Mary Myers Is Next Year's Council Head

Mary Kit Myers, Tri-Delt from Greensboro, will be chairman of the Women's Honor Council next year.

Council clerk will be Sara Rose of Chapel Hill.

Miss Myers is treasurer of Delta Delta Delta sorority, a member of the Y Cabinet, and a member of the Honor Council since last fall.

The council consists of Lillian Youngs, Mary Fran Allsbrook, Pat Smith, Jo Demming, Nancy Shaw, Carolyn Johnson and Marilyn Habel.

A report of the council's activities for Fall and Winter Quarters includes 16 violations tried. There were 14 social rule charges, in several instances involving more than one charge, three Campus Code offenses, and two Honor Code offenses.

Of the two Honor Code cases, one was acquitted and the other was found guilty of indirect lying involving a serious social rule and Campus Code violation. This case did not result in suspension.

There were two removals of probation.

Voice, Brass, String To Be In Concert

Faculty members of the Music Department will be heard in a concert of chamber music tonight at 8:30 in the auditorium of Hill Hall.

The concert will feature music for voice, for brass ensemble and for string quartet. There is no charge for admission, and the public is invited.

The program will include "Two Ricercari for Brass" by the contemporary American composer, Willson Osborne; a Bach aria for baritone, flute and piano; a setting of Matthew Arnold's "Dover Beach" by Samuel Barber, for baritone and string quartet; and the "String Quartet No. 1" by Randall Thompson.

Performers include the University Brass Ensemble, made up of Fred Hierson, trumpet, David Gaddy, trumpet, Guyte Cotton, horn, John Adams, horn, Joseph Fields, trombone; Lloyd Farrar, trombone and Joseph Wood, tuba; the University String Quartet, made up of Edgar Alden and Jean Heard, violins, Dorothy Alden, viola, and Mary Gray Clarge, violoncello; and baritone soloist Joel Carter. The Bach number will include Caroline Sites, pianist, and Earl Slocum, flutist.

Faculty Group Topic Is Iran

Charles F. Milner, associate director of the University's Extension Division, will talk on the situation in Iran before the Men's Faculty Club luncheon Tuesday at 1 p. m. at the Carolina Inn ballroom.

Mr. Milner, who spent six months in Iran recently giving audio-visual instruction under a grant from the State Department, will show pictures taken during his stay, particularly those taken of the partisan street mobs which formed in the showdown between Premier Mossadegh and the young Shah.

The Boys Will Go Too

Globe-Trotting Nashes Prepare For Busy Schedule In Summer

By Joyce Adams
Hop, skip and jump—around the world.

That's how it will be for Dr. and Mrs. Arnold S. Nash, teaching and counseling team here, when they begin their global tour next month.

The main purpose of their trip will be their work for six months in India. Dr. Nash will be working with the Commission on Higher Education of the National Council of Churches in India, and Mrs. Nash with the Commission on Marriage and the Home.

Their trip is being sponsored by the Harvard-Yenching Foundation which is concerned with the colleges and universities of Asia. Dr. Nash will report the team's experiences in India and the other countries of Southeast Asia in a report to the International Missionary Council. The data will be used in working out a new policy for Christian higher education in the light of the new political regimes of India and the other countries.

Fleishman Gets Chairmanship As CPU Elects New Officers

Joel Fleishman was elected chairman of the Carolina Political Union at its last meeting to succeed Bob Pace.

A rising junior, Fleishman is active in student government and student politics. He is parliamentary of the Student Legislature, active in the Di Senate, secretary of the Carolina Forum, past vice-chairman of the Student Party, member of the Young Democrats Club, chairman of the Blood Committee last year, and outstanding freshman in the NROTC last year.

Officers elected to serve with Fleishman are: Don Sherry, vice-chairman; Norwood Bryan, secretary; and Gene Cook, forum representative. Sherry is a rising senior from Connecticut and active in the Phi Assembly. Bryan is a rising sophomore and is active in the Student Party and the IDC. Cook, a rising senior, is active in student government, the Di Senate, and the

Recruiting Officer

A Naval Recruiting Officer will be on campus Tuesday to talk to seniors interested in the Navy Department's Officer Candidate Program.

Health Society, the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, and the American Association of Marriage Counselors. She will also write for the journal, "Marriage and Family Living."

The first hop of the airborne journey will be to Ireland, where the Nashes will visit with friends prior to skipping on to England. There they will spend a month vacationing and working with the International Missionary Council planning their work in India and the Near East. Dr. Nash has been invited to preach at the Oxford University Chapel while there.

During their stay in England Mrs. Nash will jump over to Geneva for the second ecumenical conference on "The Church and Marriage." This will be attended by psychiatrists, psychologists, sociologists, and clergymen from America, Europe and the Near East.

Four distinguished leaders in the fields of business and industry will deliver the featured addresses at formal dedicatory exercises for the new home of the School of Business Administration tomorrow.

The program will be held in the auditorium of Carroll Hall, beginning at 2:30. Addressing the afternoon session will be James E. Webb, president of Republic Supply Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., and George M. Harrison, Cincinnati, Ohio, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks and vice-president of the American Federation of Labor.

Governor Umstead will be present at the afternoon program to present the three buildings to President Gray. This will be among the first major activity by the governor since he was stricken with a heart attack shortly after his inauguration in January.

The night program, which will begin at 8 o'clock, will be highlighted by addresses by Thomas B. McCabe, president, Scott Paper Co., Chester, Pa., and Dean Donald K. David of the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University.

Three new buildings comprise the new home of the school—Carroll Hall, the central unit (named for former Dean Dudley Dewitt Carroll), Gardner Hall (named for the late Governor O. Max Gardner) and Hanes Hall (named for the Hanes family of Winston-Salem).

Of traditional design in architecture, the three units are constructed so as to complement the Saunders-Manning-Murphy quadrangle across the mall. Raymond Weeks, Durham architect and engineer, designed the new buildings, and J. A. Jones Construction Co., of Charlotte had the general contract.

A number of interesting exhibits have been arranged especially for the dedication, including the International Business Machines Corporation Art Exhibit entitled "Painters of the United States—1720 through 1920."

Webb, who will speak on the role of businessmen in relation to government service and the role of schools of business administration in training personnel who may go into government service, is a native of Granville County and an alumnus of the University. Before becoming associated with Republic Supply Co., he was under secretary of state, director of the Budget Bureau, and under secretary of the Treasury and vice president of Sperry Gyroscope Co.

Harrison started his career as a railway clerk, became president of a local chapter of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and worked his way up to head of the national organization in 1928. He has served as the U. S. delegate to numerous world labor meetings. He will discuss the responsibilities of labor toward business and the place of labor in education for business.

Dean David will open the evening program with an address on the role of education for business. He received his master's degree in business administration from Harvard in 1919 and the following year became instructor and assistant dean at Harvard Graduate School. He served as president of Maize Products Co. from 1932 to 1941 and has been dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration since 1941.

He is a trustee of Radcliff College, the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, General Electric Co., is a director of the Boys Club of America and author of numerous books on problems in retailing.

McCabe will take business responsibility from the point of view of business management for his subject. He has been with Scott Paper Co. since 1915 when he graduated from Swarthmore College. Starting off as a salesman, he became assistant sales manager, vice president then president. He has been a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia since 1938 and chairman of the board since 1939.

Open house will be held in room 301 Carroll Hall, from 1 to 6 p. m., and tours of the buildings are scheduled between 1 and 2 p. m. and 5 and 6 p. m.

New Exhibits Are Featured In BA School

One of the highlights of the dedication of the new school of Business Administration are the many interesting exhibits that have been arranged by the faculty under the direction of Prof. Alton G. Sadler.

One of the feature exhibits is the International Business Machines Corporation Art Exhibit entitled "Painters of the United States—1720 through 1920", which will be on public display on the fourth floor of Gardner Hall until June 7. This exhibit, which is valued at $200,000, includes some of the original works of such famous painters as Durand, Peale, Remington, Stuart, Harnett and Whistler.

The School of Business Administration textbook exhibit, arranged by Delta Sigma Pi professional fraternity, is a display of all texts used in required courses in the school. It is divided into three primary groups; the sophomore, junior, and senior year requirements.

The senior-year group is subdivided into eight parts—the eight majors: accounting, production, marketing, personnel, banking and finance, statistics, insurance and business economics.

The junior-year displays the seven core requirements, required of all business students, and the sophomore year group shows four courses required in this year: the basic accounting and economics courses.

The graduating class in accounting systems, which is taught by Professor Sadler, is presenting tomorrow in Hanes Hall a display of the many accounting systems now in use in North Carolina, along with an accounting practice set of 1854, a textbook of 1901 and the "Federal Income Tax Service of 1918." Also included in the display are more than 200 volumes which have been presented to the "Professional Accountant's Library," and the "Accounting Teacher's Library", and it is thought that they constitute one of the most valuable accounting libraries in the South.

The entire ground floor of Carroll Hall, the main building of the new school, has been set aside as a center of adult education and training available to all businessmen and other citizens of the state and region. The exhibit, "Educational Programs for Businessmen," has been arranged by Prof. Rex Winslow and includes pictures and literature of some of the activities of the program of institutes for business and industry.

The Production Management Department of the Business School has arranged in its laboratory on the basement floor of Gardner Hall some of the equipment and material that is used to acquaint the students with all types of production. The exhibit is under the direction of Prof. John Dykstra.

Prof. Richard P. Calhoun of the Personnel Administration Department has arranged an exhibit in Gardner Hall to illustrate the many aspects of personnel relations and the analysis of different materials now in use. The exhibit is also designed to serve as source material for development of different types of personnel problems and projects.

In the library Prof. Warren Pierpont and Mrs. H. von Beckerath will have an exhibit of different types of constructive writings of students associated with the school and writings of current faculty members in the form of articles and books.

French Play
Le Petit Theatre Francais will present its annual play Wednesday and Thursday at 8:30 in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.
