CHAPEL HILL, N. C., THURSDAY, JANUARY 8, 1953

FOUR PAGES TODAY

Today's Inauguration Marks 27th Governor From UNC

Governor-elect William B. Umstead is the 27th alumnus of the University to attain the highest state office, and when he is inaugurated today many members of the class of 1916 will gather in Raleigh to pay tribute to their distinguished classmate.

The group will be seated in a special section on the inaugural platform in the capital city's Memorial Auditorium. Just before the formal reception, the group will attend a brief reunion at the Governor's Mansion.

The first University alumnus to serve the state as governor was William Miller in 1814-17. Since that time there have been 44 governors.

Umstead's Class of 1916 is one of the University's outstanding classes. Chancellor Robert B. House is also a member of the class and in the 1916 Yackety

Yack, pictures of Umstead and House are carried side by side. Umstead's picture is captioned "best debater" and House's is captioned "best student."

The Governor-elect's brother, John W. Umstead Jr., long-time Chapel Hill insurance executive and Representative in the State Legislature, graduated from the University in 1909.

Governor-elect Umstead made an outstanding record during his undergraduate days at the University. He is regarded as one of the most brilliant student speakers in the history of the institution.

Legislature To Consider Axed Budget

By John Jamison

The State Legislature next week will consider the Consolidated University's budget request, presumably axed in certain areas by the Advisory Budget Commission.

The original budget request, submitted by the University in September, totaled over 18 million dollars for physical improvements at the three institutions. However, this request was subject to review and possibly revision by the Advisory Budget Commission before being presented officially to the Legislature.

Because of the current public attention given to fire hazard conditions in fraternity and sorority houses on the campus, a question has arisen concerning similar conditions in University-owned buildings. Old West, Old East and Steele dormitories, specifically, have been termed hazardous.

The Legislature will be asked to appropriate funds for providing fire escapes for these buildings. Most other University buildings are already in compliance with the statute, Business Manager Claude Teague said yesterday.

An auditorium-armory, capable of seating the entire student body, and a new student union building were among the original budget items requested for the University at Chapel Hill. These two structures would cost $2,700,000. However, it is not known whether the Advisory Budget Commission saw fit to leave these items in its version of the budget request.

This version will not be known until it reaches the floor of the Legislature, probably next Tuesday night. Its secrecy is carefully guarded. The budget printer is bonded to prevent his revealing the contents to anyone.

TICKET EXCHANGE

Students, faculty members, and employees of the University who hold athletic passbooks will be required to exchange them for reserved seating assignments for the Wake Forest game on January 20.

Holders of passbooks bearing odd serial numbers can exchange their coupons at the Athletic office Monday through Wednesday, January 12-14. On Thursday through Saturday, January 15-17, the remaining tickets will be issued to holders of even numbered passbooks.

ITALIAN POLICE and newspapers are investigating photographs purported to be "interesting" nude poses of shapely actress Silvana Mangano. Copies of the pictures have been circulating in Italy for several months amid claims that the bosomy Italian film star actually posed for them. At least one leading newspaper has suggested that the photos are fakes.—NEA Telephoto.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON—A warning of the United States' hydrogen super-bomb was issued to Soviet Premier Josef Stalin yesterday by President Truman in his farewell State of the Union message to Congress. SEATTLE—A twin-engine C-46 Army transport plane bound for Fort Jackson, S. C., was reported missing somewhere over South Idaho yesterday. Aboard were 37 soldiers on rotation from Korea and a crew of four. Identity of those aboard was not available, but many were believed to be from the Carolinas.

For Sale Now: 'Jingles', A Ring-Tailed Monkey

By Bob Slough

Jingles the experimental ring-tailed South American monkey is up for sale.

The small, wide-eyed monkey was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Hyden Ramsey "because we wanted to experiment and just see what monkeys are like."

But now, the Ramseys have experimented and are selling the ring-tail to make room for a wooley monkey they recently ordered from South America.

"Jingles is well behaved," Mrs. Ramsey said, "except when we let him out of the cage. Then he is mischievous."

"The monkey eats most anything," she said. Among the food items on the monkey's diet are raw eggs, grapes, apples and candy. Entertainment for the monkey set is relatively simple. "Jingles sits for hours by the window and she loves to watch television," Mrs. Ramsey said.

Mrs. Ramsey said "We had no particular reason for buying the monkey. We wanted one so we just bought it."

"The wooley monkey was supposed to arrive before Christmas," Mrs. Ramsey said, "and we hope he will be here soon."

Local Model Of UN Soon To Be Ready

"Students can be assured that final plans will be completed this week towards organizing a model UN assembly on campus," Judy Anderson, spokesman for a core group working in conjunction with the YMCA on this project, said yesterday.

Definite plans of how, when and where to join and participate will be announced early next week, Miss Alexander added.

Already plans include to have a model General Assembly, Security Council, Secretariat, Economic and Social Council, Trusteeship Council and perhaps even some of the major subcommittees, such as FAO and UNESCO.

Plans do not include an International Court.
