Doctor Leavitt Paid Tribute By New Book

Tribute is paid to one of the University's outstanding professors and authorities on the humanities in the form of a volume, "South Atlantic Studies for Sturgis E. Leavitt," just published by the Scarecrow Press of Washington, D. C.

In honor of Dr. Leavitt's 15 years of editorship of the South Atlantic Bulletin, official publication of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association, which he headed in 1935-37, members of the Association voted to publish the book, composed of articles written by 17 scholars and professors in institutions throughout the South and California.

The two editors are Dr. Sterling Stoudemire, head of the University's Department of Romance Languages, and Dr. Thomas B. Stroup, University of Kentucky.

Dr. Leavitt, Kenan professor of Spanish in the Department of Romance Languages and director of the Institute of Latin-American Studies, is former chairman of the Southern Humanities Conference.

According to Editor Stoudemire, in a foreword, Dr. Leavitt has been a leader of humanism in North Carolina and the South as well as at Chapel Hill.

"HOW GOES IT?" dials New York—and a building in Illinois answers

Shell Oil Co. wanted a small brick building in Illinois to be able to teletype automatically to a dispatcher in Radio City—more than 800 miles away. The building in Dennison, Ill., is one of four pumping stations on an important oil line. For efficiency, all these stations were to be controlled from New York. Bell System engineers were asked to help.

Now the New York dispatcher operates these stations by using an ordinary telephone dial. By dialing a number, he can make a pumping station automatically report back its meter readings by teletype! He also dials numbers to open and shut valves, start and stop pumps, and summon an attendant. It's done through Bell System facilities.

These remote-control installations represent salesmanship, research and engineering skill on the part of many Bell System people. That's the reason there are rewarding opportunities in many lines for college people in the telephone company. Why not check soon with your Placement Officer on your chances to start with the Bell System after graduation?
