SP NOMINATES DON GEIGER, ENDORSES KURALT

Lawyers, Demos To Hear Hodges

Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges will speak here under the joint sponsorship of the University's Law School Association and the Young Democratic Club Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

The announcement was made by Don Erb, Harrisburg, Pa., chairman of the program committee of the Law School Association, and Al House, Hobgood, president of the YDC. The Lieutenant Governor will speak in the courtroom of Manning Hall.

Both organizations have extended invitations to the public to attend.

The Young Democratic Club has announced plans for a dinner honoring the Lieutenant Governor. Reservations for the dinner can be made through Al House at the Law School.

Lieutenant Governor Hodges worked as a mill hand and office boy before and during his high school career, was graduated from the University in 1919, and returned to Leaksville to join Marshall Field and Company. He was promoted to general manager of the manufacturing division in 1938, to vice-president in 1943.

Retiring in 1950, he went to Germany as Chief of the Industry Division, Economic Cooperation Administration.

Mr. Hodges has long been active in community, church, civic and fraternal affairs.

He has been a leader in Rotary for 28 years, having served as District Governor, chairman of the 1948 international convention, consultant and observer at the United Nations and at the Security Council, president of the New York Club, and since June as RI director.

A former University trustee, Mr. Hodges was awarded an honorary LL.D. degree by his alma mater in 1946.

BSU President Mauldin Criticizes Investigators

By Charles Kuralt

The new president of the UNC Baptist Student Union yesterday accused the committee investigating Baptist student "liberalism" of "not dealing with the students in good faith."

Tom Mauldin, who was elected BSU president Sunday night, said in a statement yesterday, "Dr. Crouch and his committee impress me only with their insincerity in dealing with the problems of the Baptist Student Union."

Mauldin referred to the published statement that members of a committee investigating the BSU have asked three leaders of the group to resign or be fired because of their "liberal views."

The three are the Rev. James W. Ray of Raleigh, state BSU leader, the Rev. J. C. Herrin, BSU leader here, and the Rev. Max Wicker of Durham, BSU leader at Duke University.

Mauldin said, "I do not believe there is any desire on the part of the committee to bring issues to the forefront so that all may have an opportunity to understand what is going on. Whatever the outcome of this attempted firing of our student chaplain, we will try to carry on our BSU program in such a way as to be meaningful to all who participate."

Scientific War Torture

Will Be Debated By Phi

The question of "scientific torture" as a means of securing information from prisoners of war will be debated tonight at 8 o'clock by the Philanthropic Society.

The measure, entitled "A bill to guard the rights of captured military personnel," states the United States should not prosecute a person who has confessed to anything while in the "semi-crazed state" produced by enemy torture "directed to the mind of the prisoner."

Horton Assails 'Reversal' Of Tom Peacock

Kuralt Wins Support Of Both Parties For Double Endorsement

Charles Kuralt won the second half of a double endorsement for Daily Tar Heel editorship last night as the Student Party acclaimed him its candidate.

"I realize that until now, my efforts at a fair campaign have been met with half-truth and slander. This calls for a change of pace."

"During the next three weeks, therefore, we will meet slander with strength, innuendo with truth," Kuralt declared after nomination.

"I promise to both my supporters, the UP and the SP, a powerful campaign worthy of their trust," he added.

Speaking for Kuralt, Ken Penegar said that "suppression of free thought and free expression," a nationwide "monster," was spreading to the campus.

Referring to Tom Peacock, Kuralt's opponent, Penegar said that "we have seen this candidate (Peacock) grab futilely for any issue that might give him an advantage."

Penegar said "the only issue that matters is the person himself who will serve as one of our intellectual leaders of the campus."

Phin Horton, supporter of Daily Tar Heel editorial candidate Charles Kuralt, yesterday charged candidate Tom Peacock of "a complete reversal of opinion on party backing" after he found himself "unwanted" by the University Party.

In a bitingly-worded statement, Horton struck out at the present sports editor, calling Peacock's issues "fabrications of age-old arguments which everybody favors, one of the oldest tricks in the politician's handbook."

"He (Peacock) said to the (University) Party when he sought their nomination that he felt that he could represent their views because he did see only the way of the UP," Horton said.

"In a later statement, after Peacock found himself unwanted by the majority of the University Party, he (Peacock) said he felt that no editorial candidate should be tied to a political party," continued Horton.

"This came, of course, after he had been turned down by the UP," added Horton. "This reversal is a little hard to understand unless you look at it in the light of a candidate clutching at any straw . . .," he added.

The Man And His University Party

Tonight is University Party nominating night, and it's also Tom Creasy's night to be nominated president by the UP.

Creasy, following along the well-tread path of current President Bob Gorham, was Orientation chairman last fall. He's in the Grail and a member of SAE fraternity. And we predict that it won't take the UP over three minutes to nominate him.

Moguls Continue Veep Hunt

While we're predicting, it might as well be pointed out that University Party moguls are still in a muddle about picking a vice-presidential candidate. Tonight, we wouldn't be surprised if the UP puts off the picking time.

Possible veep picks are Charlie Yarborough, Martin Jordan, and Ed McCurry. Jordan isn't particularly known; Yarborough's Legislature experience may make him eligible; and McCurry, we hear, is capable, but not too eager to run.

Rollie Tillman, new Orientation head, may have been considered earlier, but there's the technicality that says one man can't hold two major offices.

Spring Breaks Gorham's Silence

Silent student body President Gorham will come out with his stand on big-time athletics this week. Gorham, we'd say, will probably endorse the status-quo concerning the University's athletic policy.

Spring and upcoming elections do strange things to men—particularly politicians, even silent student body presidents.

Tom Peacock Pledges Saturday Class Fight

Sports Editor Tom Peacock, independent candidate for editor of The Daily Tar Heel, stated yesterday that he was against Saturday classes and indicated he favored a revised coed visiting agreement.

In a prepared statement, Peacock pledged "a never-ending, hard-hitting fight against Saturday classes."

Regarding the recent coed visiting plan for fraternities that the administration turned down, he said, "The administration should be censured for this action, and unfavorable student opinion conveyed to it through The Daily Tar Heel."

"It is obvious that the student newspaper has the power to create issues," the sports editor declared.

"Instead of a negative issue, one of the foremost policies I pledge is a never-ending, hard-hitting fight against Saturday classes. The Trustees of the University read The Tar Heel. This is apparent by their serious concern over the battle against big-time athletics."

Peacock said he believed "a dynamic battle against Saturday classes—a daily battle if necessary" could bring results.

"Instead of misrepresenting student opinion," Peacock said, "I believe the student newspaper should strike out against an obvious grievance that most students want to see corrected."

Concerning the visiting agreement, he stated:

"The coed visiting agreement: The administration had tentatively given its approval to a revision of the coed visiting agreement that would place on the students themselves the responsibility of adult and mature social relationship."

"Just when this agreement had reached its final stages the administration took a complete about-face and refused to even consider a revision of the archaic and Victorian rules now in effect. The administration should be censured for this action, and unfavorable student opinion conveyed to it through The Daily Tar Heel."

Di To Debate McCarthy Topic

The Dialectic Senate will debate a bill commending Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy for his anti-Communist investigations tonight at 8 o'clock in Di Hall in New West.

William K. Scarborough, senior from Annapolis, Md., will introduce the bill, which proposes a resolution praising McCarthy "for his outstanding efforts" in ousting Communists and Red sympathizers from governmental positions, and stating that McCarthy "has rendered a great service to his country in this endeavor."

In a letter to The Daily Tar Heel last week Scarborough challenged "the editors of this paper or anyone else on campus to cite a case in which he (McCarthy) has been proved wrong."

Prexy Gorham Asks Students For 'Gripes'

President Bob Gorham asked for some complaints from students yesterday.

In a press conference, the student body president requested any "gripes" that students would like to convey to the Trustee Visiting Committee be turned in to his office.

"We'd be glad to arrange interviews with the committee for any student," Gorham said. If students want to submit complaints in writing, he added, they may bring them by the presidential offices in Graham Memorial.

The committee will be here in about two weeks, according to Gorham.

The Boston Pops Orchestra won't appear here as scheduled on the SUAB calendar, Gorham said. He explained that a change in Student Entertainment Committee organization, coming in the near future, caused the cancellation.

"A new plan that puts the Student Entertainment Committee (SEC) under the Graham Memorial Board of Directors will put $6,000 more into the general funds," Gorham said.

This revamping of the SEC will be put to the students in the coming spring election, according to Gorham.

'Rather Pedestrian'

TWING Replace BRAT? Cobb Starts New Cult

BRAT is no longer the newest art movement on campus; TWING's the thing.

The latest issue of The Corn Cobb, monthly mimeographed publication of Cobb Dormitory, contains an editorial denouncing BRAT as "too confusing" and "rather pedestrian."

As a replacement, The Cobb proposes TWING in the belief that Cobb Dormitory must "not be a straggler in the forced march of progress, but get itself an art movement right quick."

Pi Sigma Alpha Offers Prize For Best Essay

Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honor fraternity, will award a prize of $100 for the best paper on a political science subject submitted by an undergraduate student.

The prize is offered as part of a national contest. Publication of the winning essay, and of one or more of the essays given honorable mention, is contemplated.

The paper may be from 3,000 to 6,000 words in length, and must be submitted to Prof. F. N. Cleaveland not later than April 24. Further information can be obtained from the Political Science Department.

Gerry Snider Wins Backing For Secretary

Geiger Is Endorsed In Unanimous Vote As Fleishman Yields

By Louis Kraar

Don Geiger won the Student Party's nomination for president last night by acclamation.

Gerry Snider won the SP nomination for student body secretary in a close 27-22 vote. Sonia Bergan opposed Miss Snider. Later, the party declared Miss Snider their candidate "by acclamation."

"It is high time that student government on this campus be salvaged from the worthless game of verbal volleyball that it has become and be reinstated to its once useful position . . ." declared Geiger.

The veteran Legislator, currently the SP floor leader, pledged to carry the party banner "through the dorms, fraternities, sororities, and anywhere that students may be."

Joel Fleishman, another long-standing SP leader, was also up for the nomination, but bowed out in favor of Geiger. In a sharply-worded prepared talk, Fleishman criticized the rival University Party for the Consolidated University Student Council controversy of last spring. President Bob Gorham's lack of action on the coed visiting agreement, and the lack of "dynamic" leadership.

"Students were beginning to wonder if the money they were paying to student government was really worth what they were getting out of it," Fleishman declared. He hailed Geiger as "a man who has taken the lead in the progress which has been made in revitalizing student government."

Geiger is from Tampa, Fla. He is a junior in business administration and a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has served in the student Legislature for almost three years, holding, at various times, the positions of sergeant-at-arms, president protem, and floor leader.

Gordon Forester, who was mentioned by many as a possible SP presidential nominee himself, spoke in behalf of Geiger. Forester tagged Geiger "a man who can do more for student government than any man I've seen in a long time." Forester said reports that he was quitting politics were "a lie."

Nine Students On Dean's List In Journalism

Dean Norval H. Luxon reported yesterday that nine students in the School of Journalism made the Dean's List for the fall semester.

James Robert Ward, of Carolee, had a straight A record. Ward is married and had a job while carrying a full academic schedule.

The others, who made grades of B or better, are Anita Lillis Anderson, Wilmington; Harvey Deakins Bradshaw, Greenville; Susan Evelyn Dupree, Angier; Margie Mary Garner, Pinehurst; Paul B. Mason, Burlington; Edwina McMullen, Greenville; William Thomas Neal, Chapel Hill; and Elinor Lucy Wrenn, Greensboro.
