Gastronomical Pro Diffuses Cooking Lore

"I believe that we are now coming into the most elegant period in the history of gastronomy and the arts," Mrs. Marion Brown of Burlington, author of the "Southern Cookbook," said here this week at a Bull's Head Bookshop tea in the University Library. Mrs. Brown, whose topic was "From the Apple to the Atom," said that more people are writing cookbooks and discussing cooking than at any time in history. "Ten years ago a dozen people would not have come to hear me speak on this subject," she told a large audience.

"Cooking is an art," she declared, "and a knowledge of cooking is necessary before it becomes enjoyable." She admitted that men make the best chefs in the world. "Women cook because they feel it is their duty," she said, "and it is drudgery to most of them. When men cook they do so simply because they enjoy it."

"In other countries American cooking does not have a good reputation. Foreigners think that people in the United States eat too many sandwiches, hot dogs, and other quickly prepared meals."

Mrs. Brown traced the history of cooking from the days of Adam to the present atomic age, drawing heavily on material found in Jean Anthelme Brillat-Savarin's book, "The Physiology of Taste." Savarin, French lawyer, politician, magistrate, and literary man of the 18th and 19th centuries, was an authority on all phases of gastronomy and was well ahead of his time, Mrs. Brown said.

"The progress of a nation can be measured by its cooking," she said, "and the arts advance as the standard of cooking advances." cooking and the arts decline and

"During wars and depressions rise again to new heights as the country recovers," she stated.

Prof. Walter Spearman of the School of Journalism introduced Mrs. Brown, who spoke following the tea.

Mrs. Noel Houston and Mrs. Charlie Shaffer poured tea. Mrs. Musella W. Wagner was chairman of the serving committee.

knee in practice on Tuesday and is out for an indeterminate length of time.

Bullock, on the other hand, is suffering from a bruised hip which he says he hurt some time ago but which only began to pain him after practice on Wednesday. Neither of the two players made the trip down with the team.

To replace these two key men, Coach Barclay has had to shuffle his lineup somewhat. Captain Ken Yarborough, who was a tackle last year, has been returned to his old position to fill in for Eure. Moving up to replace Yarborough is Will Frye, who played first string right end for some time at the start of the season.

Coach Barclay is expected to replace his key man, Bullock, with Marshall Newman, the Clinton sophomore who returned to the quarterback position only last week. Newman started the season as the first-string signal-caller, but he was moved out and later shifted to halfback in a surprise move.

Ironically, the South Carolina game last year was one of Newman's best all season long as he passed for one touchdown and played an outstanding running game also. The Gamecocks were one of two teams which the Tar Heels were able to defeat last season.

South Carolina will be led tomorrow on the field by their quarterback, Johnny Gramling, the leading ACC passer who beat Clemson almost single-handedly with his throwing arm. He has an overall season's record of 40 completions in 75 attempts for 582 yards.

Gramling's chief target is end Clyde Bennett, who is good on defense also. Bennett stands 6'2", weighs 200 pounds, and led the team in scoring last season.

The South Carolina line is led by Leon Cunningham, a 195-pound center who Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland said was the best line backer his team had faced this year. The undefeated Terps thought that the Gamecocks were the toughest team they had played to date.

Coach Jim Gill, who has been scouting South Carolina for the Tar Heels, reports that the Gamecocks have more overall speed than he has seen on their team in

The committee was supposed to have presented its report in two weeks but didn't make it.

Finally Thursday Brown handed the report, written in the first person, to Gorham, and read it that night in Legislature.

The report didn't answer Cook's charges, and Brown and Gorham maintain that the report was not set up to answer the charges in the first place.

Said Gorham Thursday, "Cook's charges were answered before this thing started." (Gorham had previously called Cook's charges "fantastic," saying that the SP was attempting to "split the campus for political expediency.")

The report states that "it seems inevitable that some politics will come to play in Orientation as it is now set up. But we do not believe the current Orientation program is any more embodied in politics than programs for the past four or five years."

The report, and a bill introduced to Legislature by Brown, asks that the constitution be amended to provide that orientation committee members be selected by the chairmen of the Interdormitory Council, the Dialectic Senate, the Philanthropic Society and the orientation committee. As the law now stands, the president appoints a committee to appoint the Orientation Committee members. The president also appoints the chairman of the Orientation Committee.

The statement in the orientation study committee's report which prompted Joel Fleishman to refuse to sign and Don Geiger (SP) to withdraw his signature, reads, "As regards fraternity loading on the committee and among the counselors, the committee has no findings. That is to say, I think, that neither the committee nor the counselors were purposely selected because of their extra-curricular participations. Although this area of work has not been explored very thoroughly, I think this is a safe assumption to make."

Fleishman and Geiger say that shouldn't be in the report since it is the opinion of Brown and is not held by the committee. Cook says he approves the committee's several years. He said, "I've been seeing them every year, and Rex Enright has his fastest team this year."

Coach Barclay was very disappointed in the showing his team made last week against Tennessee, and has been spending most of the week in a rehash of the fundamentals of the game. After watching the pictures of the Vol game, everyone was agreed that the Tar Heels did not play up to par.

"We are a better team than we showed against Tennessee," said Captain Yarborough, after viewing the pictures.

Collegiate Life Will Be Topic For Educator

Miss Laura Barney, representative of the Institute of International Education in New York City, will talk with international students here today about their study programs and their adjustment to American college life.

Mrs. Barney, head of the European division of the Foreign Student Department, is on a field trip through the South. She will discuss international study opportunities for American students.

She hopes to discuss with college and university personnel throughout the country the problems of international student placement and to study the means of increasing the exchange of students between the U. S. and other countries.

Eleven students at the University are connected with the Institute.

report but does not hold Brown's opinion.

"I have not withdrawn my charges, since they have not been sufficiently dealt with," said Cook yesterday.

Earlier this week Gorham said, "The Orientation study committee has done a wonderful job. Bill Brown had the complete cooperation of the committee members, and as a result he has come up with a non-partisan evaluation of orientation."

"The attitude of all people concerned with this project convinces me that the welfare of Carolina can be placed ahead of politics," said Gorham.

The committee will meet again next week to "try to iron out differences of opinion."

NEWS IN BRIEF

NASHVILLE, N. C. —(AP)— Rev. Samuel H. W. Johnson, who led his church out of the State and Southern Baptist Conventions last August, took the stand in Superior Court here yesterday to defend his action. Johnson charged at the time of the withdrawal that the convention was "shot through with liberalism and modernism." A group of pro-convention members has charged the walkout was decided by an unfair vote and are suing to prohibit the bolters from using church property.

ROME —(AP)— Rioting before the American Embassy here yesterday was finally quelled by police tear gas bombs as angry Italian students, inflamed by yesterday's and today's killing of their countrymen in Trieste, demonstrated. Blonde American Ambassador Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce stood in the Embassy courtyard as the riot flared through downtown streets.

PANMUNJON, Korea —(AP)— American prisoners of war who have refused repatriation held two Indian guards as hostages yesterday in protest against "threats and coercion" contained in letters from home. Meanwhile, the prisoner interview program was called off for three days as tempers flared again on the uneasy truce front.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. yesterday reduced wholesale gasoline prices by an average of a quarter of a cent a gallon in its 15-state Eastern marketing area which extends from the Carolinas to Maine. Other major producers were expected to follow suit.
