Library To Be Open Later On Saturday Night

By Dick Creed The University gained a new first yesterday with the announcement that the library here will be open Saturday at regular week day hours. By changing closing time on Saturday nights from 5 p.m. to 10:45 p.m. the library serves the campus and Chapel Hill a total of 98 1/2 hours per week. According to the United States Office of Education Survey, that's tops in the number of hours open per week for college libraries in the country.

Olan V. Cook, assistant librarian, in announcing the new schedule, said yesterday that the library will make a survey from now until June to see whether enough students use the library on weekends to justify the lengthened hours. Cook said earlier this week that "all necessary work could be done" without keeping the library open on Saturday nights.

"In lengthening the hours," said Cook, "it may be necessary to thin down some of the services now in effect." He said that the library must stay within its budget, and will have to rearrange the personnel it already has to meet the new schedule.

The Circulation desk, the reserve reading room, the general college library, the current affairs reading room, the reference department, and the economics and business administration library will all be open until 10:45 p.m. Monday through Saturday. No change has been made in the Sunday hours.

In The Daily Tar Heel of last Friday, an editorial said, "The library is not open long enough on weekends. Its 633,000 books are shut up from the 5,800 students on those days when the students have the greatest period of free time."

Cook denied the "laughing and talking" in the library and the littering of the library with paper cups and waste paper.

The changes in the library schedule were made with the approval of Charles E. Rush, director of libraries.

AP's Summerlin Is Home Here; Will Get New Beat

Sam Summerlin, who served 2 1/2 years as an Associated Press war correspondent in Korea, and his wife and baby daughter are visiting his family here before beginning a new assignment in Havana, Cuba.

A graduate of the University, Summerlin worked in the Raleigh bureau for about two years before going to Korea in mid-1951.

He is married to the former Cynthia Cyr of Seattle, Wash. They plan to spend several days here before Summerlin begins his new assignment. He will be a roving reporter out of Havana, covering Central and South America.

UNC Netter Triumphs

A Carolina tennis player—or an ex-Carolina tennis player—is assured of a victory in the first round of the National Indoor Tennis Tourney.

Sophomore Don Thompson, number four on last year's team, has been honored as one of the 32 tennis players in the country to play in the tournament.

In the first round he has drawn old grad (and Wimbledon champion) Vic Seixas.

God Is The Heart Of Man, Sockman Tells UNC Audience

By Jennie Lynn "There is something greater than all materialism, something within the heart of man that cannot be destroyed," one of America's foremost religious leaders said here last night. The speaker, Dr. Ralph Sockman of Christ Church, New York City, suggested four horizons which religious forces need to watch. These, he told his Hill Hall audience of about 700, are:

Di Is Against Direct Vote For President

A bill designed to do away with the electoral college in the election of the President and Vice-President of the United States was defeated by a 13-9 vote in the Dialectic Senate at its meeting this week.

The bill, which was introduced by Senator Bob Harrington, called for the "direct election of the President and Vice-President by a majority of the voters." It would have abolished the system by which the vote of a state is given, usually in toto, to the candidate who carries it.

Backers of the bill, in speaking for its adoption, reminded the body that eleven presidents of the United States had been elected with a minority of the total votes and that several had achieved that office without even a plurality over their leading opponent. They argued that such occurrences were incompatible with the idea of American democracy.

Joel Fleishman, speaking for the bill, pointed out that the present system increases the importance of a few states with a majority of the electoral vote and, in presidential elections, "invites the domination of small, minority pressure groups."

Opponents of the night's bill argued that its adoption would invite the creation of a "multitude of splinter or sectional parties." They warned that such a situation would lead to constant chaos in government similar to that constantly facing the French Republic.

Vote On GM, Village Bills Slated Tonight

By Fred Powledge Students living in Victory Village and those concerned with Graham Memorial social facilities are in line for a little money, Student and University Party spokesmen said yesterday.

A bill to provide over $4,000 for Graham Memorial improvements will be voted upon tonight, as well as one giving $3,000 worth of improvements to Victory Village.

The GM appropriation, introduced last week by Don Geiger, SP floorleader, provides that the sum of $4,259 be given to the Graham Memorial Student Union Board of Directors "to be used in renovating the Wolfe-Williams Lounge, the kitchen adjacent thereto, and the recreational facilities in the basement of Graham Memorial."

UP Chairman Jack Stevens said yesterday his party "will support" the measure.

Bob Gorham, student body president, said the appropriation was "worthwhile," and that "while it seems to be a large expenditure, it definitely supplies a need."

Victory Village Bill Another bill coming up for Legislative consideration tonight is an appropriation of $3,000 for Victory Village physical improvements.

The bill, if passed, will provide funds for playground facilities, furniture, including tables, sofas, lamps and rugs, and a television set, among other things. Stevens said yesterday the UP is also in favor of this measure.

Gorham was "convinced" that the Victory Village appropriation would be a "worthwhile expenditure."

Gorham Will Veto Gorham said he would veto a bill recently passed by the student Legislature, defining membership on the UNC delegation to Consolidated University Student Council. The measure as it stands states that the Carolina delegation to CUSC shall consist partially of the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of the student body, presidents of the Interfraternity and Interdormitory Councils, editor of The Daily Tar Heel and chairman of the Womens' Residence Council.

Gorham did not say what part or parts of the bill he did not approve.

Strike Ends; Shaw Classes Are Resumed

RALEIGH, Feb. 17 — (AP) — Classes started again at Shaw University today after students voted to accept a settlement ending a three-day strike.

An all-day meeting of a student committee and faculty members worked out the settlement yesterday and the executive committee of the college's board of trustees approved it last night.

Dr. William Strassner, president of the Baptist Negro college, said the settlement included re-opening of the cases of four senior girls suspended recently by the disciplinary committee.

The suspension of the four girls, plus the earlier suspension of two basketball players, touched off the walkout last Friday after a demonstration at Dr. Strassner's home Thursday night. Student leaders also cited "other grievances" against the administration.

Dr. Strassner said the disciplinary committee will be expanded to include three students, previously not represented on the 7-member group. However, the students will not be added until the case of the four girls is decided. Only new evidence will be heard in reconsidering the suspensions, Dr. Strassner said. The suspension of the two basketball players will not be re-opened, he added.

An ultimatum from the administration on Monday said the 10-member student committee would be expelled if normal routine was not restored in 24 hours. However, Dr. Strassner said today the leaders are back in good standing.

Middlebush Is Chief Speaker For Meeting

About 200 faculty members from the three branches of the Consolidated University will come to Chapel Hill this morning to begin a two-day State of the University Conference.

The purpose of the conference is to attempt an answer to the question, "How can the Consolidated University of North Carolina more nearly meet its full responsibility in the areas of instruction and research?" The topic will be considered as it relates to three groups of students—those through the sophomore year, those above the sophomore year, and those in graduate or extension study.

Frederick A. Middlebush, president of the University of Missouri, will deliver the principal address tonight at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "How can we build a greater state university?"

Gray Opens Session President Gordon Gray will open the session at 9 a.m. in Carroll Hall. He will speak on the work of the conference. Dr. W. M. Whyburn, general chairman of the conference, will preside. Dr. Whyburn is chairman of the Department of Mathematics here.

The participants will meet this afternoon to review reports of seminar discussions.

A final dinner meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in Lenoir Hall. All faculty members from the three units of the University have been invited. The dinner session will feature summary reports of the principal conclusions and recommendations developed in the three topic discussion areas.

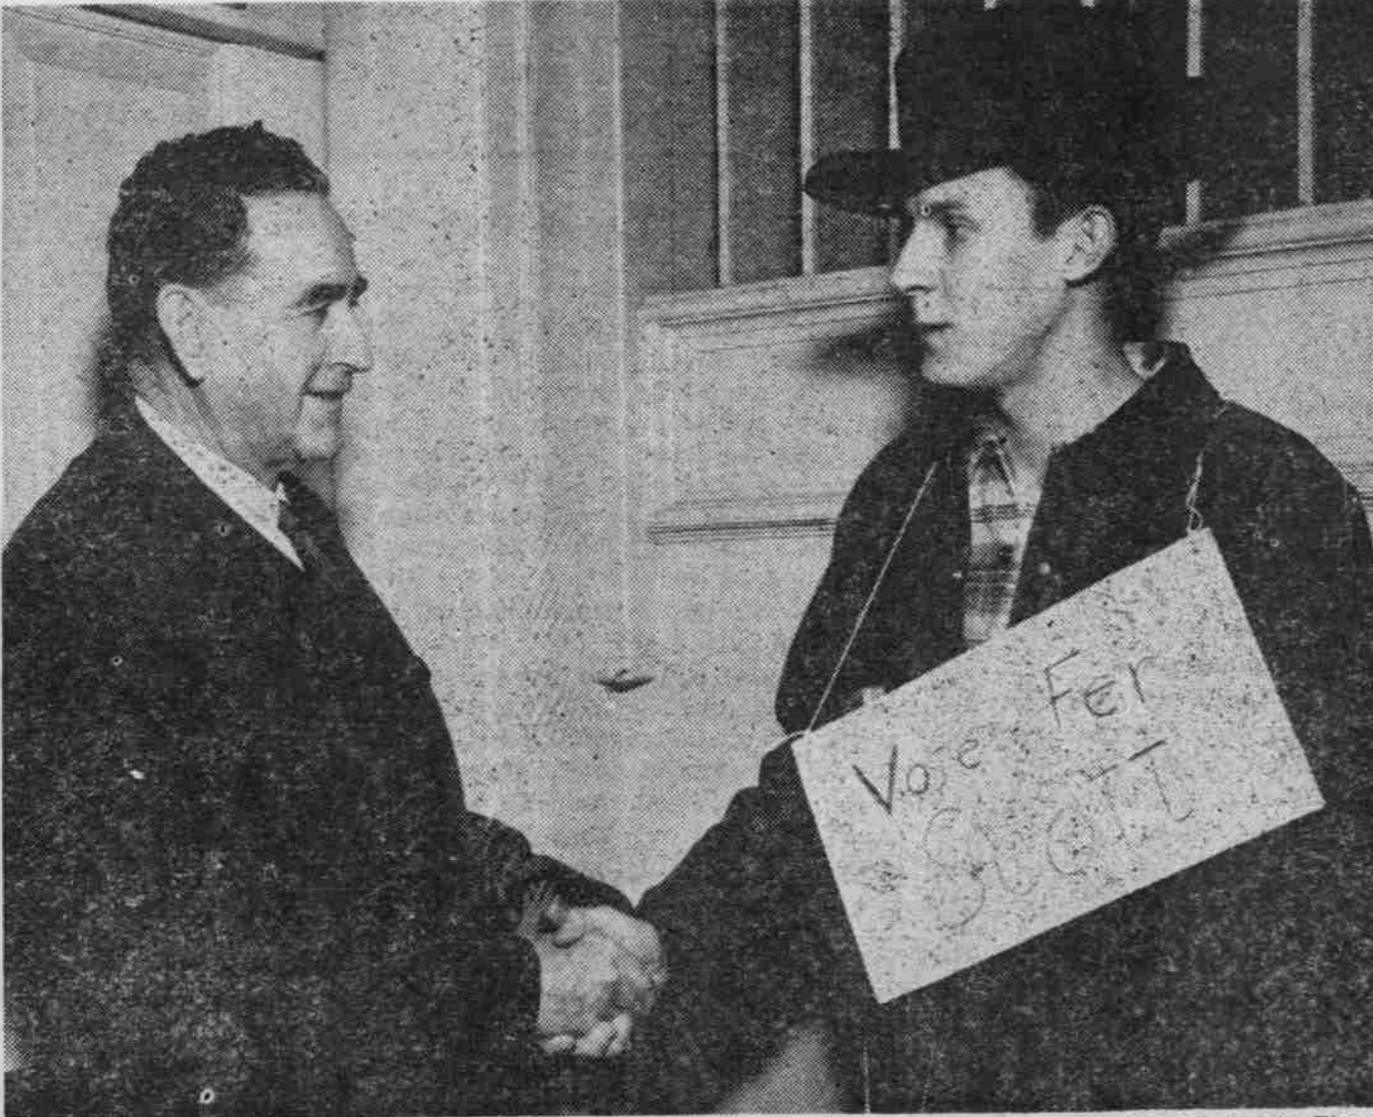

Chairmen To Report President Gray will preside and reports will be made by Dr. Eugene Pfaff of Woman's College, Dr. Everett Hall of Chapel Hill, and Dr. Selz Mayo of N. C. State College, chairmen of the various topic discussion groups.

The participants have been doing preparatory work on the conference topics for several months.

The faculty committee in charge of the conference this year, in addition to Chairman Whyburn, includes Prof. G. L. Simpson, Chapel Hill, secretary; Profs. C. C. Scarborough and W. A. Reid, State College; Profs. Laura G. Anderton and Warren Ashby, Woman's College; and Profs. A. G. Engstrom and S. B. Knight, Chapel Hill.
