

Duke Blocks Punt

Tar Heels Drop Finale To Blue Devils, 35-20

By John Hussey

Carolina, feared as the top punting team in the ACC and one of the foremost in the country, dropped its final game to Duke as both teams put forth one of their best scoring efforts of the year. Ironically, the 35-20 loss was due mainly to the inability of the Tar Heels to get off any of the kicks which have heretofore been more of a habit than a task to them.

Only one of the Tar Heel boots ever passed the line of scrimmage as two were blocked and on three occasions the punter had to run as his interference failed. This was the story of a ball game which marked by frequent penalties, several fumbles and a variety of all the mistakes and unusual happenings which ordinarily don't occur in a whole season of play.

Duke showed unusual power in their ability to move the ball as they marched to a touchdown the first time they received possession. A safety gave them a 9-0 halftime lead and the Tar Heels were never able to get back in the ball game. The closest they ever came to the Blue Devils was when Ken Keller snatched a fumble in the air and advanced unmolested to a touchdown to bring the score to 28-20. But another Duke score put the game on ice for the home team. It was the most points that a Blue Devil team has ever produced against the Tar Heels and it was also the most points scored on Duke all year.

The Imps captured the Cerebral Palsy Turkey Day fest from the Tar Babies in a 47-26 touchdown

Ah, Tis Love

Sonnets to a Dark Lady—Why try to say it yourself when Shakespeare has already said it so perfectly? We know the answer, but the book's still nice. $1.00

This Is My Beloved—The contemporary favorite for love-seat reading. $3.00

Arise My Love. Helen Rowe Henze describes love from a woman's viewpoint. $3.00

For You, My Love, by Frank Kimball. More love, in a somewhat modern vein, but can one ever get too much? $2.50

The Prophet—by Kahlil Gibran. Like the Song of Songs and other portions of the Bible, this book seems to fill a need for young lovers. $3.00

Collector's Delight

If there is a collector on your list, no gift you could choose would bring so much delight, and at the same time have so small a chance of being duplicated, as a rare book in his field. Since the essence of rarity is rarity, a listing of titles we have in stock at the moment would be pointless. We can say however, that no dealer anywhere has so many North Carolina books as we now offer.

Prices range from $1.00 to $85.00
