'No Prostitution'

Hobbs Backs Sports

"I don't think an educational institution is worthy of being called such without an adequate sports program," said Dr. A. W. Hobbs, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics, in a panel discussion on grants-in-aid to athletes sponsored by the Freshman Fellowship this week. "To say that the University of North Carolina is prostituting athletics is absurd—neither the University nor the faculty has ever sought prestige in sports." Dr. Hobbs voiced this opinion after Bob Young, moderator for the panel, read several Daily Tar Heel editorials opposing big-time athletics at UNC. Tom Peacock, sports editor of The Daily Tar Heel pointed out what he called two misinterpretations of facts expressed by the editorials:

(1) "an average of C being required by all students participating in extra-curricular activities while athletes need only have a C average on half of 24 semester hours of work taken during the previous year. "Such is not the case," Peacock said, "For instance, the editor of The Daily Tar Heel is the only man on the staff who has to have a C average."

OSLO, Norway — (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall said yesterday in accepting the Nobel Peace Prize that the world now needs "a spiritual regeneration which would re-establish a feeling of good faith among men generally." Marshall summed up in his speech the belief of a life-long soldier that future wars must be prevented and "some practical method" found for keeping peace.

PANMUNJOM — (AP) — Allied efforts to woo home war prisoners who stayed with the communists—including 22 Americans and one Briton—were threatened yesterday by Red slowdown tactics which forced suspension of interviews with South Korean POW's. Lt. Gen. K. S. Thimayya, Indian chairman of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission, said 30 ROK prisoners would be called up for interviews tomorrow. But there was no indication whether the sessions would be held.

Shaw Protests YRC's Stand On Race Issue

RALEIGH, Dec. 11 —(AP)— The student council at Shaw University has entered a protest to the segregation stand taken last Saturday by the College Council of North Carolina Young Republicans.

Meeting at Pfeiffer College, the Young Republicans' council adopted a resolution critical of Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell "for attempting to coerce" the U. S. Supreme Court on the school segregation issue. The Young Republicans also endorsed the "free, equal but segregated school program" of North Carolina and took the position that "the improvement of relations between minority groups by evolution rather than by legislative or judicial action can be much more satisfactory and lasting in its nature."

The Shaw University council replied that "this evolutionary idea has been in motion since 1865 without solving the issue of segregated schools."

The crux, said the student council, "is not whether or not evolution is satisfactory or lasting to any degree but whether or not, as citizens of the United States, Negroes are due full and complete equality before the law."

Dr. Claiborne Jones, general college advisor, told the panel that the argument of finances is beside the point, "the University does not promote a sports program designed to make a profit—the real issue," Dr. Jones said, "is the University's moral responsibility as an educational institution and as a state agency."

"Our first duty is to tend to the primary job of education and as a state agency stay out of any program which is resigned for or yields a profit."

Allan Zelon, graduate student in anthropology, asked the panel "what is the function of a sports program which offers scholarships in some instances of as high as $1,000, if it is not to attract good athletes and thereby gain prestige by winning sports events?"

Dr. Hobbs answered, "Our program is designed to give students a choice, to participate in any sport—any student who wishes to partake in this program may do so. The program is a necessary part of an educational institution. It is to be well-rounded."

Zelon then asked, "How many really good athletes come here on their own—without scholarships?"

"What if they do — have scholarships," Dr. Hobbs answered, "They are still students."

Alumni Listed In University's New Directory

For the first time since 1924 the University is publishing a new alumni address book. It is entitled "The 1953-54 University of North Carolina Alumni Directory."

Nin in process of publication, the directory will contain 66,800 separate listings of alumni. It will list all graduates and ex-students (living or deceased), cross references for married and maiden names, classes, degrees, years of attendance and present addresses on file in the Alumni Office.

Publication of the directory has been made possible by a grant from the Cornelia Phillips Spencer Alumni Fund, established in 1943 by the late James Lee Love '84 of Burlington.

The new directory will list all students starting with Hinton James and including the present class of 1953.

The directory will be sold at cost—$5—and will be ready for delivery prior to the 1954 Commencement.

You may order your copy now by writing to the Alumni Association, Box 660, Chapel Hill, N. C.

A BULLET-SCARRED Negro convict was charged yesterday in the double slaying of a Pamlico high school sophomore and a young Latta man. Returning from North Carolina after a fruitless search for Raymond Carney, Sheriff John Hanna of Florence County signed a warrant against the 6-foot, 2-inch Negro and issued "wanted" circulars on him. Carney, who was also named in the circular as Corney and J. W. Page, has been sought in the Carolinas since early yesterday, several hours after the head of Miss Betty Clair Cain, 15, (left) and the body of Henry B. Allen, 22, (right) were found in an abandoned well near here. Miss Cain's headless body had been unearthed Monday on the Pee Dee River banks. Both she and Allen, her Sunday night date, had been beaten and shot—AP Wirephoto.

Baptist Students Invited To Appear At Hearing

Carolina's Baptist students next month will have a chance to sound off before a statewide committee investigating North Carolina's Baptist Student Unions.

Criticism of the Baptist college youth organizations has prompted the special investigation.

The Rev. J. C. Herrin, Baptist student chaplain here, said he had received an "invitation to attend the meeting of the committee." The meeting is in Raleigh on Jan. 5.

"I've been asked to bring along any students who would like to go," Herrin said.

Students have also been invited to write Dr. Perry Crouch at the First Baptist Church in Asheville. Crouch is chairman of the committee.

A Baptist leader in Ahoskie, Mrs. Gordon Maddrey, reported yesterday that the investigating group plans to call witnesses at a meeting Jan. 4-6. Evidently, Carolina was invited only for the one day, Jan. 5.

The Baptist student groups came in for criticism at a state convention in Greensboro last month for objecting to the last minute removal of a speaker from their own convention.

The speaker, Dr. Nels Ferre, Vanderbilt University professor, was booted off the student convention program at the last minute.

His hasty removal wasn't explained at the time. Some students believe that the ousting grew from attacks on Dr. Ferre by Rev. Samuel W. H. Johnson, pastor of the Nash County Church.

The Nash County pastor charged that Dr. Ferre has questioned the Virgin Birth of Christ. Shortly afterwards, Dr. Ferre was told that he no longer had the invitation to speak at the student convention.

The students, including a large group from Carolina, protested, saying that they had the right to hear any scheduled speaker.

Subsequently, the special committee was directed "to conduct a fair and full study of the union as to program, purpose, and personnel."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 — Federal Office of Education reported an increase of 4.8 percent in college and university enrollment over the past academic year.

Men students continued to outnumber women. Dr. Samuel Brownell, commissioner of education, attributed the increase to a record number of high school graduates last spring, as well as educational benefits for war veterans.

New York State has the highest enrollment with 289,312.

Enrollments were highest in New York University, the University of California, the City College of New York, State University of New York, Columbia University, University of Illinois, University of Michigan, Ohio State University, University of Minnesota, Northwestern University.

Theft Reported In Aycock Is Third So Far

One more theft was added to the list in dormitories yesterday. John Collins in 303 Aycock had $10 stolen from his room some time this week.

This brought the number of reported thefts to three and the total amount of money to $86.

Capt. W. D. Blake of the Chapel Hill Police Department said yesterday that the police dept. and the University has trouble with dorm thefts every year just before the Christmas vacation and the end of the school year. He also advised students to keep a closer watch over their belongings at these times.

Assistant to the Dean of Students, Ray Jeffries, said yesterday that his office had "no new information concerning the thefts."

Earlier this week two other thefts in dormitories were reported. Carl Baugess in 203 Manley had $46 stolen from his room. Neil Bell in 311 Aycock reported the theft of $30 from his room.

Nobody Believes Him

Car Thieves Are Dogs

MIDWAY, Dec. 11 —(AP)— Two dogs stole a car in this Davidson County town this week but were apprehended before they could get out of town with it.

The theft had to be a two-dog job because neither dog had legs long enough to steer and reach the gas at the same time.

Charlie Eller of Midway owns the car and the dogs. He says it happened this way, and he's got witnesses to prove it:

The dogs are Boston bull terriers. Spunky, the male, is five years old, and Tippy, his car-stealing mate, is just three.

"I left the motor running because the battery was down when I went to lunch Tuesday. It was in neutral and I thought I had the brakes on but it turned out they weren't really on good."

"I was eating a sandwich in a cafe when the waiter came over and said, 'Charlie, there goes your car down the road.'"

"Spunky had jumped up on the steering wheel to look out. He must have hit the gear shift, pushing it into driving gear."

"Tippy had got something out of the back and was tearing it up on the floor. Once in a while she would hit the accelerator while she was playing."

"They took it across the space in front of the cafe, got in into the road, and kept it on the right side for a while but were starting across the white line when I caught it."

"Those dogs just live in my car. Much as they've been in it, they ought to know how to drive."

After two days of telling the story, Eller says he's tired of "being called the biggest liar in the country."

"The car wasn't running very smooth," he admit. "It was sort of jerky."

Abolish State Schools

Mississippi For Segregation

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 11 —(AP)— The Mississippi House passed by a two vote margin Thursday the constitutional amendment resolution that would give the Legislature standby power to abolish the state school system to preserve segregation.

The vote was 92 to 43, just two votes more than the required two-thirds majority.

Opponents of the proposal, fighting it as a "dangerous instrument," delayed final passage once more by holding it on a motion to reconsider the final vote. That device requires still another balloting before final passage.

The House, using the argument on segregation before the Supreme Court, halted its deliberation on a program to equalize Negro and white schools to punch through the resolution.

Its aim is to spell out its displeasure with any court decision striking down segregation and to afford the state a "last ditch measure" against Negro and white children going to school together.
