Seniors Get Money For Picnic, Concert

By Fred Powledge

The student Legislature last night started out debating whether the Publications Board should be allotted $55 for picture space in the Yack, and ended up questioning whether the Board had yet done $55 worth of work.

The Publications Board ended up getting nothing.

The object of the lengthy debate was a bill introduced by a Publications Board representative providing for the sum of $55 to be used for a full-page picture in the yearbook. While in committee, the sum was amended to $27.50 for a half-page. Investigation by legislators disclosed the Board had gone ahead and ordered a full-page, $55 picture of its members.

Gene Cook (SP) said the picture should be printed as a "memorial" to the Board, although the group had given the Legislature a "slap in the face" by reserving space before consulting the lawmakers, but he said, "tradition demands that we do it."

"I don't see... they've done $55 worth of work," said Gordon Forester (SP). Forester said he thought the budget committee, when making out the annual Legislature budget of allocations, should make provisions for requests as that of the Publications Board.

Jim Turner (SP), a member of the Publications Board, said that "a bill to disband the Board might be brought up tonight" as far as he knew, but at the present time it is an "integral part" of student (See SOLONS, page 6)

At Gunpoint

Armed Thief Takes Cash At Davidson

DAVIDSON, N. C., Feb. 4—(AP)—An armed bandit, dressed like a college boy, invaded three Davidson College dormitories in pre-dawn hours today and robbed more than 20 students of $354.50 after holding two of them at gunpoint.

The gunman, apparently in his early 20's fled before college authorities or police could be notified.

John C. Bailey, dean of students at the Presbyterian institution, said the bandit tiptoed among the sleeping students in East, West and Duke dormitories, lifting wallets as he made his way through darkened rooms. He stole $2 or $3 in most cases. J. W. Witherspoon, student treasurer of a fraternity house, reported the largest loss, $126.

In one room in Duke dormitory, the intruder drew a gun and threatened the occupants, Ralph E. Petree and John McGee, both of Charlotte.

Both students said they could positively identify the gunman who held a nickel-plated .32 caliber revolver on Petree and ordered him to "get back in bed and get to sleep." Petree returned to bed but not to sleep.

Petree and McGee told Mecklenburg County police the man awakened them around 5:30.

"I asked the man what he wanted," Petree said. "He replied 'Where is Bill, that boy you were out with last night?'"

Petree said he woke McGee and asked him, "Who in the heck is this boy?"

The student said he then jumped out of bed, but the thief waved the gun at him and ordered him "to get back in bed." Petree said he did as he was told, adding he told the bandit "that thing is pretty persuasive."

Petree said the gunman told him he was "looking for somebody and I don't want to be interrupted." He left the room, taking the students' wallets. That was the last time he was seen on the campus.

McGee and Petree said they had never seen the man before, but they didn't think he was a student. They said he wore a checkered sports jacket similar to those college boys wear.

Educational Television On The Upgrade: Wynn

Communication Center Director Points Out TV Advances Being Made By Universities

Educational television, which is coming to Carolina in September, is experiencing a steady nation-wide growth, according to Earl Wynn, director of the UNC Communication Center.

Professor Wynn made a report yesterday based on facts brought out at a special meeting of officers and directors of the National Association of Education Broadcasters just held at Ames, Iowa. Wynn participated in the conference as director of Region Two, which comprises 11 Southeastern states.

The group discussed long-range problems that have come about with the emergence of television into the broadcasting field.

Professor Wynn pointed out that although Alabama is not one of the wealthier states, it is the only one that has succeeded in persuading its state legislature to make a direct appropriation for funds to support educational television. Oklahoma has authorized the sale of bonds for the purpose, he added.

A new TV station at Michigan State College is devoted entirely to educational programs, with 80 percent of them live, Professor Wynn said.

Professor Wynn said that already the station has started experimentation with telecasts of athletic contests. Michigan State's Big 10 basketball game with Wisconsin was telecast recently.

He said the station is financed entirely from school funds. No special appropriation has been made since money has been set aside by the school for the past several years in anticipation of the new medium's debut on the campus.

Carolina's own educational TV station is slated to begin operation early this fall. Funds for the station totaling about $1,000,000 came from private sources.

UNC Library Scientists Attend National Meeting

Dean Susan Grey Akers and Miss Sarah R. Reed of the School of Library Science are attending the mid-winter conference of the American Library Association being held in Chicago this week. The meeting opened yesterday and will end February 6.

While in Chicago they also are attending the meeting of the Association of American Library Schools and a one-day Audio-Visual Workshop for Library School faculties.

Red Diplomat's Desertion Termed 'Great Victory'

TOKYO—(AP)—The desertion of a Russian diplomat and intelligence agent in the Far East to the United States was termed yesterday a "great victory that may be decisive in Japan," and an American expert in the Orient added that the escape is the "equivalent to a Midway or a Normandy." The agent, Yuri A. Rastvorov, was Soviet Russia's chief spy in Japan.

Drop-Add Dies Quiet Death Tomorrow

Drop-add will continue through 12:30 p.m. tomorrow for students wishing to make changes in class schedules.

To go through drop-add the student must get an authorization, consisting of an original and four carbons, from his college dean or advisor. The authorization, along with the tickets for classes being dropped, must be taken to Archer House. There, tickets for classes which the student wishes to add will be issued, if available. If they are not available, the student must again consult his advisor.

Baha'i Group Meets Tonight

Members of the Baha'i World Faith will sponsor a meeting in Gerrard Hall at 8:00 tonight.

Students and townspeople have been invited to attend the meeting on "The New World Religion." Guest speaker will be Edgar Olson, of Wilmington, Del.

The Baha'i faith, according to Walter Wooten, student harbinger of the movement here, began in the Holy Land in a divine revelation by the prophet Baha'u'llah. It teaches principally that the differences in the major religions—Christianity, Judaism, and Mohammedanism—did not exist among the prophets of the faiths but have been injected by priests and society.

$20 Taken

Dorm Resident Reports Theft From Billfold

Percy Hines says he'll have a hard time buying books this week. Someone came into his room in 306 Everett Dormitory Wednesday night and took $20 from his desk drawer.

Hines, from Winston-Salem, said he last saw the money when he paid dorm manager Harry Patton for dry cleaning some time Wednesday night. Then he put his billfold in his desk. When he got up yesterday morning, the money was gone.

Hines said his door was unlocked all night.

Bill Corse, from Chevy Chase, Md., who is Hines' roommate, said his wallet was lying on top of his desk, in plain sight. He reported nothing missing.

Money stolen from dormitory rooms this year now totals over $130. Almost all the thefts occurred in unlocked rooms, some while the residents were sleeping.

Elmer Adler To Hold Seminars

Printing Authority Coming Here

Elmer Adler of New York, whose more than 40 years of activity in the related fields of printing, publishing and advertising have made him a recognized authority in each, will be in Chapel Hill for two weeks beginning Monday to conduct a series of seminars on "Prints and Printmaking."

His visit here is part of a five-month tour of universities in the Southeast planned for the purpose of holding seminars on the graphic arts. The tour is sponsored by the American Federation of Arts.

Each seminar requires five meetings of two hours each. At least two similar seminars will be organized; one to meet from 3 to 5 p.m. on Monday (8th), Wednesday (10th) and Friday (12th) of the first week, and Tuesday (16th) and Thursday (18th) of the second week.

The other seminar is to meet from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday (9th) and Thursday (11th) of the first week, and Monday (15th), Wednesday (17th) and Friday (19th) of the second week.

They will be held in the Graphic Arts Room of the University Library beginning Monday. Each seminar will be limited to ten persons. No fees will be charged.

Interested students and faculty members in the University may enroll and should register with O. V. Cook, assistant librarian at the University Library. Adler will bring with him the illustrative materials which he formed and used at Princeton University, and will supplement them with others from the University Library here. At the end of the five sessions, the participants will have surveyed the history of printmaking, its technique, and its nomenclature.

While here he will speak at the Bull's Head Bookshop tea on February 17.

Adler organized the Pynson Printers in 1922, and was the founder and editor of "The Colophon," a leading American journal of books and printing. He is the curator of the New York Times Museum of the Printed Word, and was the founder of the Department of Graphic Arts at Princeton, where he remained for 12 years until he retired in 1951.

He will be accompanied by Dard Hunter of Cambridge, noted authority on papermaking, who also will participate in the seminars.

Hunter is an artist, master craftsman and author. He has made paper, designed and cast type, has printed by hand press a number of his own books in the field of the graphic arts, has revived the early art of fine papermaking, and has become an authority on paper and its history.

Y Frosh Camp Plans Will Be Aired Tonight

The big kickoff for the 1954 YMCA Freshman Camp is scheduled for tonight at 7 o'clock and will be held in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial. It is slated to begin with an evaluation meeting and discussion of last year's Freshman Camp.

This will be the first in a series of meetings that will be concerned with drawing up plans for the 1954 camp, leadership and counselor training, and group discussion techniques.

The director and counselors will be chosen according to interest and ability from those who participate in planning the camp by attending weekly meetings and working on planning committees for speakers, recreation, program, and finance.

This planning begins tomorrow in the form of an evaluation of last year's camp. Those who are interested in the program, both freshman and upperclassmen, are urged to "get started" Friday and continuing attending these meetings throughout the series until plans are completed.

APO Changes Book Trading To GM Kitchen

Almost 100 books were brought in to the Alpha Phi Omega Book Exchange yesterday as the newly-opened student enterprise started its first business day with a change in location.

Chuck Katzenstein, president of the service fraternity sponsoring the venture, said the book-store "has been doing a lively business," and "Our present selection presents quite a variety from which to choose, and we're hoping to see many more books brought in and sold." Katzenstein said the exchange has moved from the Y building to the kitchenette of Graham Memorial, and will be open, as originally planned, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The kitchenette is located on the west or Franklin Street side of GM, on the first floor.

Katzenstein outlined the procedure for book-selling at the exchange: "The student brings his book in and sets a price on it which he considers to be fair. He leaves with a numbered ticket, and checks back in a short time to see whether or not the book has been sold. If it has been sold, he pays a nominal 10-cent fee, and immediately collects his money.

"If the book is not sold by next Wednesday, it is returned to the student as soon as he comes in," Katzenstein concluded.

Society Of Pathologists Meeting Here Tomorrow

The winter meeting of the North Carolina Society of Pathologists will be held here tomorrow in the Department of Pathology of the School of Medicine.

It will be attended by many prominent pathologists from throughout the state.

The scientific portion of the program will consist of a "slide seminar" to be held in the afternoon. Interesting cases and difficult diagnostic problem cases from many laboratories will be discussed.

NEWS IN BRIEF

NEW YORK—(AP)—Film star Marlon Brando, who last week walked off a movie set equipped only with a tooth brush, turned up here yesterday in the care of a psychiatrist who described him as a "very sick and mentally confused boy" according to Brando's agent. An informed source said the 30-year-old bachelor would be kept in seclusion for at least two months.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland said yesterday he thought a GOP substitute for the Becker Amendment would win out over a rival Democratic amendment.

CHICAGO—(AP)—A public emergency was declared here yesterday after the second in a series of mad dog attacks left a dentist, a mother and her child victims of a rabid dog's bites. Meanwhile, health authorities are searching for victims of the first attack, in which 16 persons were bitten by a single dog. Law enforcement officers were told to "capture and destroy" every stray dog in quarantined areas of Cook County, which includes Chicago and many suburbs.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sen. Guy Gillette (D-Iowa) said yesterday the Bill to put the New York Coffee Exchange under federal supervision is only a first step toward driving down coffee prices for American consumers.
