WALLIN SCORES 2 TO PACE 20-14 BLUE WIN

High Schoolers Sample Day Of Carolina Life

Over 3,000 high schoolers viewed Carolina yesterday during the tenth annual High School Day. The Blue-White game drew the greater share of their interest in a day crammed with activities.

The blue jean and coke set toured the campus, saw exhibits and demonstrations and learned about courses from the Admissions Office in their one day sample of Carolina Life.

The day started early for the visiting high school students who registered at the Old Well at 8 a.m. University Club members served as the host committee throughout the morning. The guests saw radio station WUNC in action, a movie about Carolina, scientific exhibits in Phillips Hall and Venable, psychology demonstrations in New West and the Morehead Planetarium show.

Hill Hall musicians entertained the group with a half hour of bright tunes. Divers exhibited their skill at Bowman-Gray indoor pool and a morning varsity tennis match put Carolina against Wake Forest.

A gymnastics exhibition was put on in Woolen Gym and the Playmakers Theater echoed with the histrionic sounds of 50 one-act plays, part of the Carolina Dramatic Festival.

Alpha Phi Omega, campus service fraternity, and members of other campus fraternities and sororities conducted tours of the campus.

Morehead Planetarium accommodated the young people with five showings of its production, "Easter, The Awakening."

English Essay Contest Open To Non-Majors

The College English Association is holding a contest on "What English Departments Should Do For Students Not English Majors."

The Contest is open to all junior and senior undergraduates who are not English majors. First prize essay winner will receive $100 in cash, and the essay will be published in the CEA Critic.

Essays should discuss the aims, of the English Department, its purpose, desired results, and the means to achieve them. They should not exceed 1,200 words.

Entries must be postmarked no later than midnight, May 17, 1953. They should be in sealed envelopes bearing the statement, "My essay submitted to the College English Association Prize Contest, 1953," followed by the signature of the contestant, the name and address of his college, and his own address.

A statement from the head of the English Department that the contestant is a junior or senior student and not an English major must accompany the essay.

The entries must be double-spaced, typed, and each page, upper left, must bear the name and address of the author. They should be addressed to: Executive Secretary, College English Association, Box 472, Amherst, Mass.

Cosmopolitan Club

"The United Nations in World Disputes" will be the topic for the Cosmopolitan Club meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Graham Memorial. Dr. Dwight Rhyme of the University Extension Division will lead a discussion following the showing of a film on the UN.

Freshman Camp

Charles Wolf and Bennett Meyers, temporary co-chairmen of the Freshman Camp Planning Committee, said yesterday that applications are being received for the position of permanent chairman of the 1953 Freshman Camp. Those who are interested in applying for this position of leadership, should leave their names with Miss Irene McDonald in the YMCA Office tomorrow before 4:30.

Brown Favors Stilwell For Veep In Runoff

Bill Brown, defeated independent vice presidential candidate, yesterday gave his support to Jack Stilwell (UP) in the runoff with Baxter Miller (SP).

Brown drew only 534 votes to Miller's 857 and Stilwell's 923 in last week's election. The runoff is Wednesday.

"I sincerely appreciate the support I was given in the primary election," said Brown. "I now hope my supporters will vote in the runoff election. My support must be for Jack Stilwell."

"Jack has spent two years in the student legislature and that, together with his other student government work makes him well qualified for the vice presidency. It is my sincere belief he will do a good job as vice president if elected."

Brown is a former SP leader. He went independent last month making his bid for the vice presidency.

The independent's campaign was launched on a "let's bring student government back to the students" basis.

REV. JAMES B. ORTH

Mission Here Offers Talks By Rev. Orth

A Student Vestry-sponsored preaching mission led by the Rev. James B. Orth will open today at the Chapel of the Cross.

Mr. Orth will preach at morning prayer today and will also speak at 7:30 p.m. tonight, tomorrow and Tuesday night. The talks will be held at the Chapel of the Cross Episcopal Church.

Informal discussion groups will also be held in the living room of the Parish House following each of the evening talks.

Mr. Orth is Chaplain to Episcopal students at the University of Florida. He addressed the Canterbury Conference which was held at Montreat last December.

In addition to the talks and discussions, the Holy Communion will be celebrated tomorrow and Tuesday mornings at 7 a.m. as part of the program of the mission. There will also be a discussion in the Parish House on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This preaching mission is one of the series which the Student Vestry of the Chapel of the Cross has conducted over the past three years.

Simpson-McConnell—A Family Team

Father - Daughter Educators Reunite On University Faculty

By Elizabeth Alexander
A father-daughter team is hard to beat, and this one forms a rapport between Harvard University and this University.

The team got together in Chapel Hill this week and no doubt full reports on both institutions were exchanged.

Former Brigadier General James S. Simmons (U.S.A. ret), now Dean of Harvard School of Public Health who attended the national meeting of the Association of Schools of Public Health in Chapel Hill, got a behind-the-scenes view from his attractive daughter, Mrs. Frances Simmons McConnell, administrative assistant on the Continuation Education Program of UNC's School of Public Health.

Dean Simmons is author of a number of books and articles on experimental bacteriology, preventive medicine and tropical medicine.

He has been awarded the Sternberg Medal, the Sedgwick Memorial Medal, the USA Typhus Commission Medal, the Carlos J. Finlay Medal, the Walter Reed Medal, and the Distinguished Service Medal.

Mrs. McConnell began her duties with the School of Public Health here last February. She graduated from Sweet Briar College and took her master of science degree in public health here in 1951.

She has been information analyst for the American Red Cross and was associated with the Chronic Disease Division of the U. S.

Public Health Service before coming to Chapel Hill.

Seasons Show Set To Open At Planetarium

Final showings of "Easter, The Awakening" will be given at the Morehead Planetarium through tomorrow night. Today's performances will be at 2:34, and 8:30 p.m.

The popularity of the Easter story is attested by the fact that more than 15,000 visitors have witnessed it since opening on March 24.

On Tuesday, a new presentation entitled "Reasons for the Seasons" will open. Several special demonstrations of this showing are completely sold out.

"The causes and effects of certain physical factors involved in bringing about our seasonal cycle will be presented in this program," Manager A. F. Jenzano said. "Contrary to a common misbelief, seasonal changes are not due to the varying distance between the sun and the earth as it travels in its elliptical orbit about the sun."

"Actually, we are closest to the sun in the winter and farthest in the summer! Adults and children alike will find "Reasons for the Seasons" a very interesting and illuminating presentation," he added.

One From Mitchell Society Here

Bureau Chief Astin Retained After Stormy Protests Filed

WASHINGTON, April 18—(Special)—Secretary of Commerce Weeks, faced with stormy protests over his ouster of Dr. Allen V. Astin as director of the National Bureau of Standards, announced last night that Astin will remain in the post for several months.

Then he will be given a job of comparable grade where, Weeks said, his abilities will be used "in the national interest." Weeks said he had never questioned the integrity of Astin or the bureau.

One of the many protests filed with Weeks came from the 69-year-old Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society at the University of North Carolina. The society is composed of faculty members and research staff of the various science departments of the University.

"We, along with other scientists in the world over, have had complete confidence in the Bureau, in its personnel and in the integrity of its reports," the resolution to Weeks stated.

The resolution passed this week by the society called the dismissal "incomprehensible" and "inconsistent with the administration of the government of a free and democratic people."

Following is the complete text of the resolution:

"Therefore be it resolved: 1. That the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society voice its objection to the manner in which Secretary Weeks has summarily dismissed the Director of the National Bureau of Standards, since such methods are an affront to science and scientists. 2. That the Elisha Mitchell Society deprecates the intimation by Secretary Weeks that 'the play of the market place' should color the objective reports emanating from the National Bureau of Standards, for if such a policy should ever be adopted, the value and integrity of the Bureau would be completely destroyed. 3. That the Elisha Mitchell Society call upon the Secretary of

Map Stealers, Duelers Are On The Loose

Spring-like weather probably wasn't the reason, but no other explanation was offered as to why a student would steal a map of North Carolina from the office of a dormitory housemother while two other gay blades carried on a French-accented epee duel in the Y Court Saturday morning at 3 a.m.

The duel happened after four students marched into the Y Court with epees and masks. Two of the students acted as seconds while the other two battled around the Y Court like two characters out of an Arabian movie. After several parries and a couple of thrusts they left.

Sometime near the coed curfew hour last night, a thief with a liking for North Carolina history stole into the office of Mrs. Sedalia Gold, housemother of Smith Dormitory.

Annillo QB Standout; Whites Nearly Get Tie

By Tom Peacock
Fullback George Wallin scored twice to give the Blue team a 20-14 edge over an evenly matched White team before 6,000 people in the annual Carolina intra-squad game at Kenan Stadium yesterday.

The game ended with the Whites only nine yards away from the tying score after driving 81 yards from their own 10.

CUSC Groups Aren't Official, Says Horton

By Louis Kraar

What President-elect Bob Horton will do about student consolidation is anybody's guess. But outgoing President Horton, of the same party, has voiced some definite views on the situation.

"I don't think that any of the Carolina groups were authorized to represent Carolina," commented Ham Horton on last week's Consolidated University Student Council meeting in Greensboro.

Horton's remarks were directed at the meeting of the three school student government group which he has already said doesn't exist anymore. The controversy started last month when Jim Adams, head man for Carolina in CUSC, and President Horton quit the big council.

"In spite of the difficulties that we have had in getting our feelings across to the students, I want to tell them how much I appreciate the many men in the dorms and houses who have told me that they backed our stand," continued the student body president.

"Space doesn't permit a complete explanation of my feelings," he pointed out, "but I hope the students will have confidence that everything we've done has been in a sincere effort to protect Carolina."

Adams quit the group, he said, because it was serving as a "gag for student opinion." Horton's objections have been that the CUSC could develop into a super student government under its present setup and be supreme over the campus student government. Horton also contends that since the problems of the three schools are different, they must be handled separately.

WC spokesmen said last week that Horton started efforts to break down CUSC last fall. Horton said that it was not true.

"I want to reorganize so that it (CUSC) can't work to erect a super student government that will choke out Carolina's independence," Horton declared.

Carolina actually had three different groups at the CUSC meeting last week — original CUSC members, four more appointed by the Legislature and President Horton's CU Day Committee.

Tom Sully, CUSC president and a Carolina student, recognized all but Horton's committee. And committee members said they were only representing Carolina as far as the day's plans were concerned.

The CUSC, according to its constitution, acts as a liaison between the Consolidated University administration and students. It is made up of 11 delegates from each of the University branches.

The big student council decided that it still exists and that Horton is still a member, whether he likes it or not. The CUSC said that Horton, by virtue of being Carolina's president, is a member of CUSC.

"I had not realized that CUSC had already become so powerful that it could take upon itself the duties of our own student Council," commented Horton.

Lifesaving

Senior Lifesaving Courses have begun at the indoor pool, but it's not too late to get in a class of you want to.

The first meeting of class number one will be at the pool tomorrow at 4:30. Class number two meets for the first time Tuesday night at 7 o'clock.

outstanding individual performance, scoring one touchdown, passing for another, and getting off runs of 35 and 29 yards.

Carolina's coaches and fans got their first look at the new one-planet system, but the quarterback problem is still unsolved. Besides Annillo, his freshman teammate, Doug Farmer, turned in a creditable job, as did Blue quarterbacks Charlie Motta and Lou Britt.

Marshall Newman, freshman who ended the season last year as first string quarterback, played a few minutes at halfback, but an injured thumb prevented him from working under the center.

The Whites, captained by fullback Bob White, jumped into the first quarter. End Don Mainier set up the touchdown inside the Blue 30 yard line by recovering Flo Worrel's fumble.

On fourth down, Annillo ran to his left, was trapped, and threw from the 27 by end Dick Starnor on the five. Motta batted the ball, but Starnor made a desperate catch as he fell into the end zone for the score. Halfback Billy Williams converted.

The Blues got the score back with five minutes left in the period. After taking Williams punt to the White 36 yard line, Motta directed Parker and Wallin down to the five where Wallin bulled over. A bad center prevented Motta's attempt at the conversion, and White kept a 7-6 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The Blues struck again with 7:13 away in the second quarter to climax an 84-yard sustained drive. Lou Britt directed Blue backs E. C. Smith, J. C. DeWeese, Sonny Ridenhour and other down the field, and threw a 10 yard pass to end Van Weatherspoon to set up the score. Weatherspoon took the toss on the White 25, raced to the 10, and Dewese scored two plays later from the one-half yard line to put the Blues ahead, 13-7.

Dorm Men

Tomorrow is the last day for men students to reserve dormitory rooms for summer school or the fall semester, the housing office said yesterday.

The same deadline applies to men who want to get preference in their room assignment. Deposits are payable to the University cashier in the basement of South Building. It's $15 for summer and $6 for fall.

The housing office also gave the answers to some current questions about what Winston Dorm will be used for next year. The Division of Health Affairs will use the west end of Winston, all four floors, beginning June 1. Men now occupying these rooms will be given some preference in reassignments, but they must abide by tomorrow's deadline as everyone else.
