

WEATHER

Fair with moderate temperatures. Yesterday's high, 86, low, 60.

The Daily Tar Heel

DAR

The Horse takes a look at the Daughters on page 2.

VOLUME LXI NUMBER 160

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. THURSDAY, MAY 28, 1953

FOUR PAGES TODAY

History In 3-D

Raleigh, Early NC Are Period Room Subjects

By Ken Sanford

A visit to the period rooms of the Library's North Carolina Collection is a history lesson in three dimensions. No amount of reading will produce the same effect as a visit to a historical reproduction of a scene from the past.

The Sir Walter Raleigh Room was reproduced in part and furnished with materials taken from fine English homes of the time in which Raleigh lived. The room contains books that have been written by and about Sir Walter Raleigh. The room is paneled in original Jacobean oak paneling of the late Tudor period, perhaps near 1590. The furniture is of the same period.

Three carved statues of old English oak stand at one end of the room. The center statue is a larger than life-size likeness of Raleigh. It was brought from England to New York for sale. There Col. Owen Kenan of Wilmington bought it and sent it to the University Library. One of the smaller figures on either side of the larger one is of Raleigh and the other is of Queen Elizabeth. They came recently from Preston Davie in New York, a great friend of the Library and a lateral descendant of William R. Davie, founder of the University.

The other period room is from an early North Carolina colonial house. It is a restoration of the Lane House which stood on Little River in Nixonton before 1750. The doors, woodwork and flooring are original material taken from that house. All of the other material was taken from houses of the 1750 period either in North Carolina or Virginia.

The room contains furniture and household utensils that were to be found in the average home of the colonial period. At the fireplace are a low stool, a black iron Dutch oven, a candle mold and a fireside toaster with its short legs and long handle.

In one corner stands a walnut corner case with doors which contain handmade glass panes. It contains books that were found in the libraries of the better homes of that day.

A grandfather clock and a spinning wheel are also from that period. Pine paneling frames the tiny windows and low doors.

In the atmosphere that these two rooms create, one can easily imagine himself transported in time back to the time of Raleigh and Elizabeth or to the pre-Revolutionary War days in North Carolina.

Steve Perrow Wins John J. Parker Award

Steve Perrow has been awarded the John J. Parker Medal for "unique leadership in student government," it was announced yesterday.

This gold medal is given annually by Judge and Mrs. John J. Parker in memory of their son, John Johnston Parker, Jr. It was established in 1941.

Perrow is a Pharmacy major from Bedford, Va. He has served on the Men's Council for two years and was clerk one year. During senior week, Perrow was named "Mr. Alumnus."

The award is given by a special committee appointed by the President of the University. It is awarded "to that student who has demonstrated most clearly the highest qualities of leadership in perpetuating the spirit of honor and the process of student self-government," according to the University catalog.

The award committee this year consisted of Assistant Dean of Students Roy Holsten, S. B. Knight and Claude C. Shotts.

Four Annexes Moved Away; Others To Go

"Four temporary buildings have recently been disposed of and others will be removed as soon as they are no longer needed as classrooms and offices," J. S. Bennett, director of operations for the University, said yesterday.

Two were removed from their position beside the Library to Victory Village. There they were put together to form a nursery and recreation center.

A third building between the Library and Venable Hall will be sold to the highest bidder. A building between the Naval armory and Venable has already been sold and removed.

Bennett said that he would like to see all of the temporary buildings removed, but that it would be impossible as long as it remains necessary to use them.

Pearsall Heads SEC Program For Next Year

Student body President Bob Gorham recently announced the appointment of a Student Entertainment Committee to serve next year.

Harry Pearsall, a rising senior from Rocky Mount, will serve as chairman. Pearsall is on the IDC Court and served on the IDC Dance Committee for the past year. He served as an orientation counselor last year. He is a member of Zeta Psi fraternity.

Other members of the committee are Mary Helen Crain, Billy Barnes, Sherry Smith and John Page. Pearsall said that no definite plans have been made for next year's program. The committee met with last year's committee and discussed tentative plans.

Pearsall said, "We are definitely going to investigate the possibility of including more students in next year's programs."

There has been much criticism of the SEC program in the past because such a small part of the student body could get into Memorial Hall to see the programs.

SHOWN HERE FROM LEFT ARE NOMA FLINT, Charles Hadley and Henriette Rhyne who appeared last night in Le Petit Theatre Francais' first performance of "Les Precieuses Ridicules" in the main lounge of Graham Memorial. The girls are cast as the two "precieuse" or ridiculous women mentioned in the title. Hadley plays the role of the Marquis de Mascarilla who introduces the action in the 17th Century Moliere farce. The final performance is tonight at 8:30. There is no admission charge (a collection will be taken to cover expenses).

Keating Retires From Navy; Other NROTC Instructors Go

Five of the eight officers now assigned to the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps staff here are due for a change of duty at the end of the present school year.

Captain J. S. Keating, USN, professor of naval science at the unit for the past two years, is retiring from the Navy after 34 years of unbroken duty. Captain Keating plans to vacation in Cape Cod, Mass., this summer. His plans beyond that are indefinite. The new professor of naval science is slated to be Col. Robert C. Burns, US Marine Corps. Col. Burns is expected to arrive in August.

Major Frank C. Caldwell, USMC, the unit Marine officer instructor, will be detached on or about June 20. He will proceed from here to San Francisco, Calif., and Pearl Harbor, T. H., en route to join the First Marine Division in Korea. He expects to be attached to the First Marine Division for a nine-month tour of duty. Major Caldwell will be replaced by Capt. Frank G. Good, Jr., USMC, who has just returned from duty with the First Marine Division in Korea. Capt. Good is due to report to Chapel Hill sometime in August.

LCDR. Thomas E. Bass, III, USN, assistant professor of naval science and instructor of ordnance and gunnery, has been ordered to the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., for duty under instruction. The course of instruction will last for about five months. No replacement has been ordered for him at this time.

Lt. L. F. Cooney, Jr., USN, assistant professor of naval science, and navigation instructor, has been ordered to report to Combat Information Center School, Glenview, Ill., for duty under instruction. Replacement for Lt. Cooney will be LCDR. Thomas B. Wheatley, USN, who is expected to arrive in August.

Lt. L. E. Woodall, USN, assistant professor of naval science and supply instructor, has been ordered to report as supply officer to the USS Botetourt, operating out of Norfolk, Va. Lt. Woodall will be detached on or about August 15, 1953. His replacement will be Lt. A. H. Josslyn, SC USN, who comes to the University from the aircraft carrier USS Midway, and is expected to report prior to the departure of his predecessor.

Fascinated group standing near CBS-TV camera boom to listen to accent of English director.

Male hot weather fad spreading as secretary to student president arrives for work in shorts.

Indiscreet coed greedily gulping high-caloried milk shake.

Dumbfounded delivery man from the Colonial House having to give up food without getting paid because he failed to get it there within the time advertised by the restaurant.

Y To Sponsor Round Robin Letters During The Summer

Are you working in a service project this summer, traveling overseas, or investing your summer in some other way?

If so, Susan Fink, secretary of the YMCA Cabinet would like to know about it. During the summer she plans to send out a round-robin letter composed of letters from Carolina students in various parts of the world.

The plan is for students and faculty to write to Sue on July 1 and again on August 1, giving brief highlights of their work or travel. Shortly thereafter Sue will compile the round-robin letter and mail it to all who have contributed a letter.

Rousseau Claims Alderman Action Is Discrimination

By Bob Slough

A fraternity-sorority spokesman told the Chapel Hill Town Board this week that his group feels they have been discriminated against because a University-owned rooming house has put up fire escapes that do not meet state fire law requirements.

Jule Rousseau, chairman of the fraternity and sorority fire escapes committee, did not mention the name of the building but board member P. L. Burch said yesterday he was referring to the Theta Chi house on East Franklin Street. Burch agreed with Rousseau that the house does not meet specifications set up by state law. Burch is also Chapel Hill buildings inspector.

Rousseau said his main purpose in going before the board, however, was to explain the present situation—what he termed "lack of competitive bids."

"We wrote letters to companies to ask for bids in March," Rousseau explained. "We got a response from only one company, J. D. Wilkins Co."

He told board members that the bids made by the Wilkins Co. were "considerably higher than we thought they should be" and added that several of the bids ran over $1,000 with one bid going as high as "$1,400 and some odd dollars."

Thirty-five fraternity and sorority houses were condemned in January for failing to provide fire escapes on houses where occupants sleep on second or third floor. They were given 90 days to remedy the situation. The 90-day period ended on April 5.

Two weeks ago, the town board issued a statement notifying fraternities and sororities that they must complete arrangements for the construction of adequate fire escapes by June 5, or the town will take "all available steps to prevent their further use as a dormitory after June 10." According to the resolution, the dormitory space in the houses will be closed unless they are "equipped or under contract for proper equipment" by the June 5 deadline.

"I don't think any fraternity or sorority is trying to avoid this thing," Rousseau continued. "They are just trying to get competitive bids." He said that A. S. Newsome, another contractor, had made bids recently and that some of the new bids were lower than Wilkins had made previously.

Rousseau assured the board, "If the other houses get bids, I see no reason why they won't be signed by June 5."

Enright also pointed out that the group has no power and merely worked up some recommendations for next month's full meeting in Raleigh. Tuesday the directors met in Durham. The recommendations were completed yesterday. In attendance were C. P. Erickson, North Carolina; O. K. Cornwell, North Carolina; Roy Clogston, N. C. State; Frank Howard, Clemson; James Weaver, Wake Forest; Eddie Cameron, Duke; Jim Tatum, Maryland, Enright, Wade and Knight.

Dr. Virgil Mann, of the Geology Department, was recently elected to serve as chairman of the YMCA Advisory Board for the coming year, according to Ned Harbin, YMCA president for 1953-54.

Reverend Richard Jackson, of the Congregational - Christian Church, will serve as vice-chairman, and Donald Hayman, of the Institute of Government, will be the secretary.

These officers will replace William Noland, Sociology Department, who was chairman of the board for 1952-53; the Rev. Charles Jones, formerly of the Presbyterian Church, who was vice-chairman; and Dr. Mann, who was secretary.

Two new members were also elected to serve on the board to replace the retiring members, Carl Smith and Dr. Cecil Johnson. W. J. Graham of Business Administration, and A. C. Shearer, Chapel Hill businessman, are the new members of the Advisory Board.

Students may pick up their unsold books upon presentation of their claim checks. Books that are left in the Trading Post over two quarters automatically become the property of APO.

Students may leave Books to be sold next fall.

Fletcher M. Green, Kenan professor of history and new chairman of the History Department, has been elected a member of the board of editors of the "Mississippi Valley Historical Review."

The last orders for class rings this quarter will be taken from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in the lobby of the "Y." The rings will be delivered in eight weeks to the student's summer address.

Senior Rings

JOEL FLEISHMAN

Fleishman Says Stevenson May Speak Here

"Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for President in the 1952 election, may be the first speaker on the Carolina Forum's program next year," Joel Fleishman, newly-elected chairman of the Forum said yesterday.

Fleishman said that a great deal of planning remains to be done in regard to Stevenson's visit here. "The Forum hopes to have a complete schedule ready by the beginning of the Fall Semester," Fleishman said.

In Newfoundland, No Remains In Sight

Moorhead's Entourage Found Lindbergh Rival's Wreckage

By Richard Creed

Lt. Col. Jessie J. Moorhead, commanding officer of the Air Force ROTC at Carolina for the past four years, will leave Chapel Hill this Summer.

Colonel Moorhead will go to Maxwell Field, in Alabama, for six months' study in the Air Command and Staff School, after which he will be reassigned to the Air Force.

The Colonel came to Chapel Hill in August, 1949. He wanted to be assigned to a university since "I thought it more of a challenge to go to a school where ROTC was optional with the students." He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army from Clemson, where ROTC was required of all students, in 1937. Commenting on the natural beauty of Chapel Hill and the attitude of students and faculty, he said, "I don't think I could have gotten a better assignment." He was originally assigned to the AROTC at Duke, but the Air Force changed its mind a few weeks before he took the position. When he graduated from Clemson, he went to Georgia, where he spent two years with the Eighth Infantry. In 1940 he requested transfer to the Air Force. From Georgia he went to the Langley Field Bomber Squadron.

At the outbreak of World War II he went with the bomber squadron on an anti-submarine patrol of the Atlantic to Newfoundland. He recounts that while in Newfoundland a passenger steamer which had carried him over to Nova Scotia was sunk by a Japanese submarine about a month later.

In his flight to and from Newfoundland he traveled over the same terrain which Lindbergh describes in the story of his trans-Atlantic flight in The Saturday Evening Post. One of his parties found in Southern Newfoundland the wreckage of a plane whose log showed that the pilot, a man named Smith, also was attempting a trans-Atlantic flight at about the same time as Lindbergh in 1927. Colonel Moorhead says no remains of the pilot were found and indications are that he left the plane in the wilderness and tried to find his way back to civilization on foot. At the time Colonel Moorhead's squadron was in Newfoundland there was but one railroad across the forest covered island.

LT. COL. J. J. MOORHEAD

(See MOORHEAD, page 4)