Dual-Purpose Class Building Added At Duke

DURHAM, Feb. 24 (AP)—Recalling the hectic days of the thirties when a construction railroad ran through the young campus, Duke University today officially opened its new classroom-administration building.

Featured figure in the brief presentation of keys to the new building was 80-year-old George G. Allen, trustee from New York and chairman of the building committee.

More than 25 years ago Allen presided at a more elaborate ceremony when the cornerstone to the Union Building was laid, signalling the opening of construction on the University's West Campus.

Allen is also chairman of the Duke endowment, whose philanthropy made possible the new classroom-administration building. In presenting the keys to Duke President Hollis Edens, he said, "For many years I have longed to see a suitable building erected on this spot, completing the original plan for the main quadrangle. It is my fervent hope that you will occupy this building for many, many years."

The new building, last structure in the quadrangle, was included in the original plans for the famous West Campus. The new addition completes the gothic quadrangle. Designed for greater efficiency in operation and in particular making it more convenient for students to meet with officials, and with registration and records staffs, the building will house some 14 classrooms and seminar rooms and 33 faculty offices, in addition to some 35 administrative and clerical offices.

Mock Air Battle Causes Vapor Trails To Fill Sky

The vapor trails seen over Chapel Hill skies around noon Tuesday were caused by a mock air duel staged between a B-47 bomber and several F-86 jet planes, according to a story in the Greensboro Daily News.

The B-47 is thought to have been assigned this area as a target for a practice "bombing" mission. The F-86's were probably charged with intercepting the bomber.

The vapor trails were seen as far west as Greensboro and as far east as Rocky Mount.

Candidate W. Kerr Scott Says Farms Important

KINSTON, Feb. 24 (AP). U. S. Senatorial Candidate W. Kerr Scott declared tonight "every business man and every professional man in North Carolina is intimately and directly affected by the welfare and prosperity of our farm population."

He told a Civitan Club audience a prosperous farmer is a good customer of merchants, service industries, and of banks and professional persons.

"When a farmer prospers," said Scott, "he is able to buy more of the products manufactured by the industrial worker. This business of prosperity is an endless chain."

Recognizing these facts and acting accordingly, he said, "is the path which has built and will continue to build a greater and finer North Carolina."

Meet Politicos

Treasurer Gill Will Address YDC Tonight

Edwin Gill, incumbent State Treasurer, will present some of his views on existing political controversies in a speech at 8 o'clock tonight in Gerrard Hall. Gill is being sponsored by the Carolina Young Democrats Club.

The Treasurer's talk is the second in a "meet the candidate" series sponsored by the YDC. Former Governor W. Kerr Scott spoke here two weeks ago to inaugurate the series. Scott is a candidate for a seat in the U. S. Senate in the Democratic primary in May. Alton Lennon, Scott's opponent, will be brought here in April.

Before holding his present office, Gill was U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue. He has also served as Commissioner of Paroles and Commissioner of Revenue.

Gill's only opposition in the Democratic primary this year is Josh James of Raleigh. However, there is still time for more opponents to enter the race for Treasurer.

A dinner at the Pines at 6 p.m. will precede Gill's talk, according to Al House, YDC president. House pointed out that all Democrats interested should make reservations for this dinner.

SP's Lowet Says UP Is 'Stalling'

Block Fee Increase Up For Vote Tonight

By Fred Powledge

Student Party Chairman Henry Lowet yesterday defended his party and its appropriations bills against what he termed "name-calling, stalling tactics" by members of the University Party.

Lowet was prompted by charges made by student government President Bob Gorham Tuesday night that Student Party legislators had become "irresponsible" and are appropriating funds "indiscriminately." Gorham spoke to UP members at a kickoff meeting for the spring campaign.

Gorham said he didn't know what he would do with a recent $3,000 Victory Village appropriations bill, recently passed by the student Legislature. He does have the power to veto it within 10 days after the bill is put on his desk by House Speaker Baxter Miller. The bill was Student Party-sponsored.

Lowet said yesterday: "The example used by several UP members to illustrate Gorham's words was the recent bill passed by the Legislature appropriating funds for Victory Village.

"No portion of the campus has been more neglected by student government than Victory Village in the past several years. Consequently, when funds became available for improving the Village, the exponents of 'Government by Neglect' raised the hue and cry that such appropriations are a 'payoff'."

"This is an insult to the integrity and good intentions of the residents of Victory Village who are seeking these improvements."

Lowet said he thought Jack Stevens, UP chairman, "and the entire UP owes an apology to the Villagites for insinuating that these older, more mature, married students are being bribed to vote SP."

Several UP members said Tuesday they thought the Victory Village appropriations bill was a "pay-off" for Village support in last fall's and future elections.

"Government by Neglect will probably continue its name-calling, stalling tactics until the student body becomes aware that the UP has done little or absolutely nothing during its administration," said Lowet.

"Yes, the Good Deal program for the students is reaching a 'crisis,' as Gorham stated," added Lowet. "The question is whether or not the President of the student body will use his veto to prevent intelligent appropriations from going through to benefit the student body."

President Gorham said last night, "I haven't yet decided" what to do with the bill. He said Speaker Miller had not yet placed the bill on his desk.

Student Fee Raise

A bill to raise student block fees $3 per student per year will come before the Legislature for voting tonight.

The measure, co-introduced by Bob Farrell (UP) and Don Geiger (SP), passed the finance committee unanimously last week, and legislative sources say it will do as well tonight.

The money received from the proposed $3 fee raise would be used by the Graham Memorial Student Union Board of Directors in the work of the student union.

Other Bills

Other bills introduced last week and sent to committee include an investigation of Victory Village physical facilities; a study of coed visiting; and a review of the rules of the University Dance Committee.

The Victory Village bill would order an investigation of parking areas, sidewalks, telephone booths, street lights, street labeling and safety and caution signs in the Village. It went to the Victory Village Improvements Committee last week.

The coed visiting study, introduced by Gene Cook (SP), would urge the student body president (See LOWET, page 4)

Women's Place Is In Politics: Thad Eure

"If they refuse to participate on the county, precinct, and state levels, then it is their fault." Thad Eure, North Carolina Secretary of State, emphasized last night the opportunities women have of participating in political activities in North Carolina.

Eure was speaking to the Chapel Hill League of Women Voters. He discussed political parties and voting in the state, pointing out in detail the opportunities North Carolina political parties have provided in their rules for the participation of women.

On the county level, for example, either the chairman or the vice-chairman of the executive committee must be a woman. Mr. Eure continued, each congressional district must elect 18 members to the party's state executive committee, and one half of those must be women; so in North Carolina almost one-half of the 216 voting members of each party's state executive committee are women.

The only difference is a fractional one at the precinct level, where only two of the five members of its executive committee are women.

Mr. Eure praised the League of Women Voters and said he wished that there were more units in North Carolina. There is nothing more valuable to the state and the woman herself, he said, than an active interest in political affairs. Mr. Eure encouraged all women to take such an interest.
