We understand the modern college man. We concentrate our efforts, not on fads, but on making a better shirt. Ask for Manhattan . . . and you'll see how true this is.
