In Your Church

By Tom Neal

Baptist

A quintet of Carolina BSU members journeyed to Camp Butler Youth Center Friday night to engage the sharp-shooting lads there in an early basketball game. The initial impetus for the contest came last Sunday night when 15 Camp Butler youths were guests of the BSU at the regular Baptist Supper Forum. Although the BSU cagers had held no practice sessions prior to the game, they turned in a creditable performance.

For the past two Sunday mornings attendance at Sunday School has decreased considerably. Dr. Epps is continuing his enlightening interpretation of II Isaiah, and those students who are attending his class are finding the Sunday morning discussions most beneficial. The class meets this morning at 9:45 a.m.

The supper forum program tonight will be directed by Edlyn Freerks, graduate student in economics. The program which will follow the 6 o'clock supper, will include worship through hymns, litany and scripture.

Next Sunday a social gathering at the church will follow the Duke-Carolina game.

Christian Science

"Mortals and Immortals" is the topic of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches today. Church services and Sunday School classes of the local group are held each Sunday at 11 a.m. in New West.

Congregational-Christian

After enumerating and discussing the various ideas of God and their applications to a vital Christian faith, the United Student Fellowship today will take up a discussion of "What Can We Believe About God?"

Several representatives of the local USF are in Greensboro today attending the state meeting of the United Student Fellowship meeting which opened yesterday.

The sermon at the Congregational-Christian church this morning is entitled "Do You Want To Find God?"

Religious Society of Friends

The Quakers will meet this morning in Graham Memorial at 11 o'clock for their service. This morning Isabelle Ryan, leader, will discuss "Friends and Good Works" — how Quakers regard humanitarian service.

Roman Catholic

The meeting of the Newman Club has been announced for 5:15 p.m. at Lenoir Hall. Members of the group are requested to go through the regular cafeteria line and to meet on second floor Lenoir for a supper-discussion session.

Five members of the Newman Club are attending the Jubilee Convention of the Southeastern Province of the Newman Club, at Winthrop College (Rock Hill, S. C.) this weekend.

Masses each Sunday are observed at 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Methodist

A dramatic presentation by transcription of the life of Andy Bershak, a former Carolina football player, will highlight the evening program at Wesley Foundation tonight. Andy suffered from an incurable disease and knowing that he had only one year to live, he wanted to make it count. He did make it count for himself and for others.

The weekly Wesley Foundation schedule is as follows: Thursday, 5:45 p.m., vespers; Thursday, 8 p.m., Young Adults; Friday, 7:30 p.m., "Fireside" meeting; Sunday, 9:45, cocoa and donuts; 10 a.m., Wesley class, Joel Savell—teacher; 10 a.m., Young Adult class, Dr. Frank Hamft, teacher; 5:30 p.m., Fun and Fellowship and 6 o'clock Supper and program.

Wedgwood Plates Show New England At Work

By Mary Grace Megginson

The spirit of the rugged men who settled and tamed New England has been caught and preserved for posterity in a collection of 12 Wedgwood plates bearing designs by Miss Clare Leighton, a native English woman and former Chapel Hill resident.

The plates, together with other Wedgwood pieces, are on exhibit in the main lobby of the Library. The exhibit will continue until Dec. 6.

The designs, done in black and white, represent the basic industries of New England—portraying the harvest wrung from both earth and water.

Five show cases are devoted to the display. Industries depicted are sugaring, shipbuilding, grist milling, whaling, farming, cranberrying, ice cutting, logging, tobacco growing, codfishing, lobstering and marble quarrying.

Each plate shows a picturesque, authentic phase of early New England life. Miss Leighton, who began the project in 1947 while living near Chapel Hill, makes a practice of gathering her material first hand and, in fact, goes to the location to become "a living part" of the scenes she is to depict. She now lives in Woodbury, Conn.

She traveled all over New England to get material for her sketches. The plates, made at the Wedgwood plant in Barlaston, England, were completed only last month.

In each case, the designs show workmen carrying out their particular job. At the base of each design the artist sketched the pre-machine age implements with which the work was done. Often Miss Leighton was able to locate the ancient tools only in museums.

In addition to the 12 plates, the display cases show, from sketch to engraving, how they were produced.

Miss Leighton, one of America's best known graphic artists, was requested by the firm of Josiah Wedgwood to engrave this set of plates. The winner of a number of prizes, Miss Leighton's work has been displayed at museums in New York, Baltimore, Washington, the British Museum, the Victoria and Albert Museums in London and in the National Gallery of Canada.

CELEBRATE CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK WITH US

From November 16th to November 22nd we'll be celebrating Children's Book Week at the Intimate Bookshop, and we hope you'll drop in.

There'll be a big display of the new Fall Children's Books, chosen for gay color and moderate price.

And a small present for every small person who brings his parents.

You aren't as old as you think! Come in and enjoy a second childhood with us during Children's Book Week.

OUR CHILDRENS BOOK CODE

We believe that the most important gift in the world is the gift of a book to a child. No other gift carries so much promise for the future. No other gift offers so much present delight.

We believe that quantity is important in a child's reading. Not one book, or two, but lots of books are needed to satisfy new little minds in a big strange world. Therefore you'll find our selection of books leans toward inexpensive editions.

We believe that color is important. We've seen so many books, beloved of librarians, approved by grammarians, equipped with Thorndike vocabularies and the latest psychological gadgets, but still-born because the average child wouldn't touch the dull-looking thing with a five-foot pole! So you'll find most of our books are colorful and inviting.

We view our children's shelves as a gateway to the rich world of books, and we hope that our selection will make that gate a delightful one to enter.
