HOT SPRINGS, Va. —(AP)— Gov. William B. Umstead of North Carolina believes Democrats will control the House of Representatives after next year's elections.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Capital politicians speculated yesterday over the future of President Eisenhower's administration as the margin of control in the U. S. House of Representatives dropped to two votes.

Law Students To Battle USC In Mock Trial

The University of South Carolina will meet Carolina in the first round of the Fourth Annual National Inter-Law School Moot Court Competition in the Court room of Manning Hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The Carolina Law School will be represented by Lucius Pullen, Tom Young and Durward Jones.

The case involves suit by a widow of a university professor seeking to recover a death benefit payable under his contract of employment with the university.

The defense is that a few days before he died the trustees discharged him for good cause—i.e. his invocation of the Fifth Amendment as a reason for refusing to answer questions asked of him by a Congressional Committee.

Everyone is invited.

Blood Drive's First Day Nets 326 Student Pints

Long lines of students were the order of the day in Graham Memorial yesterday, as the student body turned out to donate blood to the Red Cross.

Net results tallied this way: Total donations, 326 pints. The Navy ROTC donated 126 pints, the Air Force ROTC, 106.

The drive continues today, beginning at 11 a.m. Donations will not be taken after 5 p.m. Today is the last day of the drive.

SUAB's Variety Show To Star Campus Talent

The first annual SUAB all-student variety show, something new in entertainment on the Carolina campus, will be tomorrow night in Memorial Hall. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The public is invited to attend the program. There is no admission charge.

Ventriloquist Bill Fetzer and his "friend" Jerry McGee will take over the master of ceremonies post, with acts that SUAB spokesmen call "the greatest."

Nine acts with about 14 performers make up the show. They were chosen from approximately 35 students who tried out several weeks ago.

Heading the program will be Ralph Wiggins, ballad singer, who accompanies himself on the ukulele. He will sing familiar mountain songs.

Composer-singer Joe O'Brien will introduce the song "Angel," which he and Vince Grimaldi composed. O'Brien will also offer several popular pieces, both fast and slow.

Accompanist Ed Potter, a blind student who is a talented pianist, will climax the show with his impressions of well-known musicians and some of his arrangements.

Nancy Murray, chairman of the SUAB Dance Committee, said that the show promises to be one of the outstanding events of the fall semester. "We feel that each of the acts is outstanding, and that each performer is something special in his line," she said.

"We hope that the students will attend and show the people who have worked so hard to entertain them that the effort is appreciated. We have had a wonderful time preparing the show. Let's hope everyone has a wonderful time seeing it," Miss Murray added.

Editors Slate Talk To Frosh In GM Today

Editors of campus publications will talk at an open meeting today at 4:00 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge number one.

The program, sponsored by the public relations committee of student government, is intended as an introduction of the work available on the staffs to the incoming freshman boys and junior girls.

All persons interested in securing positions on the Daily Tar Heel, the Yackety-Yack, the Carolina Quarterly, or the Tarnation, humor magazine, are cordially invited to attend.

Pete Adams, chairman of the sponsoring committee, said, "This is a good opportunity for all those students who are interested in bettering themselves as well as the campus to get a staff in some valuable campus organizations."

The editors will explain what their publications do and how they work. They will clarify the requirements necessary for staff positions, and answer all questions put to them by the prospective members of their staffs.

Politicos Pick Candidates For Fall Elections

The University Party and the Student Party began to draw their forces together early this week for next month's fall elections.

The UP last year came up on the short end in fall elections. But Lou Wolfshimer, chairman of the UP, voiced the opinion that the UP would take the fall elections. "I think we have one of the most terrific slates of candidates the UP has ever had the good fortune to acquire," he said.

"With these candidates, I don't see how the voters can deny us." The SP has a one seat majority in Legislature and must capture all but one of the vacant seats in fall elections to maintain a majority.

The SP Monday night nominated men to fill four of the vacant seats in Legislature. Don Geiger and Gene Cook will run for seats in Dorm Men's District I (Cobb). Geiger will be running for reelection and Cook will run for the seat now filled by Bill Brown (Independent), who will graduate in January.

SP nominations for seats in Dorm Men's IV (upper quad, Joyner and Emerson) are Bob Brawley and Larry Ford.

Tuesday night the UP nominated candidates for freshman and Junior class officers. Freshman class nominations: President, Jack Williams; vice president, Skippy Rand; secretary, Mary Anne Keeter; treasurer, Mike Weinmann; and social chairman, Pat Patrick.

Both parties will continue nominations for two more weeks. The elections board has not yet released a list of all seats open in legislature.

Treaty-Making Authority Okay Where It Is, Says Di Senate

After what Critic Joel Fleishman called "one of the best debates in some time," members of the Dialectic Senate this week debated a bill calling for the adoption of the Bricker Amendment.

The defeat came on a 17-10 roll call vote and followed a two-hour session which included an indictment of the policies of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and a charge that the amendment's sponsors were seeking to wreck the United States Constitution.

The victorious opponents of the bill to limit the president's treaty-making powers called it "an attack on the Constitution," while proponents argued that it was an effort to prevent "further abuses" of such power.

Clyde Smith, speaking for the bill, said critics of the Ohio senator's proposed constitutional (See DI SENATE, page 4)

Fourth SUAB Movie Will Be Shown Tonight

The movie "Night Must Fall," fourth presentation of the SUAB motion picture series, will be shown tonight at 8:30 in Carroll Hall.

Starring in the celebrated horror film are Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell and the late Dame May Whitty. The movie deals with a hatbox murderer at large in the English countryside. The original play was written by Emlyn Williams.

SUAB film committee members say that large and enthusiastic audiences have attended the movies this year. They are shown every second Thursday in Carroll Hall.

Under the direction of chairman Jack Markham and Myron Conklin, the committee is making plans for an even better series to be shown during the spring semester, SUAB said. Earl Stevens is adviser for the group.

Mariz To Talk On Brazilian Music Sunday

Dr. Vasco Mariz, Brazilian author and musicologist, will give a lecture with illustrations on Brazilian music in Hill Hall Sunday night at 8 o'clock.

Both professional diplomat and musician, Dr. Mariz has had a varied career. Born in Rio de Janeiro in 1921, he studied music at the Brazilian Conservatory under the direction of Oscar Lorenzo Fernandez. Continuing his studies with Karl Elmendorff in Lisbon and Marius Francois Gaillard in Paris, he made his debut at Porto Alegre, Brazil, in 1945, singing the role of Don Bartolo in "The Marriage of Figaro."

As a concert singer, Mariz has performed in most of the European capitals and in 1952 he made a successful tour of the cities of Brazil.

Dr. Mariz has also achieved international recognition with his "Hector Villa-Lobos," the first book (1949) written about that Brazilian composer. Other works which he has written on the music of Brazil are: "Brazilian Contemporary Composers," "The Art Song in Brazil," "Vida Musical" and "Dictionary Bio-bibliographic of Music."

As a musicologist, Dr. Mariz is a correspondent of the American Musicological Society and the International Institute of Music.

Students May Get $17,000 From Publications Surplus

The student Legislature tonight will hear a bill asking that the Publications Board's purse strings be loosened and a $17,000 chunk of its surplus revenues be dumped into the general student government till.

The bill will not be acted upon until next week. Gordon Forester, chairman of the legislative committee which decided to ask for the action by Legislature, said, "I think it is very important that the bill pass since it provides that funds will go into the hands of the Legislature, and since the Publications Board is under the jurisdiction of the Legislature."

On the other hand, Joe Raff, chairman of the Publications Board, said, "I'm not convinced that the decision of the committee is a wise one. A large portion of that surplus was derived from advertising revenues, and I'm not convinced that these funds belong in the student body coffers."

The committee which Forester heads was set up "to effect more harmonious relationships between the Publications Board and the Legislature." The committee met earlier this week with a number of people connected with campus publications. Forester reported that the "majority" of these were in accordance with the committee's decision.

Present at the meeting were Raff, Ed Starnes, treasurer of the Publications Board; Rolfe Neill, editor of The Daily Tar Heel; Russ Cowell, business manager of the Yackety-Yack; Jim Schenck, business manager of The Daily Tar Heel, and Syd Shufford, assistant business manager of The Daily Tar Heel.

"We don't want to hamper the Publications Board by cutting off too much of their surplus," said Forester. The $17,000 dollars which will be taken from the board if the bill passes is in government securities, associated mortgages, and building and loan. The Legislature will, if the bill passes, appropriate $5,000 in cash back to the board, leaving it with $15,000 operating capital.

Raff said earlier this week that he thought that the Legislature had done a "wise" thing by "at last" appointing a committee to work for better relationships between the Legislature and the Publications Board. "I think this is the beginning of a proper, harmonious and necessary relationship between the Publications Board and student Legislature. Such liaison was needed long ago.

"The Legislature is the final governing body, and I think they will come to a sage decision."

Also on the Legislative agenda will be the consideration of a bill providing for revising the general elections laws; a bill providing that fall elections be held December 8, with run-offs December 15; a bill providing for the placing of all excess funds from student fees into the Legislature's unappropriated balance; a bill to appropriate $300 to the University Club for its program for the rest of the fall semester and a bill providing for the appropriation of $27.50 for CUSC space in the Yackety-Yack.

Elisha Mitchell Society To Hold 507th Meeting

The 507th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 in Room 206, Phillips Hall.

Committee Chairman To Clear Trustee Report

The chairman of the Trustee committee that recommended campus store profits be used for "grants-in-aid" yesterday promised to clear up "some of these things people don't understand."

In a telephone interview late yesterday afternoon, H. P. Taylor of Wadesboro explained that he would have to review the committee's report, which was given early in 1952, before commenting.

However, the Wadesboro Trustee promised The Daily Tar Heel that he would clarify the committee's report on "merchandising policies and practices and regulations for grant-in-aid awards" by mail.

The Trustee report doesn't mention the word "scholarship," but refers to financial aid to students as "grants-in-aid."

Asked if there is any difference between "scholarships" and "grants-in-aid," Taylor said, "It would seem to me that they are both the same thing. We just called them grants-in-aid." He added that there was "no special reason" for calling them thusly.

Administration officials here commonly refer to athletic grants as "grants-in-aid" and other student grants as "scholarships."

"This thing is a closed issue as far as I'm concerned," declared Taylor. He said any "further interpretations" are up to administrative officials. Later, he promised to "clarify" several points in the report.

Re-examination of the report came about yesterday when it was announced that $40,000 in campus store profits are being turned back into student grants-in-aid with $10,000 of that amount specifically earmarked for athletic grants.

Students are selected for grants, said the report, "on the basis of character, citizenship, leadership, and complete compliance with all requirements, of the institution concerned, pertaining to admission and normal academic progress."

He is professor of English Language and Literature at Victoria University College of the University of New Zealand; Dean of the Faculty of Arts, and vice-chancellor of New Zealand University.

Teams Learn, Tutors Earn

By Ann Pooley

Jobs for students and scholastic help for athletes are provided by the University Athletic Department's tutoring service.

Under the direction of Mike McLeod, second year law student, the service is designed to help athletes with subjects in which they are having trouble. When a boy needs help, he fills out a form which is approved by his coach and handed into the tutoring office. McLeod then assigns a tutor.

Tutors are required to have had several courses in the subject in which they give instruction, and a thorough knowledge of the course. Both graduates and undergraduates are eligible. Some experience in tutoring is desirable, but not necessary.

The pay scale is as follows: undergraduates, $1.50 per hour for helping one student, or $2.50 an hour for tutoring two in the same subject at once; graduates, $2 for one student, $3 for two. If more than two students are tutored at once, an additional 50 cents is paid for each.

Last year $7,300.48 was spent to tutor several hundred athletes from the University's dozen or so sports. The money came from the Carolina Athletic Association.

Tutors are asked to consult with the athlete's instructor and to turn in a written report to the office about his progress.

Each athlete who requests help is authorized 10 hours to begin with. If his work is good and he needs still more help, he will usually be given more.

McLeod said that about 60 people have signed up to tutor, while only 42 athletes have requested aid. The greatest number need help in Spanish and math. More tutors are needed for math and chemistry.

Students who are interested in doing tutoring work should go to McLeod's office, 313 Woolen Gymnasium. His office hours are from 2 to 3, Monday through Friday afternoons.

The service is made possible by the Athletic Association, and payments are made through the University Payroll Department.
