Dr. Graham Sets Speeches For Students, Health Center

Former University President Speaks To Students At 8

Dr. Frank P. Graham, former president of the Consolidated University, will address the UNC student body tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall.

Topic of Dr. Graham's address will be "The United Nations and Some of Its Achievements." He will be introduced by Chancellor Robert B. House.

Dr. Graham resigned as president of the Consolidated University in 1949 to accept an appointment as U. S. Senator. He was defeated by Willis Smith in 1950 when he sought reelection and since then has served as United Nations mediator.

An informal banquet honoring Dr. Graham will be held in the South Dining Room of Lenoir Hall tonight at 6:15.

Today's Exercises End Health Center Dedication Service

The University Health Center dedication will be concluded this morning when Dr. Frank P. Graham, United Nations mediator, will deliver the dedicatory address in Memorial Hall at 10:45.

Hundreds of doctors, dentists, nurses, and hospital administrators and other officials from all sections of the State are expected this morning for the talk.

Dr. Joseph T. Wearn, Dean and professor of medicine at Western Reserve University School of Medicine and director of medicine for the University Hospitals, Cleveland, addressed yesterday's opening convocation.

Yesterday afternoon the various professional groups held separate meetings with Dr. David P. Barr, professor of medicine, Cornell University, addressing the medical group; Dr. Lloyd H. Dodd, Decatur, Ill., addressing the dentists; Mrs. Lucile Petry Leone, assistant surgeon general and chief nurse officer, U. S. Public Health Service, addressing the nurses; and Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, director of Professional Relations, American Hospital Association, Chicago, speaking to hospital officials.

Leone spoke again in Gerrard Hall and the alumni of the Medical School held a dinner meeting in Lenoir Hall last night.

Dr. Barr, who addresses a group meeting of physicians here yesterday said, the University Health Center "marks the beginning of a glorious adventure which is being watched by all medical educators and by all who are concerned with the public health."

Dr. Barr was one of four speakers who addressed professional groups of physicians, dentists, nurses and hospital officials who are attending the two-day dedication program.

"In its concept and commencement every citizen of North Carolina may take justifiable pride," he said.

Declaring that Memorial Hospital "is much more than a local convenience and more than the usual University Hospital," Dr. Barr said, "it is the hospital of the people of North Carolina, established as a token of their belief in the necessity of health for everyone, of their faith in those who guide the policies of the University and of their hope that it will fuse its resources with other activities to foster adequate medical care throughout the State."

Dr. Barr commended the faculty which he described as vigorous and enlightened and, he said, "through its Division of Health Affairs, it possesses almost unique opportunities for cooperation, correlation and team play both in education and community service."

$74,550 OK'd For New Year By Legislature

BULLETIN

Reversing an earlier decision, the Student Legislature killed a rider in the Student Government budget bill which would turn over all surpluses made by student agencies, particularly the Publications board, to the general surplus fund.

In doing this, legislators were left empty-handed with no budget approved. Vice President Jim McLeod, who broke a tie vote and thus killed the Student Party efforts, called a special session of the Legislature for Monday night.

Ed Gross, outgoing Secretary-Treasurer made an impassioned speech calling for the adoption of an amendment which cut out of the budget bill an earlier surplus rider. Gross pointed out that the Publications Board, the budget Committee and Secretary Treasurer were united in their opposition to such a measure.

By Louis Kraer

The student Legislature session last night ended with approval of a $74,550 budget and legislator Gene Cook's (SP) labeling the Publications Board "an errant stepchild."

Cook strongly censured the Publications Board in a tersely worded speech. The purpose of the talk was to push through a move to put surplus publication funds back into the student government till at the year's end. The move passed.

"Student government has a lot of services to run," Cook said. (See 074,550, page 8)

Dorsey Playing Development, Expansion of North Carolina Spring Germans Public Health Program Traced Over Years

Tommy Dorsey, that Sentimental Gentleman of Swing, swings onto campus tomorrow for a concert in the afternoon and a dance that night.

The Memorial Hall concert will be from 4 until 6 p.m., and the Woolen Gym dance from 8 until midnight. The dance is formal.

This is the last of three yearly dances sponsored by the German Club and its 13 member fraternities. Earlier presentations this year were Ray Anthony and Charlie Spivak, in the Winter and Fall respectively.

Students were reminded yesterday by the Dance Committee about the rules in effect for the concert and dance, particularly those on drinking.

Dorsey played here several years ago and was involved in litigation with the German Club when it was charged he didn't bring his full complement of musicians.

After struggling through growing pains for almost a decade, the North Carolina Good Health Program has passed the stage of adolescence and is well along the way to maturity.

Whereas in 1947 there were 33 counties in the State without a hospital bed, there are today only 17 such counties.

Dr. Pohn A. Ferrell, executive secretary, North Carolina Medical Care Commission, reports that a total of 147 projects looking toward a healthier North Carolina have been initiated since the program was activated in 1947.

Of these, 71 are local general hospital projects which have been completed or are under construction or have been approved. A breakdown shows that 46 have been completed, 18 are under construction, and seven are being processed. In addition, seven state-owned hospital projects have been completed and one, the 100-bed TB hospital here, is under construction.

A total of 35 health centers have been approved and 16 have been completed.

A total of 33 nurses homes have been provided for, and 15 have been completed.

Fourth In Nation

Dr. Ferrell says that a recent national survey made by the University of Michigan School of Public Health shows North Carolina to be rated fourth in new hospital beds since World War II for all types of hospitals.

North Carolina stood second in the number of new general local hospital beds constructed for two years or more after World War II.

The State has had a phenomenal increase in hospital beds in the last quarter of the century. In 1924 there were 2,186 (local general). In 1947 the figure had increased to 9,635, and the total is now estimated at 13,700.

New Hospital Handles Food With Precision

By Sally Schindel

"A butcher, a baker . . ." the North Carolina Memorial Hospital has everything but a "candlestick-maker."

The hospital's Dietary Department, a busy community in itself, takes care of food preparation for patients, staff members and employees. Directed by Miss Mary Anderson, its facilities — which spread all over the ground floor and part of the first floor with small kitchens on each ward — contain the most modern equipment available.

The largest subdivision within the department is that of food (See HOSPITAL, page 6)

UNC's Budget For 1953-55 In 3rd Reading

RALEIGH, April 24—The University's budget request, part of a $14,250,000 proposed institutional appropriation, passed its semi-finals on the Senate floor here yesterday.

Chapel Hill is due to get $1,001,000 for permanent improvements under a bond issue if the bill goes through.

The bill passed the required three readings in the House early this week. It will face its third reading in the Senate today and informed persons here see no especially rough going in the final stage of its progress.

There were moments of some doubt yesterday when Sen. Fred McIntyre of Mecklenburg offered an amendment to have the entire appropriation submitted to public referendum. When this amendment was defeated, McIntyre offered another to slash off $500,000 for the Institute of Government and a smaller amount for alterations to the fourth floor of the Dental School. Senators Hobgood, Curry and others made speeches in opposition to the second amendment, and it too was defeated.

McIntyre said he was fully aware of the great service of the Institute, but he felt its expansion could be delayed for another two years. This bill covers appropriations for the 1953-55 biennium.

Indian Movies Are Tomorrow In Gerrard Hall

Six short movies on India will be shown in Gerrard Hall tomorrow at 8 p.m.

This is the third program in a series sponsored by the YMCA World Relatedness Commission in cooperation with the students from India. Dr. B. A. S. Iyengar, of Mysore State, India, is chairman of this series of programs.

The program originally was announced for today but has been postponed one day because of Dr. Frank Graham's talk.

The titles of the films to be shown tomorrow are: "Ladakh Diary," "Handicrafts of India," which is on Indian art; "Santalinke-tan," which tells about the educational center started by the late Dr. Tagore in the eastern part of India, near Calcutta. This gives an aspect of the educational program of India.

"From Silkworm to Parachute"—describes the famous industry of India. "Kathak"—is on the Indian dance. "Drums of Manipur"—on Indian dance.
