Umstead For Segregation In Public Schools

RALEIGH, Nov. 12 (AP)—Gov. Umstead indicated today that he is hopeful the U. S. Supreme Court will not abolish segregation in the public schools.

In answering questions at his news conference, Umstead said, "I'm not conceding or assuming that the Supreme Court is going to abolish segregation."

The governor pointed out that in order to rule out segregation, the court will have to upset a long list of previous decisions in which it upheld segregation.

Gov. Umstead is planning to see the football game Saturday between North Carolina and Notre Dame.

He told newsmen he is resigned that his alma mater doesn't have much chance of defeating the nation's No. 1 football team.

"I'm going with resignation," he said, "but always with hope. I'm not going to sit here... and admit that Notre Dame is going to beat them."

Christine Jorgensen Says She'll Marry Friend

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Christine Jorgensen said yesterday her friendship with a Washington, D. C. portrait painter—who sends the ex-GI a dozen roses daily—might lead to an engagement. Christine, who underwent a series of sexual operations in Denmark, said the artist, Patrick Flanigan, 29, also had given her a ring. Flanigan is separated from his wife.

HST Says He Won't Testify; Brynes Responding By Wire

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Former president Truman refused today to comply with a subpoena to appear before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

It was the principal development in a day marked by constant Washington activity in the Harry Dexter White case.

Truman said in a letter to Committee Chairman Harold Velde he was "personally willing" to cooperate with the committee, but he said, "I feel personally constrained by my duty to the people of the United States to decline with the subpoena."

Velde said he was "postponing" the Truman hearing.

In other developments today: Governor James Brynes of South Carolina, who has said he won't answer a subpoena directed to him either, today answered committee questions by teletype. A subcommittee is expected to go to South Carolina to question him.

T. Lamar Caudle testified before another committee, the Senate Internal Security group, behind closed doors. He told reporters afterward he "became alarmed" in 1946 about an FBI report on White he saw. Caudle says he never saw proof, however, that White, who Truman promoted to a high government post, was a communist.

In a rash of subpoenas yesterday, Truman, Caudle, Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, and Brynes were summoned to testify. Only Caudle has responded.

There were reports late today that the whole investigation would be postponed until next year. Velde refused comment on the reports. He has, however, cancelled a subpoena for Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, Truman's former military aide.

Students Get Surplus Funds

$77,000 To Footballers

Athletes Get $99,000 In Student Aid Grants

By The Associated Press
Big-time football at the University of North Carolina, under recent heated attack from student sources, is costing $77,112.25 this year in student aid allotments.

This was shown today in figures released by Chancellor Robert B. House in an annual report prepared by the University's Student Aid Office.

The report showed that a total of 1,396 students aid allotments, including loans, scholarships, fellowships, awards, grants and part-time jobs, have been granted University students at Chapel Hill for this year. The allotments were valued at $773,077.

Of that amount, nearly 10 per cent, or $77,112.25 went into 72 allotments for football players—an average of $1,071 for each player.

The football awards were subject of heated criticism last week from The Daily Tar Heel, the campus newspaper, which charged that "Big-time college sports are a cancer at the heart of education."

"Long suspected as a serious disease," the editorial in the paper declared, "the ravages of intercollegiate athletics become a certainty when state funds are tabbed for specific use as grants-in-aid to athletes."

"What really hurts is that it has happened to us. One-fourth of the profits from campus stores has been given to the Educational Foundation. The University officially has joined the alumni and 'friends' who provide the cash to buy better teams."

The report on the 1,396 student aid allotments totaling $773,077, which included aid to both athletes and non-athletes, showed 138 loans totaling $73,407; 757 scholarships, fellowships, awards and grants totaling $473,582; and 501 part-time jobs valued at $226,088.

Of the 757 scholarships, fellowships, awards and grants, 115 of them—valued at $99,127.25—went to athletes. This was a decrease from last year when 144 athletic awards totaling $100,632, were given. The report said that $10,000 of the $99,127 came from profits from student stores; the remainder from the Educational Foundation.

The breakdown on the athletic allotments shows that 13 of them, totaling $13,744.50, went to basketball players; 72 for $77,112.25 went to football players; four for $1,280 went to swimmers; eight for $1,495.50 to track men; 12 for $2,049 to baseball players; and six for $3,466 to tennis players.

The finalists came onto the stage in a body, each carrying a bouquet. Organist Paul Weston furnished background music. Weston, who is from Boone, played 15 years with the Paul Whiteman orchestra. He played a different selection for each of the 96 entries and furnished entertainment during the intermission.

Places were reserved in jam-packed Memorial Hall for dormitory and sorority house mothers.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Kay Kysor, Dr. E. L. Mackie, and Orville Campbell. They were presented during the second intermission. The judges and Jones were presented with gifts by Reen Norris.

Miss Norris and Jack Markham, co-beauty editors of the Yackety Yack, were in charge of the contest. Lib Moore, editor of the Yackety Yack, commended them for their "hard work" and "unflinching interest in making the contest a success."

The announcement and presentation of the 13 winners by master of ceremonies Nose Jones after the judging climaxed the program. The beauties were greeted by a prolonged ovation from the audience, which had reacted enthusiastically to each of the bevy of 96 beauties entered in the contest.

DR. NEWMAN

Legislature Takes PB Money, Considers 'C' Average Rule

By Richard Creed
The Student Legislature last night passed two bills, one of them taking $12,700 from the Publications Board surplus and placing it in the general student body surplus, and the other providing for amendment to the constitution to change the method of setting up the Orientation Committee.

The first bill, introduced last week by Gordon Forester (SP), provides that $17,700 in government securities, building and loan, and associated mortgages be taken from the Publications Board and added to the student body surplus. It provides also that the Legislature appropriate $5,000 back to the PB, leaving it with an operating capital of $15,000.

The other bill, introduced last week by Independent Bill Brown, provides that the Orientation Committee be chosen by a committee made up of the chairman of five campus organizations. It provides that the chairman of the Orientation Committee be a rising senior, and that he be appointed by the outgoing president by February 15. Previously the Orientation Committee and its chairman were selected by the incoming president, and the chairman was not necessarily a rising senior.

The committee which will select the Orientation Committee will be made up of the chairman of the Phi, the Di, the IFC, the IFC, and the Orientation Committee. Both bills passed unanimously.

Joel Fleishman (SP) introduced a bill calling for a minimum scholastic standing requirement for athletes equal to that of participants in student government. Student government participants are required to maintain an overall C average on 27 semester hours (or 2 semesters preceding their participation). Athletes are now required to have made one half C's or better on 21 semester hours for 2 semesters prior to their participation.

The bill would not require athletes to make a minimum grade of C on every course. It would require that they maintain an overall average of one quality point, or C.

Manning Muntzing (SP) introduced a bill calling for the creation of a committee to provide for student evaluation of instructors. The committee would draft a set of questions to be answered by students about their instructors. The answers would be handed over to the Chancellor and college deans for their consideration, and would be a suggestion as to how instructors might improve their teaching methods.

Pete Adams (UP) objected to the creation of such a committee, reporting that President Bob Gihman has already set up a one man committee to investigate the possibility of such instructor evaluation. He said that a committee such as Muntzing suggested could consider approximately 40,000 questionnaires and procure any immediate results.

Phin Horton (UP) moved that the bill be referred to committee for consideration. The motion passed.

Bob Grimes (UP) was unsatisfied for non-performance of duty. Absent from the meeting were Lou Cody (SP), Bob Eberle (UP), Julia Shields (UP), and Tom Shores (UP).

Text Of Bill
Here is the text of the bill introduced last night in the student legislature to provide minimum academic requirements for athletes:

Whereas: It is in the best interest of the general welfare that students of the University should not, while participating in extra-curricular activities, lose sight of the central importance of academics; and

Whereas: Student government, in order to protect the interest of those engaged in its activities, has already prescribed certain standards of an academic nature; and

Whereas: It is vital to a healthy and sound athletic program that students should not sacrifice their academic interests while participating in intercollegiate athletics; and

Whereas: It is the responsibility (See TEXT, page 6)

Sixteen Visit United Nations

UNC Students In New York

By Joyce Adams

Daily Tar Heel Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—Eighteen Carolina students had a New York holiday Thursday as they took in the big town prior to attending the United Nations Student Seminar which opens today.

Three carloads of them left Chapel Hill late Wednesday night for an all night drive to the Empire State. In spite of the fact that none of them got much sleep, the Manhattan skyline proved too alluring, and as soon as they unpacked they went through the revolving doors of the Hotel Diplomat and were lost in the seething stream of humanity that flows along Broadway, 6th Ave., and Times Square.

Some of them went to the NBC broadcasting studios to take in the Garry Moore and other TV and radio shows. Some headed for the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and others, their pockets well-lined, went to Macy's and Gimbels to do their Christmas shopping.

The ice-skaters in Rockefeller Plaza proved fascinating to the Tar Heels, and some of them even got up the nerve to try it themselves, though their efforts indicated more courage than grace.

To those who had never been to New York before, the speech of their Yankee neighbors evoked much mirth. "Did you ever hear anything like it?" one girl drawled. Just then the salesgirl turned to her and said, "What did you say, Dearie?"

The weather here is surprising warm, about the same it's been in Chapel Hill for the last week. The sky isn't exactly cloudy, but there's quite a smog most of the time.

Lambert Davis, Director of the University Press, will speak at the meeting of the English Club tonight at 7:30 in the Assembly Exhibition Room of the Library.

Yesterday's story which said the talk was scheduled yesterday was incorrect, and The Daily Tar Heel apologizes for any inconvenience caused by this error.

"The Hard Facts of Scholarly Publishing" will be the subject of Davis' discussion.

Davis is a former editor of the "Virginia Quarterly Review", Bobbs-Merrill Co., and Harcourt, Brace and Co. He has been Director of the University Press since 1948.

While with Harcourt-Brace, he edited Robert Penn Warren's Pulitzer-prize winning novel, "All the Kings Men." Warren later acknowledged his debt to Davis, attributing to his skillful editing, much of the book's success.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Two demonstrators were killed by police gunfire today as thousands of supporters of ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh took their ousted leader's case to the streets. Gangs shouting "Long live Mossadegh" roamed through main thoroughfares despite heavy police and troop guards at main intersections. More than two dozen were arrested and several were clubbed as activities continued normally in quieter sections of the capital.

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—Gov. James F. Byrnes said yesterday he is confident that former President Truman would have halted the nomination of Harry Dexter White as executive director of the International Monetary Fund on Feb. 6, 1946, had the Senate not already confirmed him. Byrnes' announcement came as he sent teletyped answers to the Senate Committee investigating the White case.

MANILA (AP)—President-elect Ramon Magsaysay of the Philippine Republic said here yesterday that he will journey to the U. S. sometime this month to meet with American military and governmental leaders. Magsaysay's announcement came as incumbent President Elpidio Quirino conceded defeat to him in Tuesday's hard fought national election. With more than half of the returns tabulated, Magsaysay led by a million votes.
